Mohun Lall then deposed, that he likewise had been acquainted with the late Rijah Pertab Chunder, Zemindar of Burdwan, and was present at his last illdess and demise at Culna, in B. S. 1227, in the month of Pous; and that Pertaub Chunder died in his presence, and deponent had seen his corpee burnt at Culna on this morning of the 14th Pous, 1227 B. S. and that the presenter who pretends to be Pertaub Chunder, the late Rajah and Zemindar of Burdwan, is not him, as the Rajah died many years ago and was burnt; neither does he resemble the Rajah in shape, features, color, height or age. This witness admitted, that he was the Superintendent of the present Rajah of Bardwan's elephants, and got 10 Rs. a month for his services. He was croos-examined on a lew minor points.

Byrub Baboo deposed, that he is married to Prawi Baboo's Sister, and Prawn Baboo had married deposent's sister. Deponent is in the service of the present Rajah of Burdwan. This witness likewise followed in the wake of the last witness, regarding the death and burning of the Rajah Pertaub Chunder at Culna in his presence, and the non resemblance of the principal prisoner to that individual.

Shum Churn Baboo deposed, that he is the brother of Ranny Jye Koomarree, the elder widow of the late Maharaja Tej Chunder, and he gets 10 Rs. a month from the present Raja, as a Darogah to his establishment at Burdwan. Deponent's daughter is married to Baboo Rausliabarry, Prawn Baboo's third son. This witness likewise followed in the wake of the former witnesses and deposed to his having been present at the death and burning of Raja Pertaub Chunder, and that the prisoner alledging himself to be that person, is not him. Deponent was present at the death of and witnessed the funeral obsequies of the late Raja Tej Chunder, and although he could not, either in his examination be-fore the magistrate at Bancoorah, nor at the time he gave his evidence before the magistrate of this district, relate the particulars of the ceremonics attendant on his funeral, he is well prepried to state them now, if the defendant's counsel required of him.

Rada Churn likewise deposed to the same effect as the last witness, viz., that he was present at the death and burning of Raja Pertanb Chunder, and that the prisoner assuming his name does not resemble him. The Deponent was likewise related to Prawn Baboo, and a servant of the present Raja of Burdwan.

Up to the period when deponent was examined all the kindoo witnesses were, instead of being aworn either by the Ganges water, the solemn declaration, either by self repetition or holding the same written on paper in their hands, were made simply to sign a written ekraranna, or compact, to speak the truth in their evidence in this case. To this form the prisoners objected, and wished the court to swear them on the Ganges water. Mr. Curtis remarked to them, that these withinsates would be equally liable to the pains and penalties for perjury by law, if they swore falsely after they had signed this compact, as if they had sworn on their solemn affirmation to speak the truth. The pranters replied, that the simple compact, as it was not far religious form, these witnesses would not consider it binding oul signed by him Maha Rajah Pertab Chunder Dhe their conscience perhaps, and therefore they may sever from the truth. Here Munsaram, the Sheristadar of from the truth. the Court, said, that it was binding on them both conscientiously and legally; but the prisoners not being éatisfied with the Shetistadar's opinion on this matter, Ram Koomar, the next witness for the prosecution, was sworn on his solemn affirmation. He objected to this, and wanted to sign the compact; but the judge overruled his objection. He deposed that he was the family priest and tutor of the late Rajah Pertab Chunder, and likewise spoke to the death and burning of the Raja, and that the principal prisoner in this case did not resemble that person. He likewise added. Rada kissen Bysack one day invited me to his house, and there I saw the prisoner. Pusoner asked me whether I knew him? I replied no. I then asked the prisoner whether he knew me ? The prisoner made some mumbling reply, which I did not distinctly hear. I then asked prisoner, if you are Pertab Chun ler, relate to me the particulars of the affairs of the Rajbundy, and what situation I held in the Rajbary at Burdwan. To this question the priso ner made no reply, but smiled contemptuously on me I then informed him, that I was the Goorgo, viz. priest, and tutor to the Rajah Pertab Chunder, who was dead and burnt; and if he were that person he certainly would have recognized me I then asked him, can you tell the particular mark on my body by which I wis known to Pertab Chunder. The prisoner made a reply, which I did not distinctly understand. I then began to relate to the prisoner, at the request of Chund Mookerice, the particulars of the illness and death of the late Raja Pertab Chunder at Culna, an I his corpse being burnt there, and described to him all the funeral ceremonies which were performed on that occasion; and then asked him how could these facts be consistent with his assertion of his being that Raja. The prisoner, instead of making a reply, laughed at my question, and dismissed me, and desired me to call again the next day. I then took my leave and did not repeat my vist to the prisoner as he had requested me to do.

Hurrischunder Roy depoved the same as the last, viz, that he witnessed the death of Pertab Chunder and saw his body burnt at Culna, and that he is related to Prawn Baboo's family, and receives wages from the Rajbarry.

Radakissen Bysack, Dewan of the Treasury, deposed. I never went to Burdwan and I never had seen Pertah Chunder before I saw the person who represents him now. I recognize the principal privoner in this case, and I know him to be Pertab Chunder. I have been acquainted with him for the last 2 years. I first saw him in the Jail at Hooghly, when Rija Budlinath was present with me. I went to see him at the prisoner's request, written to me in a Bengally letter, bearing a Persian signature. He requested me to get some person to become his security for the peace, after the expiration of the period of his imprisonment. The signature of the letter was Rajah Pertab Chund. Before I saw the prisoner at the Hooghly Jail, he was a perfect stranger to me. I got Boy Kissen Chowdry and Goopee Kissen to become his security, and their security was filed in this Court for one year. Pertab Chunder, after his release from the Hooghly Jail, came to my house and reaided six months with me. After this period, I hired a house for the prisoner near the Town Guard, on the Chitpere Wood, The house was a three storied house, about half a coss distant from my residence in Calcutta. He did on one occasion, borrow from me, on a bond, 16.000 rupees, He signed his name to the bond, Rajah Portab Chand. The money had been advanced to him in amali sugarat verious times before hand, and the bond, was given an the 10th of March 1838, on a settlement of these secounts. The bond was drawn out in the Office of No R. Graham, Attorney at Law, and he was an attenting witness to it, Besides this, I have other unseraled accounts with him but I have no other document

Rajah, excepting another bond for 13,000 rapees, exacuted by him on the 30th August 1838, and drawn out in Mr. Graham's Office and attested by Mr. Graham. This bond was executed in the Jail at Hooghly. When I deposed before the Magistrate, I said the debt from Perinb Chunder to me was 35,000 rupees; but I now find that the whole amount is 4,000 rupees more. Ramaannd Mitter, Kautee Chura Buttachargea, Tillockchund Mitter and Rajah Goopes Mohon Deh, (after he had made enquiries through his khansamah, to ascertain whether the prisoner was Rajah Pertab Chunder or not) Buggybut Chura Mitter and other respectable persons, told me that they had seen and made inquiries respecting this prisoner and were satisfied that he was the true Rajah Pertab Chunder. All these persons are alive and living in Calcutta, with the exception of Raja Gope Mohun Deb; and his khansamah, whose name I do not know, is no doubt still living in Rajah Rada Kanth Dub's service. General Allard took Gungapersad Ghose to see the prisoner at the Hooghly Jail, and Gungapersad Ghose, on General Allard's asserting, that the prisoner was Raja Pertab Chunder, advanced him some money. I do not know Ram Koomar, I never invited him to my house through Chand Mohorer; for I have no Mohorer under me of that name, either at the I'reasury or in pravate service. I took no bonds from Pertab Chunder in the name of my son or relatives, and if he does not pay me I will not sue him for this amount.

Cross-examined by Mr. Bignell .- Doctor Halliday saw Pertab Chunder at my house, and he said afterwards to Mr. Trower, that he felt perfectly satisfied that he was Pertab Chunder, the Rajah of Burdwan. Gopus Mohon Deb never, to my knowledge, visited the Rajah in my house; whether he saw him elsewhere I do not know. Rajah Gopee Mohon sent two servants to make enquiries regarding the Rajah, and by the result of their investigation into the matter, he assured me that he felt convinced that the prisoner was the real Rajah Pertab Chunder; and had it not been for the assuranceces of these respectable persons, I would never have received him into my house or advanced him the money which I have done. I believe Dr. Jackson did lend Pertab Chunder some money. Rajah Gopes Mollon Deb distinctly told me, after the report of his two servants to him, that the prisoner was Rajah Pertab Chunder, and he had no doubt on the subject.

Re-examined by Mr. Morton. - From the report of other individuals and the prisoner's own statement, I feel convinced that he is Rajah Pertab Chunder, I have lent all the money to hun in notes. I am not aware that Pertab Chunder has ever deceived me, nor have I any cause of complaint against him. I' lent money to civilians even, of which I have as little prospect of repayment as of this sum .- Hurk. Nov. 24.

5TH DAY-NOVEMBER 23, 1838,

Goopee Nath Dutt, deposed to the death and the burning of the late Rajah Pertab Chunder, zemindar of Burdwan, at Culna, on the 21st Pous 1227, B. S., he being present on the occasion, and having witnessed the funeral ceremonies of that person and saw his corpse burnt on the fuperal pile. He likewise further depos-ed, that the prisoner in this Court, who pretends to personate that individual, does not resemble him either in shape, height, features, or complexion. Deponent is the paymaster of the Rajbarry establishment at Burdwan.

Pearymohan deposed, that he, likewise, was present at the demise of the late Rajah Perteb Chunder, con of Rajah I'es Chunder, zemindar of Burdwan, and saw his corpse burnt at Guina on the Pous 1227, B. S. The prisoner who represents Pertab Childien, is gels 90 rupees a month. The late Rejah Tej Chun-der, first married Ranny Konnul Komarree, the sister of Prawn Baboo, and subsequently Rannee Bussunth Komarree, the daughter of Prawn Baboo. The leases granted to the under tenants now run thus. " In the name of Rajah Matah Chunder, by his guardian Ranpy Komul Komarree.

Anoop Sing, Jemadar of the present Rajah of Burdwan, Mataub Chunder, was examined on oath. This witness's testimony tended, like those of the preceding witnesses, to prove the death of Pertab Chunder and the burning of his corpse at Culna on the 22d Pous B. S. 1227. He added, that he was, during the life time of Rajah Pertaub Chunder, his naib jemadar, and constantly attended on his person. He never heard of Pertab Chunder having been indisposed until the illness of Pous 1227 B. S., of which disorder he died. Defendant never saw the prisoner who personates Rajah Pertaub Chunder in any of the Rajbarries; if the prisoner had gone into any of them on any occasion, deponent must have seen him. Deponent never saw any Christian gentlemen visit Rajah Pertaub Chunder on any occasion. The prisoner who alledges himself to be Rajah Pertaub Chunder, does not in any wise resemble him.

Kally Doss, Pundit of Burdwan, deposed. When deponent first saw the prisoner who personates Rajah Pertab Chunder, the late zemindar of Burdwan, he had a large black beard, and was seated on a tonjohn. followed by Hafiz Mollah and some others, and a large concourse of spectators; and the darogah of Culna, and many police peons, were keeping an eye on the of the peace. The deponent likewise was present at the decease of the late Rajah Pertab Chunder on the of so many years it would be very difficult to state whiether the person who now assumes his name and title resembles the real Pertab Chunder or not; but as far as his memory will enable him to recollect the deceased Rajah's features, he does not think the prisoner either so fair or hendsome a man as Pertab Chunder was Pertaub Chunder was the exact resemblance of the Hindoo God Kartick, and was stouter than the prisoner. Deponent did not see Pertab Chun-der die, but saw his corpse after his demise. This statement being at variance with his testimony on the subject at the Hooghly Magistrate's Court, on being eross-questioned qu' this point, he replied, that when he arrived on the spot where the Rajah's body lay, he stand about three or four cubits distance from it. There were many persons present, some holding the Rajah's hody, some repeating prayers, some shouting, some crying, in the confusion occasioned, by which this deponent cannot say whether the Rajah was dead or not; but if he was not then dead, he must have expired shortly afterwards. As deponent is a Bengally Brahmin, and the deceased was an Upcountry Kheetree, deponent bold not assist in the funeral obsequies of the deceased; there'ere he did not see the hody consumed on the pile, but retired to the house of Ram Lochun, at a short distance from whence he saw the amoke of the pile ascend the air. About three months after, the deponent heard the rabble population of Culna bruit about he place, that Rajah Pertab Clunder was not dead. Deponent might have deposed expence, on account of witnesses for the before the illoughly Magistrate that he heard the beyond what was provided for by Regulation. rumour on that very day; but he is not certain when shorter than Pertab Chunder was, and does not resem-people of Culm believed this rumour. Deponent's his him in any wise. Deponent has been for 10 or sephew, Tarranychund, who is a witness for the pro"11 years in the service of the Rajah of Burdwan, and secution, is very dangerously ill, and is not expected to survive the fever by which he is confined to his bed. He has already been once taken to the river side, but his disorder having taken a favorable turn, he was reconveyed from the river side to his house, where he still lies sick in a very precarious state.

Bissonath, Mohorrer of the Tax Department of the Magistrate's Court, deposed, that he first saw the prisoner seated on Mr. Shaw's left hand (i. e. the soi disant. Maha Rajah Pertab Chunder Dhe Raj, zemindar of Burdwan) at Ambeeka, where he was parading about the streets with a large retinue, seated on a tonjohn. Deponent had gone to Amberka in consequence of his having sent in his resignation 5 months previously. He went there by perwanna to settle his account. It was at 6 p. m. that deponent saw the prisoner parading the street as above described. Deponent accompanied Moobarukulla, late durogah of Culna, to the Rajbarry, and there saw the late Rajah Tej Chunder as he was smoking, and asked him how Rajah Pertab Chunder was? Rajah Tej Chunder replied, go and see; he is in the next room. Deponent saw him there and he was very sick. Deponent then took his leave for that day, and on the following day Lochon Hakeem attended on the invalid, and informed deponent that there was no hopes of his recovery. The remainder of this person's deposition tended to prove the death and burning of the late Rajah Pertab Chunder, and that the prisoner, who asserts himself to be that judividual, has no resemblance to him whatsoever and is not him. Amongst other descriptions he said, Pertab Chunder's two front teeth projected very much whenever he conversed with any person. Deponent was not present when the Rajah Pertab Chunder died; but saw his corpse lying on the bedding, partly in the water and the decease of the late Rajah Pertan Chunden on the partan Chunden on the might of the 21st Pous 1227, B. S. At Culna he saw Hooghly Magistrate's Court, that he, Pertan Chunden, the Rajah's corpse on the ground, but he did not see had expired in his presence. Rajah Pestab Chunder, son of Rajah Tej Chunder, the late zemindar of zillah Burdwan, the rest ca that subject being documentary.

> The further hearing of the case was then postponed until Monday next, the 26th instant at 10 n'clock. Every Saturday the proceedings of this case will be stayed in the Court, and the Judge will, instead of investigating it on those days, take up the usual current duties of the civil and criminal department in his Court.

> At the close of this day's proceedings Mr. Morton observed to the Judge, that although Government had declined to pay the expenses of Dr, Halliday, a material witness for the defence, he trusted that if the prisoner deposited the expences of that gentlemen's dawk journey to Calcutta, and back again to his station, Government would not object to make such arrangements as could prevent his sustaining any loss in consequence of his absence from the division of which he is the superintending-surgeon.

> Mr. Bignell remarked, that the Court could not entertain any application of this nature, upon which the Government alone was competent to decide. The prisoner's Counsel could, of course, address the Government upon the subject, if he thought proper to do so; but it appeared to him (Mr. B.) that the question had already been disposed of, Government having distinctly stated that it was not prepared to incur any expence, on account of witnesses for the defence, he first heard it; but it was certainly shortly after the 1.4. Mr., Curtis having acquiesced in this remark bur. demise of Pertab Chunder; but appe of the respectable. Matter asked whether the Judge would not issue a

Calcutta being deposited.

Mr. Bignell said, that it might be doubtful whether the Court could enforce a compulsory process for the attendance of Dr. Halliday. He was aware of an opinion given by Mr. Serjeant Spankie on the subject, but he believed the question had never been completely settled.

Mr. Curtis said, that it seemed to him that there would be no necessity for going into that question, as he believed Dr. Halliday would be quite willing to attend if the prisoner's agents would guarantee him against any loss he might incur.

Mr. Morton replied, that the prisoner's agents were willing to pay Dr. Halliday's travelling expences, but he did not think they could in fairness be called upon to do more. Was there any objection to Dr. II.'s evidence being taken by a Commissioner? He (Mr. Morton) understood that the Nizamut Adawlut had suggested that such a course might be pursued in the case of witnesses residing at a great distance.

Mr. Curtis said, that the letter of the Nizamut Adam. lut applied only to native witnesses, but, at all events, he considered that, on a question of identity, it would be impossible for him to receive the evidence of any witness who had not, either in his own or the Magistrate's Court, been confronted with the prisoner.

We understand that it is the intention of the prisoner's Counsel to make a formal application on Monday morning for the issue of a process compelling the attendance of Dr. Halliday, upon the deposit of his travelling expenses .- Hurk. Nov. 26.

NOVEMBER 26, 1838.

At the sitting of the Court this morning, Mr. Morton observed to the judge, that he had perused the opinion of Mr. Serjeant Spankie, referred to on Friday, and that it seemed to him, that he was entitled to a compulsory process for the attendance of Dr. Halliday, upon merely denositing the dawk expences of that gentleman; he was not, however, at present inclined to press for the issue of such a process, and wished that the matter might stand over for a short time.

Mr. Bignell said, that although he had mentioned the difficulty that might possibly be experienced in en-forcing such a process as Alr. Morton had named, it was not at all his intention to oppose the application, if the Court thought it a proper one.

Mr. Curtis observed, that Mr. Serjeant Spankie's opipion seemed to abound in doubts, but as Mr. Morton did not press his application, there was no necessity for going into the subject.

Mr, Overbeck (who had been examined before the Magistrate) being in Court as a spectator this morning, Mr. Morton asked Mr. Bignell, if he did not intend to call him as a witness, and upon heing answered in the negative, directed the attention of the Court to the circumstance, observing, that it would be but fair that this gentleman's testimony should be taken.

Mr. Bingell replied, that not conceiving Mr. Overbeck's evidence would be of any service to his case, he had not called him, and did not intend to do so, but that Mr. Marton might call him for the defence, if he wished , to have his testimony.

Mr. Mortion said, that he of course did not expect Mr. Bignell, as Council for the prosecution, to call witnesses unfavorable to his own case, but he submitted that the Judge had an option to examine any one whose evidence had been taken by the magistrate, whether that evidence were favorable to the accused or otherwise.

Mrs. Curtis have no reason for his examining Mr. who states himself to be . Overbook. That gentleman had stated on a former best of my recollection.

Calcutta being deposited.

If Mr. Morton If Mr. Morton thought the evidence important, he might call Mr. Overbeck for the defence.

> Muhebollah, daragah of Culua, deposed .- I was appointed darogali of the Culna thanah eight or nine months ago, either in the month of Maugh or Falgoon last. This is the Rajah (pointing out the prisoner.) This is Ghoeal. the mooktar of the Rajah. The next is Hopezooliah, the darogah of the Rajah. The fourth is a native of Cuina whose name I don't know. (This was Sugar Dutto.) The others I might have seen, but I do not recognize

At this part of the case it appeared, that Rajah Norrian Horry Roy, of Hurdhun, was absent, and he reported himself upon his arrival to be indisposed. He was consequently dispatched to the Civil Surgeon of the station to be examined, and reported on as to whether he was too ill to attend at the trial. The examination of the darogah was therefore postponed.

James Ersking deposed .- I have resided at Soon. mooky, in west Burdwan, since the year 1819. I have been in the habit of going to Burdwan frequently. I was superintendent of embankments there, at the latter end of 1820. I was then ordered to reside there. I saw the late Rajah Pertab Chunder there once, at the residence of the Hon'ble Mr. J. E. Elliot, but it is so long ago that I have no clear recollection of him. It was before I had the charge of the bunds. The late Rajah had gone there merely on a visit of ceremonies. I was then tosiding with Mr. Elhott.

Framined by Mr. Bignell .- At the time I had charge of the bunds, I was intimately acquainted with the late Doctor John Coulter, then Civil Surgeon at Burdwan, and I always resided at his house, whilst I was at Burd. wan. Dr. Coulier died in May 1835 I think. In the end of the year 1820, I recollect, Dr. Coulter was called to attend Rajah Pertab Chunder; it was mmediately after I took charge of the embankments. Dr. Coulter told me the invalid had a severe fever on him, and was slightly deluious, and that the young man strongly wished to be bled, and often cried bleed me, bleed 'do not mind what the people about me say. Dr. Coulter said, he would have bled him, but the people about the Rajah were much averse to it, particularly his father. . Natives have generally a prejudice against that operation. Dr. Coulter never repeated his visit to the sick Rajah. When Dr. Coulter left the young Rajah, he said he would go home and prepare some medicines for him, and whilst he was preparing them, the cavalcade with the Rajah passed the house on its way to Culna. It was in the evening; and I saw the lights of their torches. Since my arrival at Burdwan, I have been in the habit of constant intercourse with the natives of Burdwan, and I never either at the beginning of 1821, or at any time, until the prisoner's appearance in 1835 in Bancoorah, heard any rumour questioning the reality of the death of the Rajah Pertab Chunder.

Cross-examined by Mr. Montan .- Dr. Coulter was on friendly terms with the young Rajah, but I do not know whether he ever before prescribed for him ; but the young Rajah often got medicines for his friends. On the occasion I have just now particularized, Dr. Coulter was called to see him professionally. I cannot tell the duration of that visit. The young Rajah was at that time able both to speak and understand what was said to him, and he recognized Dr. Coulter. I know it was some time in December, from the circumstance of its occurring almost immediately after I had my appointment. I was then about 19 years old.

Re-examined by the Judge.—I never saw the prisoner who states himself to be Rajah Pertab Chunder, to the

The Civil Surgeon having examined the Rajah of others suchored in the stream, and thus for a few dars The Civil Surgeon having examinent the trajulus of the Rajah, on the evenings and the mornings, sat on not so severely indisposed as to be incapacitated from daily assembled in crowds of four or five thousand to attending the Court.

Moheballah was in consequence of this report recall. ed, and his depositions proceeded with. He added, I saw the Rajah of Hurdhun, at Culna. In the month of Chyt, on the 7th or 6th, I heard that a person who calls himself Rijth Pertab Chunder, of Burdwan, was coming with a large armed force to Ambuah. When I heard of this, I sent notice of it to the Magistrate of Burdwan, and I received a perwanta from the Magis-trate's office either on that day or the next, -ordering me to report daily whatever occurred there, and to state whenever any persons on the part of Prawn Baboo, and the soi dissant Pertab Chunder, would arrive there; and not to let any of them go about the city armed, and to prevent all riot and collision between the parties For four or five days after this nothing occurred, and I dispatched a person to Nyhutty to see whether any person had ar ived there, or at Chinsurah, Trepany and other places. The peon who went to Nyhutty, Bhitpara, reported that he had seen near that place, the prendo Rajah Pertah Chunder, coming with a large mob all armed with muskets, and in great state, towards Culna. When I heard of this from Ameer-Oddeon barkundauze, I sent a report of it by him to the Magistrate of Burdwin. After a few days I learnt, that this pseudo Rijah hal arrived at Sootraghur, acar atitipoor, with his rabble, and I then proceeded there, and by inquiries ascertained the information to be correct. and that his house were moored off Ramghur. A few days after this, that self-styled Rajah, in a heattleah, with some persons, and some four or five men in boats, with drawn swords and shields, went rowing all day, some four or five men with drawn swords and spears following them on the bank. I met and stopped them at Taltullah Ghaut, near Culna, and I seized the sword of one of them, Brukar Sing, and told him that the Magistrate's order to me was to prevent any aimed persons from parading the town from the other side, therefore he must not go about this city thus armed. The man began to argue with me, and the pseudo Rajah called me towards him. The thank mohorer and I went to him, and we saw this Rajah sitting in a chair on the roof of the boat, with a naked sword in his hand, and a person was every now and then bringing some liquor to him from below, which he drank. When we arrived near the Rajah, he asked us " what are your orders regarding me and my train?" I told him my orders are to preserve the peace and see that no armed persons of either party land, and it is forbiblen you to go about the country with such a large body of men armed. The Rajah replied, "to-day I have come merely to see this town with a few followers, the rest of my retinue will come here in a few days. I am now going to return to Santipoor; but when the gentlemen who are with me will arrive, I will then come here, and then proceed to Burdwan to be recognised by the Rannees there;" and the mohorer, the two jemadars, and a few burkendazes went with him a part of the way to-wards Jaulipoor, I and the mohorer in his boat, and the rest on shores and when we arrived at Hauspookerie, ! landed and returned to Culna, and the next day, at about mid-day, prosent over from Santipoor and arrived at Culna, he, with all his fellowers, and moored his boats t of the Putheerea Mobiul Ghaut. I despatched a purwana to the Magistrate of the occurrences of these two days, and after this I proceeded to the Rajah's people and told them that this is the Suddur Chaur, and many respectable women come to bathe, therefore they must either moor either above or below the ghaut, so as to keen the ingress or expess to the ghaut clear. The men keep the ingress or egfees to the ghaut clear. The men replied very well, we will tell the Rajah of this, and, remove the boats in a day or two, and they accordingly took the boats in a few days to the west side of the Tutrallah see him. His men often landed and bought their victuals, conked them, and went back again, and occasionally the Rajah went consting along, shooting, and I on these occasions went sometimes on his boats. One day I heard a great noise and tumult and firing of guns, and on enquiry learnt that the Rajah was going to land, & I then proceeded with all my peons to the Puthesfia Mohul Ghaut, and at about 10 o'clock A. M. saw the Rajah in a boat moored off shore, and about 30 or 32 of his men arrived on shore, and likewise a tonjohn and a palkee, Seeing this I and the Mohorer went on board the Rajah's boat, and saw the Rajah held a drawn sword in his hands and a servant every now and then brought him some liquor which he drank. The Rajah every now and then said, bring the red sherbut, and then bring the water, but I knew by the smell proceeding from his mouth, that it was spirits that he was diluking. I told him it is useless your opposing the legal authorities; you are expressly forbidden to land arm. ed, and you will not be permitted to land thus, and if you attempt it, you will be opposed and bring yourself into trouble. If you wish to land peaceably with a few servant, I will accompany you and see that no person molests you. The Rajah then replied, that unless his penple were allowed to accompany him, he would not land, because he was afraid to land otherwise; and he then noved the boars in a easterly direction towards Kally Khall and the 30 or 32 men walked along in the same directions on shore and about 10 or 12 boats likewise followed them, filled with his attendants. On his return from Kally Khal, the Rajah took a gun from one of his followers and fired it. I remonstrated with him, and said it was unbecoming his dignity to misbehave himself thus. The Rajah then desisted, but he ordered his people to get themselves ready, for he would go and visit the Shrine of Lall Ghee Thakoor- at Culna, and although deponent used all the arguments and means in his power to dissuade the Rajah from lan ling, still the Rajah persisted and landed with about 200 or 250 meth armed, and a mob of 200 or 250 boatmen, &c. conveying torches followed them. They disembarked at the Tultullah Ghaut, and passing Luckygunge's tank went towards the South east to the Rajah's burying ground at Culos. and deponent with some of the Police people followed this cavalcade, and saw two sepoys on guard at the doors of the Rajah's burying ground. When the soi disant Rajah arrived there, he asked who are these When the men, and Preplied that these are sepoys on duty at the burying-ground of the Burdwan Raj. The soidisant Rajah ordered one of his followers to snatch the muse, kets from the men on guard. I then endeavoured to dissuade him from these rush attempts and told him that it would lead to a serious riot, and with difficulty persuaded him to desist from this foolish frenk and turn to go through the village. I said if you go through the village, I said if you go through the village, the streets being parrow, what with your attentions dants and the speciators, serious injury will ensue, and prevailed on him to take the road skirting the town on the banks of the river; and on arrival at Juggernath's temple, he took the road towards the Gnaut and returned to the boars. After I had seen him on board, I sent; in conformity to my orders, a report of the day sproceedings to the Magistrate at Burdway, and Pstood with with peops at the Chaut to see that this Rajah this not land again with his armed fullowers. A few days after Designer Palak, the Jemadar of the Kunchunagur thaba; arrived at Culas with 25 Burkundates and brought a purwant to assist me. I had this purwant read to the Rajah in his boat; the motive of which was to prevent a breach of the peace. I'am not sure whether I went on Chain, were some boats were moored to the ashore, the the boat to have the purwant rend to the Rejah, or if I stayed on shore and sent one of my man, but Dusserut with the Magistrate. They went the next morning to Paluk, I believe, was one of them that went on board and read the purwans to the Rajah. The Rajah gave an ambiguous reply, which I do not remember, but it is inserted in my report to the Magistiate of Burdwan. I am not certain whether the thana mohorer or my assistant wrote this report. Soon after this, Raming, acting iemadar, arrived with 30 Burkundazes and a purwana disperse the armed assembly. This purwana I had orders to disperse the armed assembly. This purwana was likewise explained to the Rajah and his men by me, and the darogah of Santipore and of the neighboring villages came with some Burkendaze; and the girdwaree hoats, to assist me to disperse the concourse. The Darogali went away that day; but the jemadar and the men remained with me 3 or 4 days; they failed in their endeavours to disperse the mob. After this the Foujdarry nazer, Assad Ullee, came with some burkun dazes to my aid. When the nazir had arrived I was on my way towards Mr. Shaw's boat, where I was going to pay my respects to him. Hearing of the nazir's arrival, I could not see Mr. Shaw and returned to see the nazir, whose purwana was to disperse the assembly of the Raja, and to take him to the Magistrate at Houghly. The nazir, I, and some burkundazes, went on board of the Rajah's budgerow. We saw this Rajah and the Hurdun Rajah there. This Rajah took the purwana in his hand and deponent thinks the Burdwan Rajah did the saine, and the people who could read the purwana; but who made out the Purwana to the men I cannot tell. The soi disant Rajah said, these men are not fighting men ; they are my servants and followers ; they have come with me from Calcutta, and I will not disperse them by your order, nor can I give any reply to this purwana. Now, Mr. Shaw, my Attorney, is arrived, I will consult with him and let you know the result in the evening. I said to the nazir, let you, I, and some burkundazes go to the Rajah's house. We, together with Geundo jemadar, Goundo peon, Shamchurn peon, Neamychin chokyder, Sumboo Lolla, Tyaed Nunces and others, whose names I do not remember, went on shore near the budgerow to take the Rajah's reply. The Nazir remained on shore and I and the others went on board a hoat with intention to go on the Rajah's budgerow, but the people on board said they were forbidden to let so many armed men come on board the Rajah's boat. I then desired the Rajah's men to let me go with an order from the Magistrate, as I must carry it into effect. Hearing this the people from the boat called me. I then went with my men on board the Rajah's boat, and asked the Rajah's reply to the purwana. Deponent saw Mr. Shaw and the Hurdun Rajah there likewise. The purwana was first read by Hurroo Chunder, the pseudo Rajah's rooonshy, and as he could not see clearly, Lilla Sumboo read it. On hearing the contents of the purwana, Mr. Shaw told Joynaram, his sucar, who explained to me, " these men are the Rajah's servants and attendants, they had come with him from Calcutta; they as well as I will go with the Rajah to Burdwan to be re cognized by the Ranees. The others said, these men are going, it appears by this account, with the sanction of Government, to see the Rances at Burdwan, how can they be prevented? and as we were leaving the Rajah's boat, Mr. Shaw desired me to send a person to call the nazir who had returned to the house. Hearing this I went to the thanah, related what had occured to the nazir, and as I was greatly fatigued and felt indisposed. I ratired to my dwelling and the nazir took my assistant with him to make a report of these proceedings to the magistrate. One or two days after the pazir's arrival, I learnt that the Magistrate had also come to Culna, and I went and waited on them that night and saw the Ma-

the riverside, where the Magistrate asked me where is the Rajah's budgerow? I pointed it out to him from the shore. The Magistrate desired me to hard the Rajah's budgerow and desire him to come ashore. I did so and told them that the Magistrate had come with the military. They neither replied nor came. The Magistrate then desired me to go on board and fetch the Rajah, and whilst I was going in a paunshway towards the Ra- : jah's boat, the firing commenced by the sepoys. I was to the west of the firing party. I shouted out to the na-air to cease firing, whilst I was going to the Rajah's budgerow, and when I arrived there after the firing. I could not find the Rajah there; but I saw a Hindoo lying there wounded, and as I was proceeding to search for the Rajah, I saw the Rajah of Hurdhan in another boat. I subsequently observed a person swimming across the river. Fakeer Lall and another jemadar, with some sepoys and burkundazes, were on guard on the other side, and I called out to them to seize the man who was swimming across, and they replied that they had captured the man, who, on my and the Magistrate's artist, turned out to be the sol-dissant Rajah, and we brought him on shore to Culua, guarded by the sepoys. The other men were in the interim captured by the sepoys and the other men, and the magistrate from that day commenced searching the hoats, in which the other gentlemen, and even Mr. Shaw assisted, and found the various arms; and two pistols, three or four muskets, and seven or eight a swords were found in the Rajah's boat, and the others. in the other boats, which had accompanied the. Rajah.

Cross-examined .- Ghosaul accompanied the pseudo Rajah. The Rajah was in the tonjon and Ghosaul in the palkee. The Burdhun Rajah said, when captured. I only came to see the Rajah, what have I done. He could not give any account of Pertab Chunder at the time. There were upwards of 300 arms of various redescriptions found in the boats. This Rajah expressed a wish to have the proceedings of the mazir read before his mooktar Ghossaul. There was an English letter in the proceedings, which was filed in the Rajah's proceedings at Culna. When I went with the purwana of the nazir to arrest the soi-disant Rajah and forward him to the Magistrate at Hooghly, I was afraul to execute my orders, because this Rajah had many retainers by him, and I dreaded that if I proceeded to extremities, a breach of the peace would occur. The further examination of this witness was postponed till 10 o'clock, A. M., and the Court broke up at about 5 o'clock P. M .- Hurk , Nov. 28,

NOVEMBER 26, 1838.

Mohebollah, cross-examined by Mr. Shaw. The soi, disant Rajah only landed once at Culna; on another day, he wished to go on shore, but, at my advice, he desisted from his intention. He was altogether, I helieve, either 18 or 19 days moored off Culna; but Lam. not certain of this. On the day that the soi-disant Rajah landed, he told me he would go and see the cityeand visit the shrine of Lallgee, but what his real mo-tives were, I cannot say. I was examined regarding, this affair at Oulna and at the Calcutta Police office. I. there deposed, that there was no affray, between the parties because I prevented a collision between them. That part of the order which forbade the soi disaut Rajah's landing with an armed retinue, he did not obey. He did obey my order, which forbade his entry into the city with his followers. He disobeyed the purport of the first purwana, which must be in the file of the proceedings. This purwana was read to the pseudo Rajah, but who read it I do not remember; yet this I. gistrate, the Doctor, the Clergyman, the Captain, and a lieutenant. The Magistrate interrogated me and when cocasion, were read to, this Rajah, and yerhally explained to him and his followers. The date of the first pursee the assembly; you stay here. There were some sepoys wans I do not recollect. In one of the purwanas semed multitude. I think, on the first occasion, he allowed himself to be dissuaded from coming with his tumultous body of men, and that the actual landing of them happened subsequently; but on this point I am not certain ; the Magistrat's proceedings will show. I can understand the records of my proceedings in Persian, when read to me, but those of others I do not. I have but an imperfect knowledge of the Persian tongue, and I cannot converse in it Myr ports to the Magistrate, relative to these proceedings, were made in the first instance in Persian, but subsequently, I believe, an order earme to forward them in Bengally. The date of the substitution of Bengally in lieu of Persian, must be recorded at the thannah, but I do not remember it. my order to disperse the assembly, and it would be obey- shore or the river. ed. On that I replied, that I had no power to do so, as it rested with the nazir. The nazir went first to this ed from his niring excursion, you left Culna with a na, and subsequently after the Magistrate's arrival. The time that the nazir and I went on board this Rajah's budgerow, I saw the Rijth sitting on a chairin the budgerow. This Rajah said, that after consulting Me Shaw, he would give a reply to this purwannh; this reply was given shortly after dusk. This reply, which was verbal, I communicated to the nazir immediately afterwards at the thannah. The date of this communication I cannot remember, but it was on the day on which the nazir had arrived. The Magistrate arrived a day or two after the nazir. Mly report to the nazir was first intimation, he received of the prisoner's intention, and on this he acted, and reported this reply to the Burdwan Magistrate. On that night, Joynaran Babno went with an English letter frem Mr. Shaw to the Magistrate, and desired the agzir to forward it to him. The nazir replied, that he had come to disperse the assembly and not to be the channel of written com-munication between Mr. Shaw and the Magistrate, therefore he would not receive it; and if Mr. Shaw wished it, he might send it to the Alagistrate by dawk, The letter was from one European to another, but whether it was written in English or Parsian, I cannot say. There might be a Persian letter brought by Joynarrain Chunder, written by the Rajah to me and the nazir, and read by the latter in my presence; but I have no remembrance of it. The two letters sent by this prisoner, between the arrival of Mr. shaw and the Magistrate, were kept by the nazir, and whather he delivered them I cannot say. He merely, at the time he recoived them, eremarked, that he must report this circumstance to the Magistrate, as he was incompetent to pass any order on their purport. There was a gun in Mr. Shaw's boat, and a few shots and a little powder was found in one of the beats; but in which boat, and in what quantity, I cannot remember, nor the date on which this Rajah landed at Culna with his retinue; but I reported this circumstance on that very day. I was called before the Magistrate, to explain why I did not transmit the report of the Rajah's landing instantly as, it occurred. I made the report on that very day, but when it was dispatched I am not aware; but two days could not posably have intervened. I must have sent it off that very day. I am acquainted with Peary Lall Baboo ; he resides at Culna. He is not a servent of Government. I am not aware whether here a salaried servent of the Rev. Mr. Alexander. Why he went to arrest Mr.

it was stated, that there was no objection to this person | Shaw, he can hest answer. The respectable merchants coming to Culna; but he must not enter it with an residing in Culnagunge are-Thakour Doss Day, Ram Mohun Ghosaul, Callychurn Chutterjea. Issur Chunder Chowdry has a shop there, but he resides at Ranah Ghaut. I was afraul to attempt to execute the Magistrate's orders, and consequently did not endeavour their execution, but with the exception of my own apprehension, there was no forcible resistance made to my carrying my orders into effect. On the evening, however, I proceeded with my armed men to the Rajah's bauleah. I was prohibited from going there. Who gave the orders I do not know, but the opposition was made by this Rajah's teve, an order guard. Ultimately I did go on board with four or five. The date of the burkendazes. This is the sum total of the resistance Persian, must that I am aware of.

Questioned by the Rajah of Hardhun, I made a report The thannah modurer, Mahamed Ally, wrote some of of your arrival on that day, but its purport I cannot rethereports, my writer, Mahamed Asoph, wrote the call to memory. I reported to the Magistrate of your best others. Mahamed Ally is a witness for the defence, he ing in a boat, and he arrested you. Whether your boat others. Mahamed Aliy is a winess for the defence, he may be a made and he arrested you. Whether your boat has been discharged from his situation; and Mahamed was shoved off from the pseudo Rajah's boat or not, I Asoph is also at Hoogly, he accompanied me here, cannot state; but when taken, your boat was on the On the might I saw Mr. Shaw in the Rajah's hudgerow river. I am not aware whether any aims were found in John that I had no cause of complaint against this Rajah. I had no cause of complaint against this Rajah no cause do not think I said so; if I did, I certainly have no re-boat. Whose retainers they were I cannot tell. I neicollection of it, nor whether Mr. Shaw told me to give ther saw you lead or cause any disturbance either on Questioned by Ghosaul. After the Rajah had return. mooktarnama from this Rajah to Burdwan. I made a report of your departure to the Magistrate, but I never retarded you or any of your party. I never gave any advices to you. I merely said that if you or the Rajah wish to go singly, or with a few attendants to Burdwan. I will see you conveyed there under the Police's Protection; but I cannot permit you either to land with armed retainers or proceed with them to Burdwan.

Questioned by Hafiz Futecollah. The day the Rajah was at Santipoor, you, Moolchund, and others, came to me at Cuina, informed me that you were all the Rejah's men, and asked whether any purwana had been received by me regarding the coming of the Rajah to that village. I replied, that a purwannah regarding the Rajah had been received, but not on the point they wished to know. You never questioned me as to where the Rajah's hoats were to be moored on the day of his arrive al at Culua, and I never indicated any spot for you to bring them to, I explained all the purwanas to and all the chief men about the Rajah, but they were not all obeyed by you and your party.

Govind Sing, burkendaz, deposed to the pseudo Rajah's arrival at Culua, accompanied by a large consourse of armed men in boats, with great pomp, streamers flying, and other musical instruments beatkettle-drums ing, &ce. &cc. The rest of this deponent's evidence was but a mere confirmation of the depositian of the former witness.

Previous to the examination of this witness, the Hurdhun Rejah filed vakalutnama, in the name of Baizah Hossain, a vakeel of this Court. Whilst Mr. Shaw was cross-examining Mohebollah, Mr. Curtis suggested, that perhaps it would be more regular if Mr Morton, who is the Counsel of the principal prisoner, were to put the questions. This opinion he expressed in accordance with the prevailing practice in the Zillah Courts, where there are both validels and a mookta's retained in a suit, in which case it is usual for the valued alone to put these questions to the witness; the same as the practice in the Supreme Court, where the Attorney suggests the questions to the Countel and he puts them to the witness. Mr. Shaw imagined at first, that Mr. Curtis had objections to the contrained life examination, and declined to continue it, akinough Mr. Martin remarked, that from Mr. Martin remarked, that facts of what had occurred at Culna, he had taken upon himself to examine this witness, and that both he and Mr. Shaw acted under one mocktarnama; caming with guns, cannons, balls, and a large force and it was not until Mr. Bignell had explained the practice of the Mofus-el Courts and the Judge's reason for making the objection, and the Judge had assured Mr. Shaw's conservationing the witness, that Mr. Shaw resumed Rajak the magistrate wished to see the conservationing the witness, that Mr. Shaw resumed his queries to him.

Mr. Biga II informed Mr. Morton, that under the impression that the case for the prosecution would not be closed until the 15th proximo, the Magistrate had fixed the day for the attendance of the witness for the detence for that date; but as it was not probable that the prosecution would be prolonged to that period, he suggested to Mr. Morton, that if he would give him the names of 30 or 40 of the defendant's principal witnesses. the Judge would fix an earlier day for their attendance in this Court, so that they might not be delayed in opening the defence. Mr. Morton replied, that Mr Grisham knew best what witnesses were required by the defence, and he would mention this circumstance to him.

Pearymohan Lalla deposed. I only know the sio disuit Rajah and none of the other defendance. In the pourth of Stabon 1241, the pseuda Raith, a Brahmin. and a kidmutgar, came to my house and said, that they came to see the idels. They remained one month at my house and I reported their arrival to the village thana. They said to me, you will hear of a very wonderful event shortly in this world, but they did not enter into any par ticular detail of what this miracle was to be; and after they had resided one month with me, they abruptly went through my garden and disappeared, and I subsequently heard that they had proceeded to Baranuggur. I next saw hum on the 1st of Bysack of the present year at midday. I was standing at the door of my house there, when I heard a great shouting and several people exclaimed that the Rajah was coming. I then went to see the cause of this uproar, and when I arrived at the river side, I saw the pseudo Rajah sitting on a budgetow, wishing a naked sword; and a boat went ahead in which people were bearing ketile-drums and other musical institutents, and followed by an armed retinue of about 5,000 men. He moored his boat at the ghaut where dead bodies were burnt, and began to thicaten the daics gah by shaking an undrawn sword over him, as the darcgal stood in the river with his cloth tied round his neck and held by his 2 hands. This Rajah told one of his men to call the darogab to him, and a Brahmin called out darogab, darogab, the Rajah calls you. The darogah came and they took him upon their boate and carried him as far as the Satgurchea ghaut, and there landed him. The darogah returned to the thana, and this Bajah to Santipoor. Ramdeen Jemadar went in a pannshay to the Rajah at Santipoor, and we retired to our house The next day this Rajah returned with 80 boats and 5,000 men, beating the kettle-drums and firing guns, and anchored off the Putturrea ghaut. The Rajah staid there 18 days. One day the Rajah went to see the Rajah's burying ground, the darogah was near the burying ground. There were 5,000 spectators and 2 men on each side of the Rajah's conveyance, and the Rajah held an undrawn sword in his hand, and 200 persons armed with swords and fire arms and 500 with clubs. &c. followed this Rajah, crying out mar, mar, (heat, beat.) The darogah and the peons stood with their hands in supplicating postures, with their clothes yound their neck, entreating them to desist from their excursions and accompany them to Burdwan. On that day there were A or 5 sepoys on gaurd at the burying ground. This Rajah seeing them, saul who are these, and being told they were sepoys on gaurd at the bury ing ground, said anatch their muskets and bring them here. The daringsh then cried out for mercy's sake forbear. The Rajah then desisted and returned to his mate, and the day before the arrival of the Magistrate, 4. 11

I heard it bruited by the populace, that Mr. Shaw wa coming with guns, cannons, balls, and a large force, airled by the Government, parwana, to place this Rajah forcibly on the guddee of Burnwan. The next day a Police peon informed me, that the magistrate wished to see me. He took me to the clergymen's house, were I saw him and the magistrate. The magistrate said to me, the pseudo Rajah, I hear, once lived in your house, you must depose to the circumstance. I denied this at first; but being threatened, I commenced my depositiou; and whilst under examination, Mr. Shaw's palkee passed the place; and as there were no police peonsthere, the magistrate ordered me to go with a bearer and bring Mr. Shaw to him; and Mr. Shaw obeyed the call, and when he came to the magistrate, the magistrate sent for the darogah, and when he arrived, Mr. Shaw was consigned to his custody.

Cross examined by Mr. Morton. I saw no disturbance of the peace created by this Rajah during his stay off Culna. I only saw him land at Culna once. There were two or three muskets carried by the Rajah's men. On the day he landed, there was some firing after his return to the boats.

Komul Roy, deposed as to what transpired on the day the pseudo Rajah landed at Culna, in confirmation of the evidence of Maiboollah, darogah, and Govindo, burkundaze.

Fakeer Lall Paunda, deposed. I recognize the pseudo Rajah, the Hurdhun Rajah, Rada Ghosaul and Futtoollah. I arrived in Culna with Dussuret Patuk and 24 burkundauze from Burdwan, on the 11th of Bysack, where I first saw these four persons. We were deputed to aid the Culna darogah, and brought a purwanua, which the mohurer explained to the pseudo Rajah. This deponent followed in the wake of the other deponent togarding the occurrences of what had transpired at Culna; but it appears that he had arrived at Culna; after the landing of the Rajah at Culna, and that he had never seen the Rajah himself, until he was artested on the Santipore side of the river on the bank he was on duv, on the day of the capture and dispersion of the party. I'his witness added, that previous to the firing, some boats took flight; that on the firing in the air, the Rajah jumped into the river, and he arrested him near the binks of it. At the time of his arrest, he was up to his chin standing in the river, trembling. Deponent and Nundoo Lall took him out of it gave the magistrate notice of his capture, and that gentleman, together with the others, came over in a boat and took the prisoner to Culoa and made him over to the darogah of that place.

Nundoo Lall, burkundaze, alluded to by the last witness, confirmed his evidence of the capture of the pseudo Rajah in the river, on the Santipore side, on the day in which his tumultuous assembly was dispersed by the magistrate of Burdwan, aided by the military force. He likewise recognised Narrain, Hurry Roy, the Rajah of Hurdhun, Radakissen Ghosaul, Hafez Futteoollah and Sagur Dhon, as being amongst the followers of the sistant Rajah on the occasion of his stay at Culnz.

WEDNESDAY .- Nov. 28, 1838.

On Thursday the 22d instant, as the Court was breaking up, the Reverend Mr. Hill, of Berhampore, came in, and addressing the Judge stated, that he here a lieved he was in possession of evidence which would set the question of the prisoner's identity at rest. Mr. Curtis observed, that in that case he had better communicate with the Counsel for the prosecution. Mr. Hill, it appears, then communicated to Mr. Bignell the name of a witness resident on his missionary premises at Berhampore, who was immediately stimmoned, and who was this-day produced.

who was this day produced.

Rankissen Meckerjee, a Christian, sworn on the Bible, after some questions from the Judge as to his knewledge

of it, and the nature of an oath. When I was in caste | my father's name was Gungadhur. My name was always Ramkissen; but I was once called Keerpund. My house is in Kasseea Dhunga, in Zillah Nuddea, and my age is thirty. (The Judge desired him to look well at the prisoner, which he did.) I know the prisoner exceedingly well ; I knew him four or five years before he came out with this story of his being a Rajah. The prisoner's name is Kisto Lal. His brothers name was Gour Lal. His father's name is Sham Lal Bramacharee. His brother died in Rada Kissen Bysack's house, at least I heard so. During these four years I was with him every now and then from time to time. About two years ago, in the month of Assur, I think, the prisoner first raised this report of his being a Rajah in Burdwan. He had two brothers, Gour Lal and Roop Lal, whose houses were in Kishnaghur. I once during the four years, I have mentioned, went to their house. I had a great deal of conversation with them, and they proposed to me, that we should go out together into the world as fakeers and travel through various countries. The prisoner was during this time eating and snoking gunja, and the conversation was chiefly with the elder brother, Gour Lal. The prisoner, however, remarked that he was going to make a charm. In Jait, the prisoner's brother, Gour Lal, came to my house and eat some fruits and drank same milk. He reminded me of the conversation we had had about turning fakirs and travelling, and asked if I was ready to go. I said I was. He remained all night in my house. Early in the morning, he told me to come with him, and we went forth. We went first to a village called Burles, and afterwards to Kalikapore, then to Deewangunge, after that to Culna, to the house of a Goosien named Baneemadub, where we put up for the night. The next day we went to a place called Para. and put up at the house of a great man called Sreekunt. zemindar. We then went to another village, the name of which I do not recollect. In this way we went from village to village, till we came to one called Goondereeya. We remained there about two or three months in the house of two brothers Gour Huri and Kisto Huri. then went to a Thakoor Barri, where we staid with one Gourdeal Bancerjee. We were afterwards some months in Laboursa, and then we returned to Gwarri. We there heard from Shamlal, the prisoner's father, that the prisoner had gone to a village called Mussa, in the district of Burdwan, Gour Lal then said let us go to Mussagong I sad, I wanted to go home; and some of my relations afterwards came and took me home in a pansway. I remained two or three days at home. Afterwards Gour Lal came to me at night; he did not come to the house, but wated for me on the road. A man of the name of Goluk Mundul came to my house and told my relations that I would again be taken away, as the Goosen had returned. Shortly afterwards I went out and met Gour Lal, and told him that I would make my escape and come to him in the morning. I did so and went on board a boat with him to Malteepore in the Culna thanah. I remained there two or three days, and then went to Mussagong the village of Mussa) to the house of Buddun Chowdree. We went and found the prisoner there with two or three other men, his chalas (religious pu ils.) Their names are Gunees Banoorjee, Teelook Chuad chowdree, Mudden Mun Mutena, thus named by the prisoria, from his being always drunk. The prisoner was in great state, with a fine carpet, a person punkering him and sitting on a tukta posh. His disciple. 1 cluk Chund, was preparing gunja with a daw. The primer had on red clothes, such as red Bramacharees wear, His face had become very thin. His hair was very long and hung down to his breast. Buddun Chowdree remained inside the house. The prisoner remained in the centre house which consisted of three mehals. We remained there about two months, and Gour Lal said, "Listen; let us go with my browler to Gwarri." Buddun Chowdree gave the prisoner bearers and a palkee and sent him off; but we did not go to Gwarri. The prisoner Kistololl said, I will go to Burdwan. I said, "very well, I will go with you." After that I went with him towards Burdwan. On the road there is a village called Burseeya. We there remained in the house of a tamooli during the night His name I do not know. Next morning we went on towards Burdwan, and entering the city, went from place to place, visited the gardens to the north of a large tank and other parts of the town. No one would give us a lodging, and the prisoner went to the door of the Raj Barti, called the Barah Dwarri. The people asked him, " Gossain, why are you come here? and told us to go to the Mosaffir Khana where travellers are fed. From thence we went to Tail Mairee to the house of Juggut Mittre, a collectory Mahurrer, who gave us food and every thing never-ary. The prisoner said, that he had formerly been acquainted with Juggut Mittre when he (the prisoner) was in Comedwar, and they talked over their former acquaintance. We remained there some days and then went to Kinchinuggar, to the house of a woman named Tara, who waited on him. We remained there two days or so, and then returned to Mussa. We saw that his brother Gour Lal was there, in Buddun Chowdree's house, drinking and going on with woman as usual. Gour Lal then proposed to me to go back to Gwarree with Kistololl. We went accordingly to Malteepore, where we remained in the house of one Ruttun Chatterjen. After a few days I became very ill, an I the prisoner preten led to be able to cure me by giving me the water with which he had washed his feet to drink; and also told me that he was a new incarnation of the deity, and that he could do any thing and would make me well immediately. He often talked thus and used to say, you will see some of these days what I shall do in the world. I got a little better after a while, and Rutton Chaterjea provided a dingy, in which the pusoner, Ruttun Chaterjea and, I think, Jagardhur, went to Gwarri to the house of the prisoner. He was welcomed by his father, and I here got well. He gave me a blanker and a hookah, and an old piece of broad cloth, and I went home. My relations were very angry with the prisoner for having taken me from my home, and I determined to abandon this course of life and to commence triding, and took some money and went to buy materials, at my uncle's house at freeconoth, with the intention of trading, While there, the pusoner's brother, Gour Lat, came in serrch of me. He learnt from one Dinonath Gungoolee where I was. He called me and I went to see him at the house of Doorga Mungle Dass Gour Lal here tried every thing in his power to induce me to join them again; said my fortune should be made, that they had got a plan which would astonish the world. At last I consented and found that Gour Lal had obtained the same influence over a number of other respectable men as he had over me. Among them were, I know, Hajra, Pamsoonder, Tarkabaggis, Dinonath Gungolee, Doniga Mungle Dass, &c., who were devoted to him, and considered him as a deity. We all collected together and used to get drunk, and to sit continually with women, and practice all sorts of obscentty, until the Treekhand people rose against us and said we should no longer pollute their village, and Doorga Mungle's sect, all consulted about depriving him of his caste. Doorga Mungle Dass's Gooroo is still in Treekhund, and knows all these things. Doorga Mungle on this said, that he must keep some servants for his own protection, but the villagers felt some superstitious scruples about touching Gour Lal, and they were allowed to remain in the vis-lage. After this I went home, and Gour Lal went away somewhere else by himself. The prisoner was at this time in Baranagore. Gour Lal came and took me, Doorga Mungle Dass, Ramchunder and Dinonath Gungoolee to Gwarfi. On the road to Gwarri we passed my house, and we went in. We remained there one night, and next morning went on to Gwarri to the prisoner's house. His father Shamloll told us, that Kisto Leal was at Baranagore in the 24-pergunnahs. He told him for some time. I, and Doorga Mungle, and hikhausama Konaee Nace and Nuboo Mullick and Gour Lal all got into a boat and went to Baranagore. On arriving there, at the house of a woman who goes by the name of Nedhee's grandmother, we found the prisoner, Kistololl, who had got very tat, had a beard and long hair all about him. He had an English mug for dimking out of, and all the women of loose character in the place used to assemble round him, and they used to drink together. There is a hone of Raja Greeschunder's in that place (Baranagore) where the prisoner once went, but the Raja drove him out on seeing the crowd of women with him We remained some time in Baranagore. Ramchund Banerjee, Kali Chutterjee, and others there, used to come to visit the prisoner. Doorga Mungle and Gour Lal, tried to get the prisoner to go home, but the women of the place were very unwilling to let him go and we returned alone, leaving Gour Lal with the prisoner. We went home. The prisoner and his brother returned home also about a month or so afterwards. Gour Lal then went to Sreekhund with Sagur Dhur, one of the prisoners present. I also went and joined them at the house of Doorga Mungle. (Sour Lal asked Doorga Mungle to come and pay his respects to Kistololi.

Duoiga then sent Sagur Dhur and Nubdoo Mullick to Gwaree to fetch the pusoner. They brought him back in the boat and fastened the boat at the Dewangunge Gnat. They then sent information to Gour Lal of the pri-oner's approach. Gour Lall then took a number of men with swords and a sort of retinue to bring him with honour to Sreekhund; but he said Dewangunge was the best place, and he would remain there and wait for a lucky day. Next day I joined him, and we then went to Cutwa. His people in Dewangunge gave out that he was an Avatar, and in Cutwa it was proclaimed that a man had come whose body was made of gold. At Cutwa he lived in the house of a prostitute of the name of Hara. There was a great noise made about him at Cutwa great crowds assembling to see him. I, a seeing this, went back to Sreekhund, and a few days afterwards returned to Cutwa. Doorga Mungle then came with a palkee, but whether he or his brother first got into it I don't recollect. There was an enormous concourse of people and a great tumasha, and we all went with prisoner and his brother to Doorga Mungle's house at Sreekhund, where the prisoner remained for about a month. The people in Sreekhund jeered at them for coming back after having set out with such boastings, and we were discon tented and spoke to the prisoner, who said " be quiet, wait a little, and you shall see a tumasha. I shall get the Buidwan guddee and you shall all have great wealth. The two brothers used to be constantly consulting together. At last Doorga Mungle gave a palkee and bearers, and money for road expences, and the prisoner started for Burdwan in order to commence his great attempt. Previous to going, he said you shall soon see something. You shall not be long in Learing of my being a Rajah. I did not accompany the prisoner, but he alterwards told me he went wraight to Golab Bigh. His younger brother Gour Lal, frequently said, "we shall soon hear now of his being Rajab," and the people at Sreekhund, where Gour Lal and I were, were all full of the new report of Pertab Chund's reappearance. I heard from Gour Lal, that the prisoner had gone to Kinchinuggur, where he lived in one Kumul Race's house, and that many people came to see him. I afterwards heard that he had gone to Bishenpoor. Gout Lalthen said to Doorga Mungle, Kouaes, Suroop and myself, "come, my brother has become a Rajah, let us go to Bishenpoor and join him." We then all set off to Bishenpoor. On the road, Doorga Mungle and Unoop began to hesitate, saying, that it seemed a very doubtful matter, and at last they got alarmed and tao away. I remained alone with Gour Lal, and was fettered like many others by the influence he had acquired over me. When we approached | us all to go there and bring him back as he had not seen, Bissuppoor, we spread a report that a Nawaub had come. We went to Jamkooree to the house of Rajah Jey Singh, where Gour Lal had some consultation with the Raish as to the best means of gaining possession of the Raj of Burdwan. We then went on to Bishenpore, and intelligence was sent to the prisoner that a free d was approaching. The prisoner then sent burkundaz s with torches to being Gour Lal. We arrived near Bishenpoor at night, and the whole population came out 'o see the Nawaub as he now called himself. The burkundazes cleared the way with great shouts of the N. . waub is coming, the Nawaub is coming, and we enter d Bishenpore in great state. Here the two brothers me's Khittermohun Singh, the Bishenpore Rajah, made over Radhakissen Ghosal, a servant of his, to the defendent, to advance his fortunes. One of the prisoners at il. bar is Radhakissen Ghosal. Khittermohun Singh then sent Gour Lat to the Nawaub, as he was now caller, to live concealed at his son-in-law's in Doolee, in order that their proceedings might not attract to much attention. There had been some consultation regarding this step between the prisoner, Khittermolun, Gour Lal and Radhakissen. I went with Gour Lal and occasionally came over to Bissenpore to see the prisoner. During the prisoner's residence there, Mr. Elliott came and sent for the prisoner, and asked him who he was. The prisoner soner replied " all the world know who I am." Mr. Elliott said, you must tell me yourself who you are. On this be said I am Alah Shah, Fakeer, Mr. Elliot said if you are a Fakeer what business have you with all these people? The prisoner replied. I am in some fear of my life. I am afraid of Purran Baboo. Mr. Elliott asked what he had to fear from Purran Baboo. and told him to leave the place. The prisoner asked Mr. Elliott to give him some assistance to enable him to do so. Mr. Elliott asked why he should give him assistance, and told him to be off. Mr. Elliott then returned to Bancoora. The two brothers then had a consultation as to the course they should pursue, and at last we all set off for the Jungles with about 100 armed men. We moved about from house to house and place to place until we came to Berooa, where the Rajah Gournarain's Gooroo lives. We stopped at the house of this Gooroo. The Goorgo sent him to the Rajah, and supplied him with clothes, money, &cc. Here the prisoner, with the assistance of the Rance, first commenced his a sumption of the dignity of a Raja, hiring servants and getting tich caps and clothes. The prisoner was constantly urging the Rance to supply him with troops and money, to enable him to seize upon the guddee of Burdwan : after this we all marched towards Burdwan, with a great number of burkundazes and others, and an intention of plumdering the city of Burdwan. Near Bancoora, the prisoner sent a letter to the Magistrate, stating, that he was the Rajah of Burdwan, and that he was goining to recover his Raj. The Magistrate issued orders that he was not to enter the city; but he came, notwithstanding, with two or three hundred men, and went on to the Balguoma Chuttee, where Mr. Elliott apprehended the prisoner, his brother Gour Lal, myself, and a great many more. I that night escaped and went to Calcuta, where I me Radhaki-sen Ghosal, who had previously escaped and had come down to Calcuta to do his best to release Kisto Lal. While there, Radhakissen made Hurris Baunerjea a mookhtar, and sent him to Bancorra to assist the prisoners. I went with him, and Radhaki-sen also accompanied us. We began to correspond with the prisoners in jail. Some one gave information, and we were all seized and imprisoned. I was sentenced to three months' confinement for correspon bing with the pilsoner while he was in juil. After my release I wandered about until a clergyman at Cutwa took hold of me, tanght. me to read the lible, baptized me, and sent me to the Musion at Berhampore, where I now and.

Cross-examined by Mr. Morton .- I was in no employment when I first knew Kisto Lal. I lived on the the prisoner and his brother, inveigled and ruined me.

I was never the servant of Kisto Lal or Gour Bal. On the contrary I have given money to their mother. The prisoner called himself an avatar and imposed upon us ; we obeyed him as a superior and as a divinity. I am now a Christian catechist under the Rev. Mr. Hill. I have been nine months in that situation. I gave Mr Hill a written narrative of my life when I joined him, which has been sent to Europe for publication. I had had the scriptures for many months before I was allowed to exercise my present functions. It is now 18 months since I was baptised at Cutwa. When I was in prison at Bancoora, I gave in a written paper to the Ma gistrate, stating the whole of the oircumstances. I wanot a witness. I told the daroga that I would disclose everything. The daroga told the Magistrate, who sent for me, and made me write the statement on paper. All the witnesses in the case pending before the Magistrate had there been examined It is now about eight years since I first knew Listo Lal, four years before he commenced this deception. It is about four or five years since the prisoner first commenced this. I have kept no account of time, and cannot speak more positively. I know the places where we went and the people who knew us. I recollect how long we remained at each place where we had anything particular to do. Beni Madhub Gosain is a man well known in Cutwa. Hehas recognised me since as having accompanied Gou-Lai. I have no knowledge of years or dates. I dinot know how many years it is since we were seized at Bancoota. It was in the month of Magh in the cold weather of some year that the prisoner was seized. I was apprehended in one of the hot months, Cheyt or Boysack. I recollect we suffered much from heat. I canno, say how many months elapsed from my seeing the prisoners at Baranagore to seeing him at Sreekand. There were frequently intervals of two months and one month, and sometimes more, in which I did not see the prisoner. The money with which I traded was given me by my mother. It was obtained by selling some lakheraj land. The prisoner used to talk of obtaining the Roj, to me and to Sugur Dhur, to Ramchand Muttre, Doorga Mungle Doss, Roopchand Dust, Nuboo Mullick. He did not give this out publicly, only to those on whom he could depend. When seized at Bancoora, I gave my name as Kirpaund. This name I had assumed by the advice of Gour Lal and the prisoner. The Magistrate discovered the talsehood, and punished me by giving me double itune. .. L was a party to the deception which these men commenced. I have said so all along, and have no wish to deny it. I committed a great fault. Since I have been a Christian I have learnt to apeak the truth. When in Bancoora jail I got very ill and was nearly dying, and I at last told the daroga that I would tell all. My sentence had expired; but they would not let me go until I told my real name, and I thought it better to confess at once. I bore the name of Kirpaund from the time I first turned Fukeer. As far as I can recollect, the plot commenced about five or six months before the apprehension of the prisoner. I would have rever al this even had I not been confined. I have since told if to many. There are numbers who know the truth of my story, and it can be corroborated by the inhabitants of the villages where we lived. I know that Kisto Lal has marks on his body. He has one on his back, but what I was caused by I don throw. It is close to the shoulder blade but moretowards the spine. Kistuloli knows a little Sanscrit he also knows Persian. I never beard him speak English; whether he knew it, or not, Ressian " Haha Raj Dheraj Rajissur Alukho Pertah Knew that he claimed the Rajah of Burdwan, but I Chunter Bahadeor. Zemindar, Chucklahi Burdwan Oghyra." Kista Lal's age, when I first knew him, might be about 28 or 29, but I facely guess so. I don't know to be an imposter until yesterday moraing, because that produce of my lakheraj lands. I have never been in how many toes Kisto Lol has. He may have 20 for any service. I intended to seek for it; but these men, aught I know; he can tell himself. The wagnetrate of Bancoora sent me under charge of a chaprassy to Kishnaghur but there was no investigation regarding what I had stated.

Brevet Major John Marshall, a witness for the defence, who was proceeding up the country, was then called in consequence of a representation from the defendants Counsel, and deposed as follows :- I am a Bievet Major in the 71st Native Infantry. I do not know the prisoner by the name of Pertab Chund, but I believe him to be the person I used to meet at Chinsural upwards of a 20 years ago, under the name of the young Rajah of Buidwan, and whose name, if I ever heard it, I have forgot.

Examined by Mr. Morton .- I have met the young Rajah several times, at Mr. Overbeck's once, at his own house, at the Rajbarree, and once on board his pinnace. I have met him also at Hooghly at Mr. Archibald Todd's I cannot recollect with precision in what years I saw the young Rajah. I used to be a great deal at Hooghlye between the years 1814 and 1820. I must have seen him frequently at Mr. Overbeck's when he was Gover-nor of Chinsurah, and that was in the years 1818, 19 and 20. I was well acquainted with the young Rajah's personal appearance. Some of his features were peculiar and I noticed them particularly. I saw the prisoner for the first time since his supposed death at Mr. Oglvy's trial in the Supreme Court. To the best of my belief I had not seen him since 1820, until I saw 'hom there in the witness box. The face being familiar to use and endeavouring to remember where I had met him, I took very particular notice of his features, and on purpose to further gratify my curiosity, and to assist me to remembering where I had seen him. I sketched his profile on my pantaloons, and this was afterwards copied into the Englishman, for I was then under the impression that the man was an impostor and that I had seen him somewhere to the Upper Provinces. I had not seen him again unul I saw him yesterday in this gutcherry. I did not then retain my former impression of his being an imposter. Having only yesterday morning breaktasted with Mr. Overbeck, in the course of conversation he happened to mention some circumstances regarding the orison r which I perfectly remembered, and which led me to the recollection of the interviews which I had had with him at Chin-urah, bringing to my mind the full conviction that the person I had seen in the Supreme Court was the young Rajah I had formerly known. The sight of the prisoner yesterday did not strengthen that impression, as I had a perfect recollection of his textures. marks on the prisoner's person resemble those which I formerly saw on the person of the Rajah, although in a fainter form. Those marks are connected with the circomstances I alluded to in a former part of my deposition. This interview, which I have just had for the purpose of looking at the marks, has decidedly strengthened my conviction. I would say decidedly so far as I can after such a lapse of time, that this person is the Rajah. I have seen the picture which was exhibited in the magistrate's cutcheriy. Presuming that that picture was drawn for him when he was about 18 or 20 years of age, I consider it a most happy likeness of him as he then was, retaining a striking resemblance still to the priconer at the bar-

Cross-examined by Mr. Bignell .- The nose of the young Rajah was then rather fuller and smoother and the outline not so distinct as at present. It was slightly acquiline. I have no revollection of the colour of his eyes further than that they were dark. I cannot speak to shades. I considered him above the middle size, opinion had been shaken by what I had seen in the | I doubt whether he had the same opportunities of judgpublic papers. The conversation with Mr Overheck is not the main ground of my belief, it is the facts which that conversation recalled to my memory.

Mr. Overbeck had assuredly, from his situation, as many opportunities of seeing the Rajah as I had, though | - Hurkara, Nov. 30.

ing of him as I had. As far as the countenance went, I consider the sketch published in the Englishman to be a good likehess of the prisoner. I have seen a sketch by Mr. Grant, which I consider a very indifferent likeness.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CALCUTTA.

PUBLIC DISPENSANTES .- Dispensaries are to be forthwith e-tablished at Moorshedabad, Patna, Dacca and Chatagong, and to be placed in charge of students from the Medical College. Tantane animis coelestibus irae ?

The Government, it seems, were called upon to pronounce sentence on Mr. Masters, but refused to interfere, leaving the matter wholly at the disposal of Dr. Wallich. This unusual course of appealing to the Govermment was most probably lowing to the notice taken by the public journals of the rumour which prevailed on the subject.

A BRIDGE ACROSS THE HOOGHLY .- It has been whispered, that the Government contemplates the stupendous undertaking of a bridge across the Hooghly; that the expence is estimated at 12 lacks of rupees, and the site of the construction is to be above the city. Estimates have been prepared, or are in course of preparation, and the work is to be entrusted to an Engineer othcer, whose kill and science have rendered his ability conspicuous to the residents of the metropolis. The bridge will be supported on fron cylinders, ecured on floats, which will be fastened so as to resist the weather and the tides.

The Cooley Committee met again on the 30th ultimo, at the Town Hall, in prosecution of their enquiries, and for the future they will meet every Tuesday and Friday, until their labours are brought to a close. Mr. Dickens said the Committee's Report would go in before Christmas. The Committee are going on very actively. The Reverend Mr. Garstin and Mr. Dowson, have been examined, and also Mesers. Floyd, senior and junior, Messra. Clarke and Hare have likewise given their evidence. Mr. Dickens, as Chairman, has written to Government, to sanction the employment of the Clerk attached to the Committee up to the 31st day of December next, as Government, in the first metance, only authorized it to the 15th of last ATTRUPT TO DESTROY AN INDIGO FACTORY-71LLAE NUDDEAH .-- () o the night of the 24th ultimo, some untscreants attempted to burn the Dugdough indigo factory, during the temporary absence of the proprietor. So determinal were the villains on the destruction of the factory; that they forced into the thatch of the press-house chopper, to the extent of upwards of any varies, rolls of twisted dry straw, containing pieces of ignited dry cowdung. Most providentially the late heavy ruins had so saturated the thatch, that it did not ourn freely, and the light from the burning part attracting the early notice of the factory servants, it was with difficulty got under, before doing the serious injury contemplated.

SIEGE OF HERAY .- Anthentic accounts of the raising of the neve of Herat, and the retirement of the Persian force, have been promulgated during the week in a Government general-order; but the Bustish force is sull to proceed to Affghanistan, for the purpose of wresting from Dost Mahomed the sceptre he now sways, and placing the automaton Soojah on the throne of that country, after chastising the Khan of Bhowalpore and the Ameers of Scied.

PERTAUB GRUND, -Another change has come over the fortunes of the claimant of the Burdwan Raj. It is said, that a Dr. Robert Scott, of the Madras Presidency, who was in the habit of attending Rejah Pertaub Chund professionally, about nineteen or twenty years ago, has just had an interview with the soi disant Pertaub in Hooghly jail, and has declared his entire and perfect conviction, that the claimant is the veritable Rajah! This gentleman has come all the way from Chicacole, for the express purpose of seeing the assuming Pertaub.

The trial of this pretender is proceeding at Hooghly, and a host of additional witnesses have been summonsed on the part of the prosecution, in consequence of the evidence of a Hindu convert, who professes to have been a companion of the pretender, whose real name he says is Kisto Lal. This witness has deposed to the concocting of a plan by the pretender to choose the present incumbent out of the Burdwan estate, and that the witnesses summonsed at his instance, are aware of the whole of the proceedings of the would-be-Rajah to obtain the guddy.

MR. A. H SIM .- At a meeting of the proprietors of the Union Bank, held on the 7th instant, Mr. A. H. Sim, was reinstated in his office of Accountant of the Bank, which be had been forced to resign in consequence of DISCOVERY OF A WRECK .- A letter from China, dated 1st September, states, that a wreck had been just reported by a Chinaman as having been seen by him in the China Seus, and that the Maulmien, Captain Pike, which was lying in the roads at the time, had been engaged by the underwriters to the Insurance Offices there, to go out and make a strict search after the wieck, according to the man's directions, who was, of course, to accompany the expedition. The man has also been offered a considerable doncour if his information should prove correct. It is suspected the wreck must be that of some other vessel, not that of the Antonio Peretra.

The Henry Clay, Captain Gillman, bound from Peru to China, met with a severe typhoon in the China seas, in which she was totally dismasted.

H. C. S. AMBERST .-- The H. C. S. Amberst, Captain Jump, while on her passage to this port, ran on the tocks named "the Terribles," on the coast of Arrakan, by which she was considerably injured, the whole of her taise keel and the greater part of her main-keel being knocked off and other great damages sustained. She was in consequence, on airival in this port, obliged to be put into Kyd's Dock, to ascertain the extent of the mining done, when it was discovered, that a piece of rock of considerable size, and about twenty seers in weight, had entered her bottom. This has since been taken out, but the vessel's repairs will occupy much time in completing.

THE CLAIRMONT. - The Clairment, from Bombiv to China, foundered on the 24th of September, in about Lat. 20 N. and long. 114 E. The crew and passengers, fitty-three in number, were picked up by the Belle Alli. ance.

HYDERABAD.-Letters received from the neighbourhood of Hyderabad, speak in most alarming terms of the long and unprecedented want of rain in that quarterhe writer seems to apperhend an extensive famine all over the Nizam's territories, if relief is not soon experienced by heavy falls.

CAPT. MACMAGRITEN AND THE FURLISHMAN. - The Englishman, with reference to a statement published in the Hurkaru, respecting Capt. Macnaghten becoming the Editor of the Englishman, says :-

"We beg most distinctly to state, that such an event is not only improbable but impossible. We shall always be happy to avail ourselves of that gentleman's services as a contributor, as we set a high value upon them; but Hurkarn, as that he should have the management of this paper."

THE HATDER. - Areat fears continue to be entertained for the safety of the Haidee, Captain A. Symers. She sailed from Penang on the 21st of September, and ha not since been heard of. Captain N. Lowis was a passenger.

The following is an extract of a letter from Bimlipatam. dated 3d November :-

" Intelligence has been received here, that there have been several vessels lost in the Calcutta river, and some for Cuttack. I cannot vouch for the truth of this report; but several bodies have been washed a-hore at a place called Canadah, and the body of a gentleman has drifted ashore near this place, whose leg and arm, I am told, had been devoured by sharks. Another gentleman was picked up at Vizagapatam, who is said to have been mangled much in the same manner about the body. Several tin cases, boxes, &c., &c., have been picked up at Vizagapatams. In one of the boxes which contained money, I am informed, was the body of a lady on whose arm was tied or pinned a piece of paper, on which it appears was written the following nonfication : ' that she had died from fright during the storm, and that to whatever shore the box might float, it was requested that the body might meet with an honourable funeral".

SIR HENRY WILMOT SETON .- Sir Henry Wilmot Seton. landed on the 17th instant under the usual salute from the ramparts of the fort, and at three o'clock he entered the Court room and took the oaths of allegiance and supremacy, as second Puisne Judge of Her Majesty's Supreme Court. WAR WITH BURMAH .- An extraordinary Council was held on the 10th instant, to consider of recent dispatches from Ava; and immediate war with the Burmese, or something very like it, was resolved on H M. 9th regiment, at Chinsurali, and which was under orders for Hazareebaugh, is now ordered to be in readiness to embark for Rangoon, which place it is intended to take and retain possession of; whilst a demonstration will be made from Sylhet. The importance of steamers in any operations against the Burman territories, is sufficiently obvious, and we now feel the want of them. The new steamer Enterprize, is being fitted up as a manof-war, for service in Burnah, and Government here, have despatched orders to Bombay, to send round, immediately, one or two, if not more, of the sea-going steamers; and in that case the communication with Great Britain by the Read Sea, at this time of such moment, will again be interrupted at the scason most favorable for maintaining it. Col. Benson, up to the 25th ultimo, had not been publicly acknowledged by Thirawaddie, nor even permitted to deliver his cre-

THE ENGLISHMAN .- A writer on the Resumption question, under the signature of GAUNTLET, has been instrumental, during the week, in showing up the good qualities of the folk in the Englishman office. They receive a letter, and, against the writer's wish, mutilate it to suit their own purposes. They then tamper with his servant, and endeavour to find out the writer's real name; but, failing in this, and being attacked by GAUNTLET for their malpractices, they attempt to wriggle them-elves out of the scrape, but most signally fail GAUNTLET has stripped the visor from their faces, and they stand exposed.

THE ASIATIC BUCKETY-At a meeting of the Asiatit that gentleman's resignation of the Secretaryship of the Society, Sir Edward Ryan moved, that the resignation be not accepted, but that during Mr. Prinsep's absence the services of Professors Malan and O Shaughnessy, the former in the Oriental and the latter in the Scientific department, be accepted, and that these gentlemen be appointed as joint Secretaries of the Society, and to act in conjunction with Baboo Ramkomul Sein. This motion was carried. Mr. II. T. Prinsep also stated to the meeting, that arrangements had been made to carry on the Society's journal from materials left by Mr. James Prinsep, to the end of the present year.

RAISING OF THE SIFGE OF HERAT .- Reports of letters from Colonel Sto last and Lieutenant Portinger, of the 30th of September, announcing the raising of the siege of Herat by the Shan, in deference to the wishes of the Brush Government, are still current " upon the best authority." A letter, said to have been received by Lord Auckland from Coroner, Stoppage, states, that the Suan, on being informed by him that the British Government would immediately consider uself in a state of war with Persia, if the stege were not raised, consented to withdaw his troops, and had reached Mesuro on his way to Tennan.

THE BUSHOT. - The Lord Bishop of Calcutta returned to the presidency on the 23d instant.

JITANST. - The troops dispatched against Jhansi, have, not succeeded in obtaining possession of the fort, nor expected to succeed without further aid. The Agent for the Governor-General has applied for a reinforcement of 2,000 men and a battering train. Major-General Sir Thomas Anbury, K. C. B, proposes to command this force in person, and as he is well acquainted with the nature of Indian forts, from Seringapatam to Bhurtpore, we may soon expect to hear of the fall of Jansi.

The following are the particulars of the outbreak at with our authornies. Mr. Frazer, the agent for Bune, delcund, on approaching the town, was fired at, ad the general opinion at Gualior is, that the British Government will take the place. Colonel Hewitt, with the 25th Regiment Native Infantry, is in attendance on Mr. Frazer; and it is believed that Sindia's contingent has received orders to be in readiness. cause of the disturbance at Jhansi, and of the unsettled state of that principality, is a family quarrel. The two contending parties are beaded, the one by the late Rajah's brother, who occupies the Gaddee, and the other by the late Rajah's widow, who holds the fort, other by the late Rajah's widow, who holds the fort, and claims the regency of the state, during the minority of her adopted son. Mr. Fraser went to Jhansi to settle these conflicting claims and interests, and very nearly got shot for his pains. Such is the origin of the disturbance at Jhansi, which will end, perhaps, in the annexing of this state to our empire in India. The territory is excellent and nothing is wanted, but a good and firm Government-to insure the prosperity of the country, and the comfort and happiness of the people. The present dissensions between the rival parties in the state, tear the country to pieces, and spread ruin and disorder throughout this fine country. The interference of the British Government will, under the circumstances, prove a blessing.

FIRE.—We regret to say, that a most disastrous fire broke out last night in the native part of the town, on he banks of the river. It began, as we are informed, in a but among some stacks of hay and straw, and in a Society, held on the evening of the 22d inst., on a letter | very short space of time extended for a space of several o'clock, the fire had reached the pucka buildings to the Eastward : several of these were in flames; but it is to be hoped, that the progress of the devastation, was arrested in the street beyond them. The loss of property consisting charly of grain and up-country produce, must, we feat, have been immense; as this was the most extensive hie we have seen for some time past in Calcutta.

portering .- Letters from Dovieling to the 19th inst. have been received, and state that every thing was going on as well as possible. The great desideratum, a bazaar, had been opened for some days, and rice was selling at 23, 20, and 18 seers per rupce, according to quality, and the latter description was declared to be very superior. The Lepchas were coming in from the neigh-bourhood, and bringing good rice at 25 seers per rupee. Indian-corn at the same rate, yams, fowls, &c. &c. The road, making under the superintendence of Colonel Lloyd, was within 4 miles of Sonadah, and the latter is only 11 miles from Dorjeling. At Mauldaram. one of the Bungalow stations, a heautiful spring of water had been discovered, and enclosed for the use of travellers. We understand that applications for accommodation at the Hotel are coming in so fast, that it is anticipated an extra sine of bed-rooms must be built before May. Messis. D Wilson and Co. are busily occupied in preparing all " essentials" for the comfort of the visitors of Darjeling, and, in short, the undertaking promises to be successful beyond our most sanguine: expectations.

THE ROB ROY .- The injuries sustained by the Rob Ron from having struck on the rock, were enormous; the whole of her main keel, fore and air, was completely taken off, and the long copper bolts, which united the keel to her bottom, were sticking out, when taken into dock in Calcutta, in all manner of shapes and figures. On the arrival of the Rob Roy in Calcutta, her Captain had her taken into dock and completely stripped, to ascertain the extent of damage she might have sustained, when the above was discovered, together with some ther injuries, such as the shifting of her caulking at her but-end, &c. The vessel has been since completely repaired.

MOPUSSIL.

DELHI .- It is said, that the Government have expressed to the Court of Oodypore, in the strongest terms, its detestation of such deplorable sacrifices of human life as occurred in the suttees after the death of late Rana, and its expectation, that effectual means will be taken to guard against occurrences so abhorrent to humanity on any future occasion. The recent la-mentable suttees may, it appears, be ascribed to an interregnum in the Government of Oodypore, there having been no previously acknowledged and established sve-cessor who bould, on the denise of the former Rana, have immediately taken upon himself the authority of administration.

It is said, that negociations have been carried on for some time, with the Sinde Government, relative to the progress of our troops through their territory. According to a dispatch received the day before yesterday from Colonel Portinger, it appears that the Sinde Government are determined to oppose our march.

He , thence proceeded into the Jhodpoor district, in which he succeeded in seizing several persons of influence among these people, and destroying one of their foits. In consequence of these active measures, the districts of Jhodpoor, Shekawatee, and Beekaneer are almost free from these pests.

LOODEFANAIL.-The boats despached some time sin ? with freight, for the Bombry market, have re entered the Sutledge, having made a trip such as is likely to increase considerably this trade.

RURYAUL -On the 4th of November, two or three sepoys of the 48th Regt. N. L., received theirsdismissal, for the crime of endeavoring to seduce the rest of the men from their allegiance, by urging them not to carry their knapsacks. On detecting their proceedings, the commanding officer threatened instant christisement, at all personal hazards, and thus succeeded in preventing mischief.

WATIVE STATES.

CABOOL .- A body of one thousand men, the most trusted of the Cabool army, commanded by Mr. Campbell, a British subject, has marched from the Capital to occupy the Khyber pass.

JEVPORE - A considerable degree of excitement prevails in Jeypore, which, it is feated, may lead to tumult and bloodshed.

The party of Jotha Ram appears to be intriguing to oust the Regent, Luchman Sing, from his post; and the Mahjee herself is said to be desirous of trying a new man and new measures. To effect this, several of the Thukoors, with all their forces, have established themselves in the city, to the infinite jeopardy of the Rawel, who finds himself totally anable to exercise and expel these evil spirits, who have possessed them-selves of the "body corporate"!—Till reconly, the state of parties was better balanced, but the linese Moonna Lail, having lately thrown the weight of his person, influence, and-though last not least-cash into he opposition scale, the political equilibrium is destroyed, and Luchmon has been Sng compelled to solicit the assistance of his English supporters. This, if requisite, will be afforded, in the shape of the 13th Regiment of Native Infantry, and two squadrons of the 9th Light Cavalry (with its Head Quarters,) which are ordered a hold themselves in readiness to march from Nusseura-The concurring native reports respecting the operation and on the shuttest notice. He goes unattended by further escott than a company of the 524 Regiment; Major Ross having another, of the 22d Native Infantry, already at Jeypore; and these, with Major Forster's Shekawattee Contingent, which has been called in from Jhonjnoo, may suffice to keep the peace for the present.

protundance of okamunder .- A very serious disturbance at present prevails in Okamundel. The Guicowar authorities having burnt several villages belonging to a prediatory tribe called the Wagheas, about 600 of them took up arms, one-half carrying matchlocks, the other swords. Being of Rippoot descent, they pride themselves upon their courage, and in their present state of destitution, turn that quality to some account, by plundering all travellers who come within their reach. The principal sufferers from this state of things are the pilgirms who repair in great numbers to the temples at l)warka.

PORCES TO BE DESPATCHED FOR PERSON. - It is said, that a force of 6,000 men will be despatched to the south of Persia, so soon as the necessary materiel cause collected, but the regiments likely to be sent from Bombay are not yet known. All Her Majesty's vessels of war in India, are ordered here, and the Ceylon Government have received instructions to furnish two regiments of European Infinity and a large detachment of the Ceylon Rifles, to aid in the approaching contest.

BNAKE BOAT .- On the 22d of October, a snake boat, to be manned with twenty-eight oars, was finished in the Fort dock yard. She is eighty feet in length and has a cabin beautifully decorated and fitted up with yellow damask and silver. Her external ornaments are com-posed of green and gold. She is intended as a present from the British Government to Runjeet Sing.

DEATH OF THE GOVERNOR OF GOA. -It is said, that the Baron Sabroza, Governor of Goa, died on Sunday the 14th of October, from the effects of the accident he met with.

THE GUICOWAR .- The Guicowar has not been dieappointed; he has manifested so much anxiety of late to be mulcted, that with all the forbearance which could be

The object of his vovage is to present an address to Her Most Faithful Majesty, from the well disposed inhabitants of Goa, praying for the adoption of measures calculated to insure tranquillity in there colony, and prevent the recurrence of its being altimately disturbed by contending factions.

speculations in houses. The horse dealers in Bombay, have already, in the course of a few days, disposed of nearly 700 horses at very high prices, some rare bargains besides.

THE SEPOYS .- It is said that the sepoys are very content and enthusiastic for the service in which they are about to be engaged.

BLOWING UP OF THE RAJAH OF MANDAVIE AND OTHERS.-The most effectual blowing up, or rather the most expeditious case of masculine sutice, heard of for some time, is that of the Rajah of Mandavie and eight of his attendants, who have involuntarily put an end to their exis-tence by the instrumentality of a quantity of fireworks, which exploded about their persons. Particulars of this affair have not transpired, further than that by some such occurrence as this, during some rejoicings, such a catastrophe has taken place.

CEYLON

THE FLEPHANT THAT KILLED MR. WALLET .- The elephant that killed Mr. Wallet, has been shot by Lieut. Gallway, 90th L. I, and Ensign Schoggs, 18th R. Y., both of whom left Colombo with a determination to aveng the death of their friend. They met the elephant in his native jungles, who, on seeing them, gave great and rushed forwardebut four barrels brought him to his knees. He, however, rose again and made off, but was followed by the sportsmen, who killed him with his shots more.

There is a letter from Mr Commissioner Young, relative to the terms on which leases of the public lands are to be regulated in future. on what was understood to have been the intention of Government, viz., " a reservation of its right to propose altogether new terms, at the expiration of the original leave for twenty years, and to settle 'he rate to be paid during the second period of 30 years, according to the value of the land or other intermediate considerations. Of course the effect of such an understanding was to deter parties from seeking grants, or, if they did take them, to prevent them from improving the land. ASIATIC NEWS.

THE FREE PRESS DINNER.

Last Saturday, the 15th of December, the fourth anniversary dinner, in celebration of the liberation of the Indian Press, was given at the Town Hall. About eighty gent emen, among whom we observed nearly twenty natives, were present, and everything went off with great ec. at. After the removal of the cloth, Mr. C. R. Prinsep, the chairman, proposed the health of the Queen, to which due honor was done, the hand playing the usual anthem "God save the Queen," and the Company standing all the while.

CHAIRMAN.-And now, gentlemen, having poured forth those librations to loyalty, which duty and affection prompted, I call your attention to the business of this day's meeting, the four h celebration and the India. Philosophers have told us, and for my part I devoully believe, that the grand, perhaps the sole, dis traction between the intellect of the human and of the brute creation, consists in the faculty of intercourse by speech, whereby the mind of man, not limited like that of the brute, to the bare result of his own individual perception and reflection, enables him to avail himself of the experience of his fellows, to gather and to store up the wisdom of by gone ages, and to build upon a calculations of the future. If this beso, it is easy to comprehend the vast importance of every invention whereby either the circle of human intercourse is extended, or its circulation accelerated. And such as the Press, that mighty engine before whose earlies efforts religious thraldom shrunk into the shade, whose maturer growth gave birth to the principles of consti-tutional liberty, and whose every movement forwarded the progress of the arts, by which its own powers have been magnified some hundred fold, till it has become what it now is, the rail-road of human intelligence, conveying with electric rapidity from province to province, from nation to nation, from one bemisphere to another, each new conquest of mind over matter, each new discovery in the moral or material world. and each new flight of fancy in the regions of imagination. These are the advantages of the Press. Think you that they could have been attained, had its action not been free? I fear, gentlemen, that many of you will deem that, in a company composed of Britons, or of men of India worthy to be classed as Britons, to enlarge upon the benefits of the Press in general, or the expedience of leaving it free and unfettered, is superfluous, nay even impertinent. But we must not forget, that however trite and common-place, such topics may appear to a people familiarized with the benefits of a liberal government, and that of the Press amongst the rest, bere, in this country, ney, in this very hall, it to not many years sgo, that the very mention of freedom !

in connexion with the Press, would have made young men look grave, and old men fidget on their seatsas if the very frame of order, and authority, and sof ciety would crumble to pieces at the sight of such an apparition. A fettered Press in a free country, is a downright anomaly; these who have been long in the enjoyment of liberal institutions are apt to consider freedom of the Press as a part of the system, inseparable from it. But in a country recently acquired by conquest and that, too, before the con juered and the conqueror have half forgotten their contentions, or became blended in a community of habits, of opinions, and of interests, the naturalization of so powerful an instrument was an experiment-aye, and a bold one. Men in power, and brave ones too, shrunk from the responsibility; till fortune at length gave us a Government equal to the occasion. To the short reign of Metcalfe was reserved the glory of triumphing over terrors. which the event has proved to have been for the most part unfounded. Ten years and more have now elapsed since the Press of India has been practically free, three vents are now completed, since it has been free by law. And now let any man stand up and on his conscience declare, wherein has British India been damnified? Has her Commerce lauguished, her agriculture dewhether of the conquered or the conquering race, been deteriorated? or corruption, either in private or in public life become more bald or more baneful ? or, what is after all the main question, has British rule become more grievous to the provinces of Hindoostan? If all these questions must be answered in the negative, as conviction tells me they must, then I say, may the Press of India ever be constitutionally free, and grow' in strength and power from generation to generation. and do honor to hun, who, in discegard of the serly and rooted prejudices of his class and station, of the fears and frowns of Leadenhall, dared to set his seal to the charter of its freedom, which will go down to posterity coupled with his name, till men shall cease to rememe her that the Press was ever other than freg !! Where. fore, let our toast be, the Freedom of the Indian Press and honor to Metculfe iss liberator. (cheers and acclamations.)

This toast was drank with much fervor. After which Mr. R. S. Thomson sung the following song, composed for the occasion by Dr. Grant.

Charlie brew'd a peck o'maut And a' Calcutta cam to see; A blither party on that night Ye wad na find in all Inges.

> We are not fou, we're not that fou But just a drappie in our ee. The cook may craw, the day may do, But still we'll toste of Changanan ange.

And some of CHARLIE'S freres there were, Wha did no like at a' the bree; And his auld Minnie scaulded sair, And thought it should diluted be.

We me me fou, &c.

She was a Carlin auld and dour,
That liv'd awa ayout the sea;
And aye her face war'd wry and sour,
At ony but diluted bree.
We are næ fou, &c.

And why? She thought the Coolies a' And Doolies, wad disloyal be, Grn aught they qualf'd but what was sma, And thin and cauld, as Adam's bree.

We are næ fou, &c.

Of a' my sons, the Carlin said, And I have had twa score or three; Change alane took in his head To brew sic strang and reaming bree. We are no fou, &c.

Lord Francis lov'd it well, but yet Although the flower of Chivalrie; His secret friends, said 'twas too het, And that he'd better let it be. We are næ fou. &c.

Then, Jert nex sometimes gave it pure And whiles he mix'd it bitterly; But on the whole, ye may be sure, He in his heart lov'd well the bree. We are me fou, &c.

Jounny follow'd, strang and bauld, Who deem'd it but a sort of tea, And when folks said 'twas thin and cauld, With aqua fortis mix'd the bree We are no fou, &c.

And next cam Portland Willie o'er, A bluft and honest cheft was he; And let folks drink at times galve, But whiles had scruples 'bout the bree, We are no. fou, &c.

He granted it was cordial stuff But wish'd aboon, a tank should be, From which, at with with quartum suff, He'd plump 'come down' upon the bree. We are not fou, &c.

But Willie went, and CHARLIS cam, And straight setto, to mak the bree And scorning mixture all and sham, He brew'd it pure, and strong and free! We are næ fou, &c.

Then pledge a humper of the best To him who brew'd the honest bree, And at whose manly high behest We now enjoy it pure and free!

We are næ fon, &c.

Chairman.—Gentleman, as well as I could hear, Mr. Thomson has just enumerated the merits of our former Governors, it is necessary that we do not forget the claims of our present Governor. General. Circumatunces, it is true, have not permitted him to reside long among us. He has been a wanderer, in search either of glory or of public objects; but wherever he may be, our interest and anxiety must always attend the man who wields for the time the destinies of British India. May he prosper in the arduous undertakings he is now engaged in; and may he prove as warm a friend to the Press of India as his predecessor. (Loud cheers). The Governor-General of India, gentlemen, with all the honors.

MR. DICKENS, VICE-CHAIR.—Gentlemen.—I give you the health of the President of the Council of India, Colonel Morison. He is the sole remaining Member of the Council, I believe, who concurred in passing the law which we meet to celebrate; the measure which gave freedom by law to the Press of India, long praviously free in practice. I am bound to believe, he did concur in passing that law. I believe, in the absence of positive knowledge, that he concurred in passing it. He is now near the close of his career, and I am satisfied that it is with pleasure and pride that he will in his retirement contem late his part in that great measure, as it is with perfect satisfaction that I am enabled to proper to you the health of one of our present rulers, of the men only second in place of all those now in power, on this special ground, as on of the builders up of the legal freedom of the Press in India.

If he had done no other act as a legislator, of which he has reason to be proud, as I dare say that he may have done many, no man could desire a better epitaph on his tomb than this: as one of her rulers I gave to India the freedom of the Press. Gentlemen, let us drink to the health of Colonel Morison, President of the Council of India.

Chairman.—In these times of wars and rumours of war, we must not forget our brave defenders; and though in this country and under present circumstances, the a my might naturally claim our first attention; yet am I sufficiently an islander, although I have been in this continent now for many years, to recollect that it was the Navy that first gave stability to the Empire of Great Britain, and that by her navy her predominance and her commerce continues to be supported all over the world. I therefore give you, gentlemen, the Navy. Drank with all the honors.

Vice-Chair. Gentlemen, I give you the Army -The Army of India, both Crown and Company's, for they are one in feeling and actuated by the best and most perfect strict of unions-that Army which has won for us this dominion, and which I firmly believe, will ever maintain it, unless the caprices or the exactions of the civil power, shall disseminate permanent discontent among our native fellow-subjects, and render powerless its efforts by introducing disaffection in its ranks. A thing not impossible; for, gentlemen, we must ever remember, that the bulk of that Army sympathises with the people of India, and that it is in bone and blood, thews and sinews, aye, and spirit too, an Indian Army. It is not my desire on such a subject to enter into political questions at all ; still less ; a debataable questions, but I may be indulged in the expression of an earnest hope, that every just cause of dis-content may carefully be removed from the people, and then our Indian Army will continue to be, as it bas ever been, the pride and ornament and main safeguard of our dominion. Gentleman, 1 give you the Army of India.

DWARKANAUTU TAGORE roso, in the midst of loud and continued cheering, and spoke to the following effect:

DWARKANAUTH TAGORY,—Gentlemen,—It has fallen to my lot to propose atoast in which I am sure you will all agree, whatever be your political opinion. Last year this toast was in the able hands of my worthy friend Dr. Grant. I cannot presume to do that justice to it which was done by that eloquent orstor, but allow me to assure you that my feelings on this occasion are fully equal to his. The toast I have to propose is the cause of Civil and Religious Liberty all ever the world. (Cheers) It has been said, gentlemen, that this is a conquered country and that the Mahommedans had conquered it before the English. I now find two members of a Mabommedan noble family, uniting with us on this occasion to telebrate the liberty of the Indian Press; could we have expected this in by-gone days? We are now said to be rising from a state of ignorance; but allow me to assure you, that before the conquest of this country by the Mahommedans, we were a far more enlightened people than we are pow. To be conviuced of this, you need but examine our socient literature and sacred books; even the works of Sir William Fones will inform you of this. In ancient time we had free institu I the proposed end, he now discovers, that it is but tions, our females were not secluded from society, Geography, Astronomy, and other sciences flourished in this country; the inroad of the Mahommedans brought ignorance and darkness in this land, and changed its free institutions into those of slavery. The time however has arrived, when, after many years we have been placed under an enlightened Government, which has done something to raise this nation in the scale of civilization, the work of amelioration might be said to have commenced with the administration of Lord Cornwallis, who gave to the people a proprietary right in the soil. The next Government was involved in wars and could do little to benefit the country. The Marquess of Hastings came next, and it was he who commenced to give liberty to the Press in the days of Mr. Buckingham and the Calcutta Journal; (cheers) but the consummation of this great work was left for Sir Chas. Metcalfe. (1 oud cheers), If civil and religious liberty is to be secured, it must be secured by a Free Press. Our Chairman has told you that education is the first thing requisite for this country : but education and Free Pressmust go hand in hand, in order to accomplish the object. You all remember. gentlemen, the name of Rammohun Roy, who translated the sacred Vadas into the vernacular language, and thereby gave to his countrymen the means of obtaining civil and religious liberty. I feel ash med when I call to mind that this great man was put down by the prejudices and superstition of his countrymen. Had it not been for the liberty of the Press could we have had an Indopultus, a Gauntler or even an Anti-Humaug, to lay open before the public the measures of Government and to assign reasons for them. These writers, gentlemen, deserve our admiration and esteem for coming forward boilly and manfully to tell Their us what the measures of Government are. principels are very different from those which dictate the expadiency of conducting all Government mea. sures with the door of the Council Chamber closed upon the public (loud cheers and hear, hear.) We are this day met here to celebrate the liberty of the Press which must always co-exist with civil and religious liberty. I shall therefore give you, gentlemen Civil and Religious Liberty all over the world. (Loud cheers).

This toast was drank with great entbusiasm.

Du J. GRANT, on rising, was hailed with loud cheering. He spoke as follows :-

DR. GRANT, -Mr. President and Gentlemen, before I come to the subject of my toast allow me, in the first instance, to return thanks on behalf of Capwhose health, a little while ago, you drank. Although I am only a non-combattant, yet I belong to that army, and therefore, as no one else has done so, I fairn thanks for them as well as myself, and that this should be performed by me is less my fault, than my misfortune. I now proceed, gentlemen, to the subject of the toast I have been requested to propose. Fortunately for me it is one that requires no eloquence to recommend it, it is simply the extension of education in India. Some of you will perhaps wish that I should give the toast without comment, and that would be by far the most agreeable course to myself; but it might appear disrespectful, not only to the subject but to those who have intrusted me with this toast. Let to me, therefore, claim your indulgence for a few brief observations. By education, gentlemen, I understand the proper culture of the mind and the most difficult of all the sciences, that of self-education. Education is both end and means. To the juvenile aspirant, it is an important end, to secure which he must serve a dis-means to further and varying ends, Alps on Alps arise, and some darling end still urges him onward. Such is the condition of man, and wisely has it been ordained that is should be so, otherwise would there be a general stagnation of the faculties of the mind-the inhabitants of one country could have no inducement to visit or hold communication with those of another, and there would be a stop to discovery and improvement

Of all the senses we possess, that of sight you will readily allow is the most precious; there is no object so pitiable as a blind man; for he can neither see the approach of danger, nor ward it off. You all remember the magnificent invocation to heaven-born light in the opening of the third book of Paradise Lost. Do not be alarmed, for I am not going to inflict a quotation upon you: but merely to remind you of the most touching allusion made by the immortal bard to his blindness. But he had the consolution of inward light. for the eyes of his powerful intellect were not obscured. Fortunate is it for us that Milton was an educated man, else should we not have had the "Paradise Lost;" but what is more onposite to the sensitivities. but what is more opposite to the associations of the evening, we should not have had the "Arro-PAGITICA," one of the most masterly defences of the Liberty of the Press ever written, and one that effected good service for civil freedom, by appearing at a time when the subject was not so well and generally understood as it now is.

But are we to confine our compassion to physical blindness? Have we not sympathy with millions of our fellow men around us, to whom the fair earth is as a limbs of gross ignorance and hideous superstition, that reduce manualmost to the level of the creatures that browse the bill or crop the valley; and generate in his nature the low mischevious cunning of the ape with the cowardly ferocity and blood-thirstiness of the tiger? What then is the remedy for this state of things. I say education, and I am borne out in saying so, by the manly and straight-forward testimony of an en-lightened native gentleman now present, in a communication that lately appeared in the newspapers. A gentleman who is himself a fine illustration of what may be effected by education, and what is more honorable to himself of self-education. I mean my friend Dwarksnauth Tagore, whom you have just now beard addressing you in English. I do not deny that fault might be discovered by a verbal critic in that speech; but I defy any man to discover in it a sole-cism in sentiment or logical deduction. You have heard him deliver his sentiments in Euglish, will any of you he able to express yourselves in Bengallee with equal facility ?

How vast is the field for education here, but inadequate the means !... They are well enough as they are," observes some philosopher of the "let-well-alone" school. But are they well enough? If they were, I should not now be troubling you with my feeble advocacy for an extension of education ! Many penale have a dread of what they call the 'March of lect,'a sort of Dr. Fell like intuitive dislike; perhaps for some such reasons as prejudice some small minded men against learning in women and instruction to the working classes. To be sure it would be mighty inconvenient, to be corrected in a felse quantity by a classical wife, or to see a smile flickering across your butler's face on detecting you in a historical misquotation! No sentiment is more in favor with such cavillers than that a little learning is a dangerous thing? Now this I do deny. A little learning may make a naturally weak and frivolous man a little more absurd, and what does that signify? Pope ciplined apprenticably of years in the shop of know- was very fond of antithesis and as it has been said of ledge, and learn the use of his tools. Having attained some wits that they would sacrifice a friend for a jest, I do not think it is unjust to say of Pope, that he that provided it, and in that second to the ability sometimes sacrificed truth to a paradex. To a man science, and energy in active operation within its walls, of plain understanding and common sense, a little learning is a very valuable acquisition; and I need not remind this company that it has sometimes saved human lives. 'Drink deep' if you can, of the Pierian spring, but I protest against being forbidden to taste at all, even at the last extremity, unless I can drink deep, which may be utterly out of my power.

A great Moralist whose memory (albeit some prominent infirmities and hard sayings regarding my countrymen) I hold in high respect; hes left a saying, that every Scotsman has got a mouthful of learning, but not one a bellyful. I am content to take the saving as thus stated. I do not cavil at it in the least, but make this answer; so admirable and assured has been the result of this mouthful system in Scotland, in a peace-able, orderly, steady, industrious, religious, and highminded population; that I heartily wish it were extended to other countries and particularly to India

The raw material is excellent, for where is there a more frugal, hard-working and submissive body of men than the Bengal ryots, and is their state so completely what it is desirable it should be, that it stands in no need of improvement? The people themselves are beginning to take a deep interest in the question, especially the poorer classes; and as a Member of the Committee of Public Instruction, I can state that we are sometimes under the painful necessity of nega-tiving earnest entresties of the poor inhabiton's of some populous village, to aid them in founding schools for the education of their children. Such petitions I say we cannot comply with from not having more extensive means. Would that the wealthy and influential "Natives would in greater numbers and the cause with their hearts and their purses! But there is one splendid exception; need I mention Dwarkanauth Tagore? Would that they imitated his philanthro y and liberality-instead of squandering large sums yearly upon funeral obsequies and Doorgah Poojab nautches! And what are the recollections associated in the minds of the poor with shrads? Are they those of respect for the memory of the dead, and of grati ude for the living? No-they are recollections of a home rashly quitted for a beggarly dole, of a westisome journey. of exposure to the inclemency of the weather, of hunger, thirst, and not infrequently of death! Those of Doorgah Poojah nautches again are associated with nocturnal dissipation and dissoluteness, find too often of the disgraceful drunken squabbles of the foreigners who degrade themselves by frequenting such revels. I would, indeed, most earnestly entrest of the natives to spend their money to better purpose in founding scholerships or chemitable institutions. I would beg of them to recollect the impressive truth that education is the autagonist principle of the impossible, and that it has achieved many victories over the impossible. To the educated man many a thing is possible which to the uneducated is totally impossible. The very elements become subservient to the purposes of the man of science. Twenty years ago that person would have been scouted as a visionary, who should bave foretold that a letter from London would reach America in a fortunght and Calcutta in fifty days. Nay, ten years ago he would have been called a wild En thusiast who should have forecold that within that time Rindoo youth would be wielding the powers of Chemistry with the advoicess of adepts; and more, that the son of the Brahmin should be seen learn ing enatomy as only it can be learned, scalped in hand, by th side of the dead body! This aublime victory over prejudice and superstition, has been effected by the Medical College, a truly noble institution which is effecting much good—that we owe in the fire natures to the enlightened and

But I must not intrude further on your time. I conclude by saying, that education, in a word, elevate man nearer to the source of light. Knowledge itself has been simplanically called Liour. The broad highway of knowledge, though to some extent we behold its course, eludes our gaze in the far distance, passing beyond the veil of infinuace. On that high way there is no balting. The traveller must onward-ir retrograde; and in proportion as he advances or recedes. will be the usefulness of his talents or the benefits be confers on society. Within the heart of man there is a sacred craving for knowledge that cannot be satisfied here. There is no quenching of that divine thirst until the Regal Cup-hearer come with his " coal black wine" that must be drank, and by the dread mysterious power of which, an end is put to our groping pupillage below - to perfect our Education in the Heavens!

Here Mr. Have aung-" Bright, bright are the beams of the morning sky," and was applauded with loud cheers.

MR LONGUEVILLE CLARKE, in a very eloquent speech, which we could not take down, spoke to the following effect. The toast which he had to propose was not a party toast, it concerned every body, and he would deny that the present meeting was a party meeting. All were invited to it and all were welcome. None. he said, entertained any doubt regarding the usefulness, nay, the necessity of a Free-Press. The trial by Jury, which was his toast, was of the same universal character. It was an institution common both to England under the name of Jury, and to India under the name of Punchait, and he would appeal to Dwarkanauth l'agore to say, whether he was not correct in this assertion. Freedom of the Press and trial by Jury, he considered as inseparably united to one another. Destroy the one and you necessarily destroy the other. He adverted to the new code from which he quoted certain passages to prove that an attempt had been made to destory in this country the right of trial by Jury. Dwarkanauth Tagore, he said, was the proprietor of a Press, in the concerns of which he nok no part; suppose some libel were published by that Press, according to the provisions of the new code, he could, he might, if convicted, he sentenced to two years' imprisonment, and at any time before one-third of that period expired, a Governor-General might banish him for life from the territories of the Company, and thus the Government would thus manage to get rid of troublesome zemindar. This was not the state of the laws now; but if the new code came into operation, that would be its state, and the country would fall back to the times when a Buckingham and an Arnott were persecuted. He enumerated several ins ances of the triumph of the Jury in England, even in cases which concerned poor men whose cause the Government would not take up, and asked if such were the beneficial results of the institution in England, why similar effects would not attend it in this country. He then adverted to the struggle against the Stamp Act, supported by Sir Chas. Grey, the then Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and to the victory obtained by a resolute Jury, the foreman of which was Mr. Robert Brown, Mr. Clarke concluded by proposing—Trial by Jury; which toast was drank with loud and continued cheers.

MR. H. M. PARKER. It devolves upon me to propose to you, and I do so with sincere gratification, a great, a valiant and an enlightened people. To propose to you a mighty distion which Sir Phillip Sydney, that honor to England and flower of English chivalry, designated in his day, and in the true spirit of a brave and noble Englishman as he was, " That exect enemy ous Governmen France." There is still, I grieve to say, a party, and not a weak party, lingering round the mouldering mankind, for it has taught, not the "great moral lesson" alters of prejudice and ignorance which occasionally takes all that is fine and noble out of Sydney's fine phrase, and calls the subject of my toust "That wateral enemy France." By this party the irreligious, the unchristian, the foolish and disgusting feeling I have alluded to The "Natural enemy" feeling was strenuously sought to be revived only a few weeks ago, thanks to Steam Communication I can say weeks, on an occasion when, if ever, all such unworthy prejudices and unholy feelings should have been allowed to sleep; when no sentiments should have prevailed but those of peace and happiness. They called upon the land to join their cry " Our natural enemy France. and the call was replied to. Yes, it was replied to as England, Ireland and Scotland, as the lands of Marlborough, of Wellington, and of Moore, could only reply to it, in a manner worthy of their fame, by one simultaneous burst of bonest admiration and respect for the valuant veteran who having in so many gallant fields upheld the renown of the realm he nobly serve i in war, now came to represent in friendship and in peace "that sweet enemy France," But away with all talk of enemies or enmeties when we speak of that great and noble nation. I shall call her, as I hope to find her. the true and valued friend, bound to us, as neighbour should be bound to neighbour, by mutual kindnesses. mutual wants, mutual sympathies, and mutual interests (Cheers.) For my own part, I cannot but feel that mankind owes a mighty debt to France; for arts, for sciences, for civilization, for literature, and above all. for her revolution. Aye, gentlemen, for her revolution ! I do not disguise from my self the crimes or the follies of that terrible period; but, gentlemen, if we and our families had fed upon weeds and nettles that some gay Signeur might glitter in lace and embroidery through the galleries of Versattles. It we had groune for bread, and our answer had been a gallows forty feet high. If we had implored food, and been told by an insolent millionaire, that if hungry we might eat grass If we had been ground by corves, plunged in Bustile dungeous, and shot from off the house tops for amusement, by some gay noble returning from the chase; I say gentlemen, if we and ours had suffered these things, we should then better comprehend, and perhaps better allow for, that awful reaction of all the feelings of insulted humanity, of humanity tyranized over, degraded, trampled on, debased for centuries which we call the French Revolution! Neither wil I urge what has been so often, and so well insisted upon, that one battle fought in a war wage to gratify the spleen of some royal courtezin, or to prevent the apread of a frivolous dispute, touching the size or placing of a window, between a van glorious sovereign and a vain glorious minister, that one such battle i one such war, I say, has cost more blood twice told than unhappily flowed from all the scaffolds of Revolutionary France. But these are no justifications. I acknowledge with every Englishman, with every honest man, the selemn maxim that crime does not justify crime. Tyranny, cruelty and vice in a King. excuses not tyranny, cruelty and vice in a people : for tunately the French Revolution has another and I trus a better ground of justification In a world where evil is, we must of necessity balance such evil with the good that results from it. We must balance the miseries of the thirty years war with centuries of religious peace and freedom of conscience. We must balance; the whirlwind which destroys great ships and devastates islands, with the whirlwind which sweeps disease and postilence from whole realms and purifies and sweetens, to the wholesome uses of life, the blessed an "that clips us round about." Since, I say, things in this state of our being must thus be judged, who shall say that the French Revolution has not been fraugh with incalculable good to France and to mankind. To of our old Tory friends, but the " greater moral lesson" of a wholesome self-restraint even to the most assured of despots, while it has to ight hope, blessed hope, even to the most enthralled of people.

" Sarmatia fell unwept without a crime," but even for Sarmatia there is the tri-color of eternal na" ture, the rambow of hope, still shiming in her sky of troubled clouds. For the heroic sons of Poland, reversing the well-know adage without departing from its truth, while there is hope, there is life, and God grant that hope may be fulfilled! As for France her-elf, the benefits ultimately arising from her Revolution were cheaply purchased if none other had resulted from her iong, her fearful, her heroic struggles, than the freedom of the Press. - At that hadowed name, hallowed alike in France and England, and the best guarantee for the peace and happiness of both, I conclude be ging that you will aid me in doing all honor to my toast.

FRANCE, and may the cordiality and good will happily subsisting between her and Great Britain never be dı nini - hed.

CHAIRMAN .- My friend, Mr Parker, has given you for his toast, the nearest neighbour of Great Britain, I will now give you her nearest relative, England's eldes child, the United States of America: an offspring of which she has reason to be proud; for young as she is she has already surpassed most of the states of the old continent. From her we learnt an useful lesson at the time of her emancipation, and no doubt her enterrizy will enable her to give us many more. Would that England had many such scions, to carry her arts, her literature, her glory, and her liberal mixims of Government from one pole to the other. May no perty palousies or squabbles about a boundary, not worth the quarrelling for, disturb that harmony, which after two contests now so happily exists, and which I trust may be eternal -! lere's to Britain's eldest birth, the United States of America.

Du. HUFFNIGLE, - As an American citizen, and I believe the only one present this evening, I will detain you one moment, to offer my leable acknowledgments. for your flattering recollection of the United States. It would not became me to eulogize my native land, else I might tell you of the blessings we enjoy under our free institutions; but as quite relevant to the purpose for which we have met together, I assert that with more than twelve hundred newspapers, perfectly unshackled and with facilities for their circulation unknown in any other country, we uphold the Freedom of the Press, us the sufequard of our liberties - (Applause). It is happily no longer necessary, while returning thanks upon such occasions, to allude to national prejudices -where illiberal feelings exist, their origin may be traced to sellish motives. The Englishman, the Scotchman, and Irishman, all find a home in America, and the citizen of the United States meets a welcome and clasps the right hand of fellowship, wherever he dwells among the subjects of Great Britain,

But the uniting band between us, has, I hope, been secured by the triumph of the "Syrius" and "Great Western;" with the same interests and the same language we must be considered as brethren, since now, gentlemen! the Cataract of Niagara is only 20 days? distance from London.

MR. LEITH then rose and said,-Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen, the duty of proposing the next toast has levolved on me, and I think that you will concur with me in considering it most appropriate on the present occasion. It is "the Chamber of Commerce in Calcutte and Freedom of Trade all over the Globs," (Cheers). Gentlemen, the prosperity and dignity of our own favored country, are to be ascribed under Providence.

mainly, if not entirely, to its Constitution and Commeros. One of the integral parts of that Constitution is a Free-Press; and no class of men has been more forward, or sincers in the support of a Free-Press than torward, or sincere in the support of a rice-fress than the Commercial Community of Great Britain, in ge-neral, or than that section of it, in particular, located here, (cheers.) In giving the meed of praise to the Commercial Community of Calcutts, which they so well deserve, for their liberal, independent, and patriotic endeavours to secure for their countrymen in India. among other constitutional rights, that of a Free Press. I must bring prominently forward the name of one of that body, who by his liberal and munificent acts placed himself in its van-who, in his life, was honored and respected as a British merchant, and who, now that he is dead, is remembered to be most deeply regretted.
Need I say that merchant was John Palmer! (Cheers.) But I am right glad to see here present this evening some of those merchants who have written and publicly advocated a Free Press, and who has suffered because he supported a Freedress. And right glad am I to see that many of those who laboured in the good cause have lived to see their labours crowned with success. You, gentlemen, who have seen the bearings and practical working of a monopoly in trade, the disadvantages and the unprofitable nature of that monopoly to the monopolists themselves, the serious injury thereby, inflicted on the general trading interests of our country, and the flourishing condition of the trade with India since that monopoly has been abolished, will be in no want of arguments to convince you of the commercial and social advantages of a free-trade all over the world. (Cheers.) Slow as their progress has been, we find that the nations of Europe are now arriving at the conclusion, that the extension of Commerce, imore to be desired than the acquisition of territory. and that the advantages of peace and a flourishing foreign trade, are much to be preferred to the honor and glory, which may be gained in a foreign war. (Cheers) But I hope that many of us may live to see the states of Europe advanced on step further in liberal policy, and sound philosophy, by their making general Commerce the first object in inter-national law, and by shewing that they consider Commerce not the end, but the means of diffusing civilization and happings among all the nations of the earth! (Cheers.) I have the honor to propose the Chamber of Commerce, and Freedom of Trade all over the Globs.

Mr. Fractisson returned thanks, and observed that the mercantile community had always been engaged in objects of utility, which were beneficial alike to the country at large as to themselves.

Chairmana,—Allow me to propose a toast not on the list; but which dught by no means to be omitted. It is a branch of the public service highly useful and honorable. I regret to abserve among the gentlemen present so few members of it various causes have prevented their coming and delicated perhaps was the principal. Yet, that was no reason why we should withhold the due sompliment on such an occasion. It is not to be lost sight of, that it was by a Gevernor-General selected from that service, that the good we are now celebrating was granted which other Governore of largest professions hadrefused. He would propose the health of Mr. Dampier and the Civil Service. Drank with all the honours,

Mn. Dampien, in rising to return thanks observed, that as there was snother member of the same service present he did not know why he should be so particularly singled out as an object of compliment on this occasion. He would assure the gentlemen present, that the members of the service to which he had the honor to belong, felt as they did, they were fully aware of the benefits of a Free Press, and believed that it would gradually do much good. He had been sent into the service when he was an uneducated boy, and he had for a time acted in his official sepacity, in a manner that he could not now approve of. He was indeed ashamed of many of his acts, and he really believed that if a Free Press had existed in the country at that time, he would not have soted so (hear, hear and cheers.) He adverted to the character of the Civir Service in general, and said, that with but few exceptions, every member as it could stand the strictesty scrutny into his conduct; they therefore courted publicity, and when he said give us publicity, he was sure he expressed the sentiments of the whole service. It was composed of Englishmen, and like Englishmen they feel, like Englishmen they seek publicity and consider a Free Press as their best asfeguard. Mr. Dampier concluded by returning thanks for himself and the Civil Service, and resumed his seat in the midst of deafening applause.

VICE CHAIR.—I give you, gentlemen, the health of the Trade Association. A more valuable body in its degree, I do not believe to exist in this place or country, or in any place or country. I believe that when their union commenced, there was a real necessity for it, I know that it was recommended to them by the then Chief Justice, Sir C. Grey, and I am sure that they united on the soundest and best considered principles of union, and if amongst those principles, there were motives of self-interest, it was a self-interest that was in complete agreement with the interests of every class of their customers, and of all society well considered. Besides that, gentlemen - beside the special purposes of their organization, they have always given the most thorough-going and cordial support to every measure of public benefit that has been originated in this city since their establishment. They who bear the grand burden, are the especial supporters of Trial by Juny —they are the class from whom the law of England requires the performance of public duties, the exact and due performance, of which demands the exercise of the highest class of civic virtues-of duti-s which are ennobling and ennoble in their doing, all who are connected with their performance. It has been well recalled to your recollection by Mr. Clarke, that trial by jury is the Palladium of the Liberty of the Press, and I will go farther and say, that the bonasty and public spirit of that portion of the middle of ass, from whom jurors are selected, and of which the tradesmen form here by far the largest and most valuable body is the true Palladium of Trial by Jury. Gentlemen, I say it, and I repeat it to you here, that I think there is no class, be it what it may, in this city, that can compete with the class of tradesmen in the public spirited performance of burdensome and unostentatious and gratuitous public duties. In this test of public spirit, they are second to none, and I think are above all, and the Trade Association is the essence and quintessence, so to speak, of its cless. I give you, gentlemen, with pleasure, the health of the Trade Association, and I am sure you will drink it in the spirit in which I offer it.

Mr. Remerey returned thanks for the Trade Association, as an officer of that institution. He would assure the gentlemen present, that the members of his community were always endeavouring to fulfil the duties enumerated by Mr. Dickeus, and it was chiefly by them the duty of jurors were performed. He concluded by returning thanks for the Association.

Ma. G. Parvaer would propose a togat, which he observed had been allotted to Mr. Speir; but as that gentleman was absent he would act for him. His toast was the Agricultural and Hörticultural Society, to which the community was indebted for such fine regetables as were now to be had. This Society was

In communication with different parts of India, and engaged in developing the resources of the country. It formed, at the present moment, the nucleus of every information connected with the agriculture of the country. He would conclude by proposing the Agriculwith the usual honors.

VICE CHAIR .- Gentlemen, Frise to propose to you the health of one who was invated to come amongst us to-day, and who, if he had come, would have been our most hon ared guest. The retirement which he seeks, and which I believe the state of his health renders necessary, and perhaps a natural reserve and timidity, a timidity, however, to which no man is more a stranger on all other public occasions, has prevented his acceptance of our invitation. You will not, however, do the less honour to the toast of the health of Alexander Ross. (Enthusiastic cheering long continued and renewed) Gentlemen, we have just had the pleasure of drinking the health of the Civil Service, and the tribute we have paid has been responded to in a manner calculated to give the utmost pleasure to us all, who have heard the sait has been, spontaneously, expressed in such kind frank and manly way in which the gentlemen who replied to that toast has spoken out his sentiments. India! Your approbation is a sufficient recom-Amongst that Civil Service to which we have paid merited praise, one of the most honourable and distinguished men was Alexander Ross. By a laborious and distinguished life of forty years, spent in this besitate, when others would have doubted of their power, to abolish the Inland Transit Duties, where he had the power, to do so, from a knowledge of the benefault would confer. He did not hesitate to concur in the abolition of all restrictions in the Freedom of the Press, and doubtless his long experience and extensive local knowle 'ge was of eminent use in removing the fears of others respecting that wise and bold measure, both here and at home.

Gendemen, I feel strongly on this subject, and on some occasions when I feel the most strongly. I feel too the most difficulty in expressing myself fully. I am proud to call Mr. Ross a friend. In later years, perhaps, and especially since he had held the highest seats of power, our intercourse has been less frequent and hardly such as to justify me in balling myself his friend; but still the recollections and the intercourse of former times, embolden me to use the name. In speaking of him then, as a friend, I feel and I own it, that I am not capable of fully doing justice to the conception I have formed of Lis public merits. Your redeficiencies. (Creat cheering.) The value of his example and of his career to all public men in India and to India itself, I consider to be inestimable. As, when the aun sets in the horizon; he leaves light and radiance behind which long linger in the west after he has set giving promise of another morrow as brilliant and safair, so does the influence of the example of a stateeman bold, upright, beneficent as Alexander Ross. endure long after the period of his retirement, and Calcutta Journal. Heavens, how mugical was influencing the actions, and the maxims of his succes sors, tend to reproduce in their conduct and career, as bonest, useful, laborious and energetic.

Dr. GRANT rose to propose the health of the Chairman. In his presence he could not enlarge upon his merits. The manner in which he had performed the duties of the chair, was known to all, and he would only add that in proposing his health, he proposed the tural and Horticultural Society and success to its health of an honest man and a scholar.—Mr. C. Mr. PARKER proposed the Calcutta Bar, in a short but eloquent speech.

MR. LEITH. -As a humble member of that body on whom the honor has been conferred of being made the subject of the last toast, I rise to jeturn thankson behalf of my brethren and invself, to my friend Mr. Parker, for the handsome and flattering terms in which he proposed the toest, and to you, gentlemen, for the manner in which you responded to it. I speak my own sentiment, and in doing so Papeak, I am sure. the sentiments of the whole bar, when I say that they value highly your good opinion, and more particularly pence for any little assistance which the bar may have been able to give in furthering our common interests, and in urging forward the measure, which we are country in that service, he acquired that knowledge this night met to celebrate. We have ever had in which has rendered him one of the most pre-eminently view, and I trust will ever keep in view, that it is for which has rendered unit one of the most pre-eminently useful, as well as bold and liberal public men that ever the benefit of the great body of the people that we held rule in India. Here a brilliant example of the ought to labour. Your approval will stimulate us to virtues that flourish in that service. From the know-further exertions, not to obtain exclusive privileges, ledge which his long experience gave him of the but to secure our common rights, and to obtain a mischiefs which they inflicted on India, he did not participation in the enjoyment of those rights for all classes of the community.

> Mr. PATRICK, with a few suitable remarks, proposed the health of Mr. Parker.

In returning thanks, Mr. Parker expressed his sentiments on the compliment paid to hun, and observed, that be owed a heavy debt of gratitude to the Free Press, for having many years ago saved him (rom a broken neck (much laughter). You may laugh, gentlemen, observed the speaker, but you now laugh at what might have proved to me a very serious affair, if it had not been for the Press. Many years ego, when he was in the habit of driving about the town by day and cometimes by night, there used to be left a mighty bundle of bamboos, employed in public works by the McFarlen or Abercrombie of the period, and which encroached most shommably on the public road. The consequences were very serious to horse's knees and buggy shafts, and a. neck or two might occasionally be endangered as was that of the speaker. A few writers and cadets might have been expended in this way to the advantage of all concerned, and no mosn made; but at length the bundle of bamboos begann to break the horses' knees and the buggy shafts of grave and sober citizens. Many complaints were made of this nuisance, and murmers were both loud and deep, but no notice was taken for. Lo! was it not a nuisance by authority; at length the patience of men and horse got tired out, and two or three letters appeared in the effect. The mighty bundle of bamboos vanished like a morning fog, before ten lines of small pica. In plain occasions arise, the benefit of former days. Gentle- prose the abominable nuisance was instantly removed nen, with sincerity and fervour, I propose to you, and (cheers and laughter). This was one of the first right sure I am with enthusiasm you will drink, the practical results (a very little matter, no doubt, but health of Alexander Ross; and may the remainder of worth much in the way of illustration), of an outlie days, passed in the retirement of private life, be speaking Press, and considering that this speaker had as peaceful and heppy as his public career has been in all probability whole bones (9 be thankful, for inconsequence of its plain speaking it could not be wondered at that he felt bound to it by ties of gratitude in addition to those of principle. He had always advocated it as a measure suited to remove such great i evils than a bundle of ill placed bamboos in this country and he always should.

DWARKANAUTH TAGORS, -I rise, gentlemen, to propose the health of a man who has spent his whole life in promoting the cause of educa-tion. I mean Mr. David Hare, who established a school in this city long before the Hindoo College came intrexistence. To him I, as a native, feel deeply indebted, for the zeal and assolutty with which he has laboured in the cause of education. Who, I ask, gentlemen, can grabour like Mr. Hare, from house to house, enquiring after he pupils who absent themselves from his school-who can undergo the labour which be imposses upon hunself in promoting the cause of native education? For these benevolent acts done to my countrymen, I consider myself so much indebted to him, that were I to leave this hall without drinking to his health, I would look upon myself as an ungraceful wretch. At one time Mr. Hare was a man of fortune, which he made by hard labour, but he is now (I do not intend to offend his feelings) in embarassed curcumstances, arising only from his liberality in the education of my countrymen. I think it incumbent upon the natives of this country to refund to Mr. Hare all the money he has expended upon them. What a pity it is that our countrymen, instead of following the example of truly good man, expend their substance upon the nautches of Doorga Pool i and such other absurd practices. For all the good Mr. Here has done to this country, the only return which Government has made to him, is to give him the situation of the Secretary to the Medical College, which 18 scarcely worthy a tenth part of his services. I have much pleasure, gentlemen, in proposing the health of

Mr. HARE returned thanks, and with much disidence and modesty observed, that all what he had done was more for his personal pleasure and amosement, than from any cause which deserved such high compliment

Mr. Dieid Hare. Drank with enthusiasm.

At this Dr. Grant proposed his health a second time, which was also drank with much warmth.

Mr. I. CLARKE proposed the health of Mr. Dickens Headverted to that gentlemen's exceer as a citizen and as a member of the Calcutta Bar, and took a retrospect of ci comstances connected with his father, and his early life, which were alike honourable to him.

Mr. Dickins returned thanks.

DWARKANAUTH TAGORE, with a few observations, proposed Mr. Dampier, who returned thanks in a very appropriate speech, again adverting to his faults, committed during the early part of his official career, and stated that he could not have committed those faults if there had at that time existed a Free Press in India.

Mr. Dias .- Mr. Chairman and gentlemen ; may I crave your attention for a few minutes to remind you, that among all the individual toasts proposed we have overlooked the memories of those who bave departed from among us. After the oratory and eloquence that has been displayed by the speakers of the night, among whom may be rated some distinguished scholars, no field is left untrodden. I, who have never travelled beyond India's shore, shall claim from you the indulgence you so handsomely evenced towards my countryman Dwarksnauth Tagore. The occasion, and the glow which every heart must feel at the celebration of so essential, and of so great an advantage as the liberty of the Press, warms and forces the expression of my feelings a member of a community who is alive to the advantages to be derived from free discussion and the promulgation of the opinions of the world (applause.) One of the speakers alluded to an occasion on which a late celebrated member of the mercantile community distinguished bimself in openly opposing the stains act, the late Mr. John Palmer: with him was associated another individual, whose talented and valuable carear was cut short by a premature death, the late Mr. Winter, the Barrister. The meeting on that occasion must be fresh in the minds of man. The two gentlemen to whom I have already alluded, were foremost in pointing out the objections to an impost which by far exceeds the fees, or expensiveness of either the Supreme or the Mofussil Courts. Among the struggles for the obtainment of the liberty and amelioration or the people of India that meeting ought to be considered as one, among other perhaps stronger causes, which have led to the happy result that we now celebrate. Therefore, Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, I shall beg of you to drink to the mamories of Messrs, John Palmer, the prince of merchants and Mr. Winter. a distinguished member of the Calcutta Bar.

This toust was drank in solemn silence.

THE CHAIRMAN proposed the health of Mr. T. E. M. Turton, which was drank with the usual honors.

About this time 12 o'clock, the greater part of the commany had retired, whose example we followed, leaving a few collimated near the Chairman, enjoying the pleasures of conversation.—Hurkaru, Dec. 18.

UNION BANK CALCUTTA.

A meeting of the Proprietors of this Bank was held, pursuant to advertizement—Saturday, 15th December, 1838. T. Dickens, Esq., in the chair. The Chairman opened the proceedings.

Mr. Longueville Clarke states, that as he had prepared the plan which the Directors now submitted to the proprietors for approval, the would be better that he should explain it to the present meeting. He believed it was well known, that he had taken a lively interest in opposing the institution of a third Joint Stock Bank in Celcutta, not only for the sake of the Bank to which he belonged, but also for the sake of the public, and of the proposed institution itself. It appeared to him that if the trade of Calcutta made it expedient to have an increase of Banking Capital, the shareholders of the Bengal and Union Banks, could readily furnish it from time to time, as it might be required; but to start an impages rival establishment, with three millions of Capital, would not only destroy the fair profits of the existing institutions, but make Banking business so bad, as grievously to disappoint the new Projectors. The public would also be injured, for if the lending of money become a matter of rivalry, then there would be such a fatal facility of borrowing, that it would not only lead to over-trading, but foster the rash at speculations, and produce these scenes of mercantile ruin, which both England and India had already witnessed. When, therefore, the Bank of India was proposed, and his friend Mr. Dickens circulated a requisition calling a Proprietory meeting, to adopt such measures as might be expedient, he. (Mr. Clarke) recommended an immediate doubling of the Capital, by incressing it from 40 to 80 lacks of rupes. Mr. Dickens approved of the-plan, and recelling that requisition, sample snother, and the shareholders adopted the proposal. The Bank of Bengal had followed their example, and the consequence was the Bank of India was heard of not the specific purpose of banking. I speak my ownmore. So far his opposition was successful, but he was aware that the scheme which had failed in Calcutti, might be carried into effect in London, and when he reflected, that it appeared by Parliamentary returns, that in 1327, Joint Stock Companies were projected requiring capital to the extent of 372 millions of money, of which £17,600,000 was actually paid up, it did not appear difficult to him to get up a project of this nature. On considering the matter, it had occurred to him, that if facility were afforded to English Capitalists, to purchase shares in the existing Indian Banks, that those who felt desirous of speculating in Indian Banks, would prefer joining those already established, to starting rival institutions. It would also be a great convenience to Indian Shareholders returning home, as it would afford them ready means of converting their stock into money. His brother directors had unanimously agreed with him in these views but one serious obstacle was suggested. If shares were transferable in Eugland fraudulent holders might at the same time transfer them, or pledge them, or else transfer and pledge them both in India and England to the loss of the bonn fide purchaser, and mortgagee, and tovolving the Bank in difficulties. He. (Mr. Clarke) readily admitted the possibility of such an evil, he had therefore framed a plan, by in all 262 lacks. It is true, that the increase of the which he believed it was completely obviated. Perhops it might be thought the plan was utricate, but he (Mr. Clarke) felt confident that the working of it would be most simple. He had endeavoured to provide for every thing which could happen, and to leave nothing unprovided for, and the detail though long, -if carefully read over two or three times, would shew, that the carrying out of the measure would be easy. With the 9th article he had nothing to do. he had left that to the mercantile Directors, the majority of whom had fixed on 1s, 11d, as the rate of exchange, there was however a difference of opinion on at, but there was no difference of opinion that the notice of the Proprietors should be particularly called to this article, and that the settlement of it should be left to them. The 10th article he (Mr. Clarke) thought defective, and instead of powers of Attorney to sign he directors' names to the certificates, he would propose the simpler plan of authorizing the London Agent to to it. Mr. Clarke then read the plan, article by article, commenting on each, as he proceeded, and pointing out the object it was intended to acdeclaration of the expediency of adopting the plan; if that were carried, he should then move the detail.

GENTLEMEN,-I wish to make some observations on the Resolution moved by Mr. Clarke, to which I give my full support. The intent of that Resolution. however, is not to attract more money from England in order to increase the capital already employed in Banking operations in this city or India, but simply to give the monied men in England an opportunity by becoming Proprietors of the Union Bank to participate in the higher rate of profit which banking in India (as well as all other commercial pursuits), at present yields to the capitalist. I say which banking at present yields, for I am hy no means sure that the tate of dividend hitherto paid by Banks in India, can be expected long to continue with the extension which has already taken in banking capital. I wish to guard myself and such of you, gentlemen, as hear me, and share my opinion. from letting the supposition go forth to the world, that sentiments, and I believe I may venture to assume that I speak the sense of the majority of you here present, when I say that the contrary would seem to be the case. Since the last period when news from London respecting the Bank of India in England appeared to give us reason to suppose it might be established, an lucrease, present and prospective, (but the latter portion likely to be very speedily realized) of no less than 170 lacks or taking the rupes at two shillings, of £1,700,000 has taken place in the amount of capital employed in banking in British India. It was about July 1837 just previous to the last late panic that we had ground to suppose that the Bank of India with its 3 millions sterling capital might be established. The panic and distress in the money market in England put an end to the project apparently and since then, we have beard no more of it until rumour has recently anrounced a similar project under the title of the Bank of British Asia. About July, 1837, the capital of the Banks in India stood thus; the Bank of Lengel had 50 lucks, the Union Bank 32 lacks, the Agra Bank 10 lacks, in all 92, of paid up capital. Now we have the Bank of Bengal,* 112 lacks. I believe it is 1121, but I throw out the fraction, the Union Bank 80 lacks, the Bank of Bombay 50 lacks, and the Agra Bank 20, capital of the Bank of Bengal, and the whole capital of the Bank of Bombay are not yet actually paid up, but I believe I am quite correct in supposing that the moment a few necessary formalities are completed, the whole amount will be speedily forthcoming if indeed it be not already in great part subscribed. Our own increase of 40 lucks which was to have been paid in two years, by successive fourths, and by payment of one-fourth in each half year, if proprietors chose to take so much time has been so rapidly paid up that I understand nearly three-fourths, or about 68 lacks in all have been or will be added to our Capital in the first half year. Thus since the month of July, 1837, we have beheld £1,703,000 devoted in Indu to the increase of Banking business, and considerably above a million of the increase is in this city alone. Now, gentlemen, I am one of those who think we have been going quite fast enough and indeed L very much doubt taking both Banks together in one view, whether it will not be seen hereafter that we have been going on a little too fast for immediate profit, though I freely admit that I think with time, all this complish, and he concluded by stating that his first capital will find profitable employment. Let us look motion would be the first acticle, which was a simple to the Bank of Bengal, with its large circulation and deposits taken together, it is believed, that some 60 lacks or so are now; or were quite, remently, lying idle and unemployed. They are going to increase this The mo ion was seconded by Dwarkanath Tagore mass by 50 lacks more, and it will not be easy to say and supported by Mr. Dickens, who addressed the what is to be done with the money. In fact, as it seems to me, the Bank of Bengul labours under a money-plethora, a sort of apoplexy, an" embaras der-chesses" most hurtful to the health of dividends, most hurtful to the health of dividends, which are the life of Proprietors Their dividends are diminished and will I think be still more diminished, and so must ours be, at least I for one am quite prepared to expect it for a time. In the long run I have no doubt in both cases the money will be absorbed in safe, regular and steady channels of business, but not so speedily perhaps as the sanguine are disposed to think,

^{*} With reference to the sum of 112 lacks, it having been subsequently monitioned to Mr. He kens, that as the Government did not take up reasolate of the macrease, the capital of the Bank of Bengel, would be less by 15 lacks. Mr Dicheas explained that the increase of banking capital in India since 1837 had been overstated by him at £1,700,000 but was still more in our opinion more money is needed in Calcutta for than a million and a half sterling,

If I thought then, that the concluding words of Mr. Clarke's resolution which dwell on the importance of attracting English Capital to the Calculta Market mean' to imply, that we wanted more capital here for the Bank, I for one should object to them, but the words bear no such meaning; they mean simply that it is expedient to offer to monied men in London, an opportunity of becoming interested in the Union Bank by which its Proprietors who may transfer their stock will probably be benefitted as well as those who remain because the increased facility of transfer and negotability of shares will have a tendency to raise premiums. I have thought it right, Gentlemen, in supporting Mr. Clarke's resolution to make these few observations to obviate misunderstanding of my views and those who think in the same way.

Mr. Clarke concurred in Mr. Dickens' observations, the motion was then put, as follows, and carried unanimously.

1. Resolved, that it is expedient to adopt a plan, for facilitating the purchase and sale in London of Union Bank Shares, thereby enabling the Proprietors resident in England to convert without delay their shares into money, and attracting British capital to the Calcutta money market.

After considerable discussion and several alterations, the following details of arrangements to give effect to the above resolution, were proposed by Mr. Collier and carried unanimously.

- 2. That the shares in the Union Bank be henceforth divided into two classes to be denominated Indian shares and English shares, and that Indian shares be transferable to new Priprietors in Calculta only, and English shares be transferable in London only, but that the Proprietors may at any time exchange an Indian for a corresponding English share, for a corresponding Indian share.
- 3 That a mercantile or Banking house in London be appointed Agents for the purpose of affecting the transfer of Union Bank shares in England, who shall be entitled to charge a fee to be paid by the purchaser for each transfer, the amount of the fee to be fixed by the Directors.
- 4. That a counterpart of the deed of copartnership be deposited with the London Agents, and that after the intending purchaser shall have been accepted by the London Agents, he shall sign the counterpart deed, and that no transfer of a share be complete, nor the old Proprietor released, until the deed be signed by the purchaser.
- 5. That atthetime of executing the counterpart of the deed in London, the new Proprietor shall also surn in triplicite, a Power of Attorney, directed to the eight join or Directors of the Union Bank, empowering them jointly, or severally, to execute for him in the counterpart of the copartnesship deed in Calcutta, and that duplicates of these powers be forwarded every three months by the London Agents to the Screetary in Calcutta, and that one of the Directors tomed, in the power, do accordingly execute the counterpart deed.
- 6. That a new form of certificate be prepared to be entitled lection and Faglish certificates, and that no share held under an Indian certificate be transferred to a new Proprietor in London, nor any share held under a London certificate be transferred to a new Proprietor in Calcutta; and that on all the Indian certificates the following notice be conspicuously print ed in red ink.
- "N. B. This share can only be transferred at the Union Bank in Calcutta," and on the English certificates the following notice be printed. "This share can only be transferred at Messrs. A. B. and Co.

street, London, the Agents of the Bank." Bank. Of this Bank, he had often heard, of its details Indian certificates shall be exchangeable he knew nothing, until he came across this work, for English certificates in Calcutta only, and not in London, and that English certificates be exchangeable for Indian certificates in London only and not in Calcutts.

- 8. That when a Proprietor shall be desirous of converting his Indian, into an English share he shall deliver his certificate, to the Secretary of the Bank by whom it shall be cancelled, and an English certificate shall be prepared corresponding in number, date and every other respect with the cancelled certificate, excepting, that it need not be signed by the same Directors, and that a similar course he observed by the Agents in London, on converting an English into an Indian share.
- 9. That the dividends in Indian shares be parable in Calcutta only, and that the dividends on Luglish shares be payable at the London Agents only, and that the Remittances be made in Bank post Bills at three days' sight, at four per cent, per annum from date to time of payment, which Bills may be negociated in Europe.
- 10. That the London Agents he authorized to sign the Certificates which may be granted on the transfers of shares in England, or on converting English into Indian shares.
- 11. That the London Agents transmit every two months a list of the transfer of shares, which may have been made during that period.
- 12. That printed copies of the copartnership deed be sent to the London Agents, and that every half year a complete list of the names of the Proprietors, and of the number of the shares held by each, but use natted to the London Agents, and blooms course of all resolutions passed at general meetings of the Proprietors, and that the above he aiways open to the inspection of any Proprietors in England.
- 13. That the Sceretary's Report, and the Accounts published every helt year in the Calciuta papers be likewise published in the Times and Marring Chronicle, and that a book continuing copies of all the Reports, since the commencement of the Pant, be bless wise forwarded to the London Agents for the impaction of Proprietors in England, and that all future Reports be entered in the same book.

Mr. Clarke then addressed the meeting respecting the approximent of a London Agent, as tollows:-

Mr. Clarke stated, that he had now to call the attention of the meeting to a mo t important tount, the selection of their London Agent. It was a point on which he felt great anxiety, for he was conscious how much the success of his plan depended on a proper selection, and he had not had any opportunity of consulting his brother Directors on the propriety of the proposition he was now about to submit, -- and which was in fact altering a determination which he and his brother Directors had at their last meeting all coincided in. At that last meeting it had been proposed, that the Agency of the Union Bank, should be offered to the Firms of Coutts' or Childs'. He Mr. Clarke knew very little of London Banks, or of Alercantile affairs, and he was always desirous of being guided by his brother Directors on these points,-in which practice and experi nee were so essential. But circumstances might occur, which involved general principles, and as circumstance of this nature had occurred, which had convinced him, that he had found a Bank far preferable to those which had been proposed. It was only two or three days ago and since the last meeting of the Directors. that he. (Mr. Clarke) had accidentally met with a work, by Mr. James William Gilbart, entitled the history and principles of Banking. The book was a clear and excellent compilation, and in it was contained a full account of the London and Westminster Bank. Of this Bank, he had often beard, of its details

At the ord of the fi si year 17,713 were taken, at tho end of the second 20,316 were taken, and at the end of the third 29,362. Thus in three years from the commencement, the number of shares taken up, had nearly tribled. The number of share was limited to 50 000 at 100 C per share, as yet only 20 C had been called for, and the paid up capital in March was sixty Lacks, and it would shortly be eighty The Westminister Bank had made then first dividend bankers, and other parties residing at a distance. on December 1831, when they divided 2 per cent putting by a surplus profit of 1205.C, the seconyour they divided I per cent, with a surplus profit of 4107 £ the third year they divided 5 percent putting by a surplus of 70.7 £. In consequence of having incurred an outlay of 19,309, the preliminary expenses of their establishment, they sale 9.333 share at a premium of £4-10, which gave them a profit of £41,998, with this they paid and to mutually important and beneficial results. of the debt of preliminary expenses, leaving a surplus of £20.003, which added to the surplus of the third year, formed a reserved fond of £27,030 no report, and he felt justified in saving that it had proved itself to be a most prosperous justitution not know the number of shareholders, but as there were 502, when 17 Od chares had been taken, be presuged there must be eight or ame hundred now, when there were nearly thirty thou and shares and unanimously resolved taken There were sixteen Directors, Mr. Clarke here read their names.

MEETING OF CATHOLICS.

Last Fillay, in pursuance of the requisition which appeared in the newspapers, a Meeting of the Roman Catholic ion and talk of Calentia took place at the Town-Mall. The number of persons present was upwards of one hundred and fifty. The proceedings commenced at half afters on, by Mr. John Lickersteen being called to take the chair. Having read the requisition by which the meeting had been convened, he addressed them in the following words.

GENTLEMEN, -I feel proud of the honor of being called upon to preside on so interesting an occasion, although I feel that my own personal feelings tend to atthough I feel that my own personal regings tend to embarrass me not a little. But, gentlemen, when I see before me so large and respectable a body of what I must consider the friends and admirers of the most likev. Dr. St. Leger, I cannot but teel assured that accommon sympathy, a universal feeling of sorrow, unitse us another than the said on such an occasion; and as I fully accord in all that is said in t. I am sure you also, when you have heard it, will agree with me in opinion. Of him I will take the liberty of saying, that there is no man who carries with him a greater portion of the regret, the good wishes and the respect of the commanity of which he has been a distinguished ornament, l'o loose such a man, is indeed a trying calamity, aggravated as it is by the apprehension that the heavy loss we have sustained, cannot be easily supplied.

The chairman then read the following address:

Most Riviers D Sea, - We, the undersigned Catholic inhabitants of Calcutta, contemplating with deep regret your approaching departure for Europe, respectfully beg leave to convey to you the expression of our untergred sorrow at the great and public loss which the Catholic Mission of Bengal has experienced.

Had we been made aware even in the slightest degree of your catention to resign the important office which for more than four years you discharged with the most distinguished anal, piety and talents, we should have implored you, with per-severing carnesiness, to read the intended measure of your resign ation, and to continue to in the brief period of your pastoral government; when we impart to us the blessings of your spiritual government.

But that regret is unavailing, and all we have now left is to indulge in the melancholy pleasure of pouring forth the warm feelings of our hearts, actuated as it by one impolsato declare, that we owe you a very heavy debt of gratifude which it will scarcely be in our power ever to discharge.

When you came amongst us, we were a community torn by civil dissensions and engaged in rancorous warfare; the bitterness of party and the spirit of hatred were rapidly distroying all brotherly love and Christian charity. But how soon did the silent and irresistible inflannee of your personal character create a salutary change. You restored harmony, awakened religious zeal, and timely ariested the progressor an unholy strife. We are now proud in the conscioueness of having advanced several degrees in the scale of social importance, and can we ungratefully lerget the friendly hand which raised us?

It is also our pude to remember, that by the persuasive charm of your amiable qualities, the most important results were produced amongst our separated brethren in Calcutta. How frequently were we pained to observe the cribe ourselves, disorder that prevailed in our churches; how often had we suffered the humiliation of witnessing the indecorous behaviour of strangers, and what always added to the poignancy of our insulted belings was, that the great mass of our own community gave on implied sanction. The address that has been just read to you does not to these outrages, by the impiety and rudeness of inform you of any occumstances with which you are not their own conduct. Our separated brethren so on saw in you, the head of the Bengal Vicared from you in opinion, were united in respect and regard for your personal character.

But what materially contributed to attract the respect of our separated brethren was the circumstance of your respected name and labors being infinishely associated with several useful plans for promoting education. Soon after your arrival, was founded the Calcutta college of St. Frances Vavier, which you readily permitted to be opened under the spectrum of your valued patronage. With equal readiness you consented to become the President of our Catholic Fice School in Calcutta, warmly entering initial its details, suggesting and carrying into operation sectial material initions over the and generously adding to its pecuniary resources from a very limited In the same spirit of active benevolence, you forwarded the establishments of Free Schools in Chitiagoing, where no such provision existed for the children of a large Catholic population. These are measures not only important and salutary in themselves; but highly effectual in disarming the prejudices of those who were taught to believe that catholicism was inimical to the spread of knowledge.

It should be indeed a subject of self-congratulation to you, respected, Su, that you have been the instrument under providence, to secure for the Catholics of India a crest and well conducted seminary, where their children might descrive a splendid and liberal education with the free and unshackled exercise of the religion of their fathers. The experience of more than two years has proved the excellence of the plan, and you enjoy the consciousness of leaving this noble institution under the guardianship of a talented and influential body of men, who, though some of them were at first consciously opposed to your views, have one and ad cordially co-operated with you in its admirable management.

This resolution was seconded by Mr. F. Rodrigues.

Mr. R. Dias then addressed the meeting as follows-Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen, in using to support the resolution that has just been seconded. I am sure I am doing only that which every one of this large assembly is prepared to do; but as an individual I cannot repress my leelings at the sudden and distressing departure of a friend the deservedly revered and beloved object of the Roman Catholic community of Bengal in Doctor St. Leger. I ask if there is one among you who can withhold declaring that as a friend lie was sincere, is a gentleman honorable, as a prelite pious and exemplary, and as a man generally would it be presumption to say "we shall never see his like again?" (much applause). Do we not know that his disposition was so but one of the happinest results of your ministry, is blause). The we not know that the meta lord as a lord, like it is not that stupendous work of education, La Marti. blended with benevolence, that he meta lord as a lord, like it cannot be denied shat it was the rare union of and a peasant as his equal—who can say to the personal and intellectual worth which placed you in a contrary? Then let us enquire into the acts of that dig and schism? and was not be the greatactist whose shall alone softened down the harshness of the feelings that then existed? and did not be ultimately transform that picture into one of which we are now justly proud? This excellent man are, we about to lose, and the present occasion to me is one of mourning and sorrow; but to find that there are so many who are sensible of the good we received and of the heavy loss we shall soon sustain, is a gratification and to Dr. St. Leger it will be satisfactory. - In the expression of my feelings on a late occasion, accusations have been made against me; but I shall avail my self hereafter of the same channel to refute the calumnies that have cone abroad. Yet, and I feel it deeply when I am obliged to say, this dignitary, to whom we are so deeply indebte I, has been affronted by one; but of him I shall say nothing just now You are all unanimous, the loss is generally and deeply lamented, and I believe I need hardly say that I hope you all accord in the sentiments which I have attempted so feebly to express. It ought has escaped my lips offensive to any of you, let me beg it may be forgiven, and if I have said no more than you all feel, I shall feel that I have done my duty (loud and continued applause.)

The Chairman now put Mr. Clow's resolution to the vote, and it was carried nem. con.

Mr. DeVine .- Gentlemen. there are many to my knowledge anxious to sign this address; but they have been prevented by causes over which they have no control from attending this meeting, and I am sure there are many more similarly situated, of which I am not Under these circumstances, I beg leave to informed propose "that the address, after it has been signed by the gentlemen present be placed until Fuesday morning, at the Parochial house attached to the church of N. S. De-Rozario, for the purpose of receiving additional signatares.

This resolution was seconded by Mr. W. Lackersteen, and carried unanimously.

Mr. Dias .- Gentlemen, I have just been informed, that a few friends of Dr. St. Leger have caused a portrait of that Rev. gentleman to be taken; and further, that the subscribers to that portrait have resolved to ask the permission of the Rev. Vicar of the church of N S. DeRozario to allow the portrait to be hung up in the drawing roun of the suit of apartments at the Parochial house lately occupied by Dr. St. Leger. Now, gentlemen, admitting the full light of the subscribers to dispose of this portiant as they think proper, I do feel myself called upon to say, that, as Dr. St. Leger was a public character among us, and as I am suicities the called upon to say, that it is the myself called upon to say that the proof to prove the case the called upon to say that as Dr. St. Leger was a public character among us, and as I am suicities will be provided throughout, and every one left the room was a public will be provided to join in this tribute of well satisfied with the proceedings of the evening; but the same that paster it would be said to the latest the same that the Catholic public will be proud to join in this titbute of well satisfied with the proceedings of the evening; but respect to their late much respected pastor, it would regretting the loss they are likely to suffer by the departifying to our feelings to join in, and as it were parture of their much esteemed and highly respected confirm, their resolution. I therefore, gentlemen, beg Pastor, Doctor R. St. Leger — Hurkaru, Dec. 18.

This resolution was seconded by Mi. Crow, who stated that he was one of the subscribers to the Portrait, and that he felt much pleasure in seconding a resolution in which he had already joined at a meeting of the subscribers.

This icsolution was also carried unanimously.

Proposed by Mr. J. Heberlet, seconded by Mr. M

John Lackersteen, C. R. Lackersteen, W. R. Lackersteen, E. O Brien, J. O'Brien, T. Gregory, M. Crow, P. Bonnaud, P. J. DeVine, F. Rodrigues, J. Rodrigues, and J. Leal.

Proposed by Mr. Ed. O'Brien, seconded by Mr. A. Lackersteen.

That the names of Messrs. J. Heberlet, M. Augier. and B. Fune be added.

The signing of the address being nearly ended, Mr. Dias ad livesed the neeting, and complimenting the chairman on his opening speech and the successful conduct of the business of the evening, proposed to him a vote of thanks. Mr. Crow having seconded the proposition, it was carried by acclamation.

Mr. Luckersteen - Gentlemen. I rise to return my thanks for the handsome compliment you have paid me. Allow me to assure you, gentlemen, that I feel proud for the manner in which you have been pleased to accept of my services on this occasion. I feel still more proud of the honor conferred on me in having been called to the chair on such an occasion, and prouder still that the business of the evening has been carried on in so orderly and harmonious a minner. The sympathies of all seem on this interesting occasion to have been awakened, and to unite us all in one common feeling of regret at the d. parture of our worthy and much esteemed paster, and in the desire to pay him this last tribute of respect. The thought of this overpowers me, and I am unable to give expression to what I teel; I must therefore conclude by returning you my sincere thanks

To these succeeded the 2d division of the 3d class M. Brandon, (attached to the Catholic Church of N. S. D'Rozario,) the Rev. Mr. Piffard, Dr. F. Corbyn, Graves and several other distinguished supporters of education.

The business of the day commenced at about hal after ten A. M., when the two last classes, the 5th and after ten A. M., when the two last classes, the 5th and after ten A. Messrs Fishers, Picance, and Boaz and Dr. Corbyn. The boys were well sited in Latin and English Grammar, Parsing, Geography and use of the Gilobes, Scripture History, questions in the Old and New Testaments, and one or two other branches, in all which they seemed to give satisfaction to the examiners Lach Sentences five vere allo tried in English Grammar and Parsing, Il tones of Greece, Rome, and Lordand, Geor phy and the use of the Globes, general questions in the Souptness, Arnhaetic, &c. and acquitted thems dves well

The examination of the 2d and the 1st classes occupied a very long time; they had much to do and were thanoughly shed in the winds brinches of their stu-dies by Rev. Di. F. Odiffe, the R.v. Vissas, Fishers Picance, Camebell, Dr. Cochyn, Messes Boutton, Crox Dias an Isoveral others, as also by the Secretity and the teaches of the classes. The studies of the fits class were Littin, consisting of Viril, Harrie, and a partial Salling. Threachout the trials of the different classes, we were particularly attentive as to the manner in which the questions were out and answered, and had the satisfaction to find that the students repeated fully to understand the national of their virtues studies. We also asked the orimore of the Rev. Dr. Of offe, and the Rev. Mr. Compbell the former expressed himself g nor dly satisfied and the latter, who had attended former exceptions of this Sommary stated, that he found very great improvement had been made, especially in the evidences of Ghestra-miyant Latin. Woodselves closely examined several sets of broks of merchants accounts that were on the table and found the successive entries correctly made, and the books opened and closed in a very business like

There were also several specimens of drawing exhibited, all of which displayed considerable taste, and freedom in the execution. We were particularly stonek by a landscape in water colors; it was an Indian Scene, drawn on very rough paper, the inclowness of coloring. the baldices and the freedom of the touches, and above all the general effect were highly creditade to Master Randolph, by whom it was drawn We had the emiosity to call two of the boys of the drawing class and giving them a pened, we had them sketch, a but and some foliage as well as the outline of the human face, in held these their success was astonishine, potrailarly of Master Forster, whose foliage was drawn in a masterly style.

A number of Prize Essays were also on the table We noticed the following, viz on the Benefits of Laterature, the study of Mathematics, Friendship, the Admiinstration of Lord. Connwallis and a Historical. Sketch of the Punic War. We had no opportunity of reading any, but we were told by some good judges, that several of them did great credit to their authors; and Mr. Montaque, the head teacher of the institution, informed us, that these Essays had not been improved by the teach ers Recitations were introduced at proper intervals, with which the ladies and the children appeared to be highly delighted, some of them were well got up, considering the age of the performers.

Towards the close of the examination, Mr. Crow addressed the assembly and stated, that in consequence of the changes which the remains of the East Indian body had wit in a few years undergone, and in consideration of the prospects which now opened before them of employment under Government of a higher order than those to which they were before exclusively confined, the Committee of Management of which he was one had thought it advisable to make a corresponding change in the system of education adopted in the institution He informed them, that in pursuance of this object, a sub-committee had been formed, who had closely and attentively looked into the system of education pursued at this Seminary, and had remodelled it; by which property the studies of the Bengalli and Hindoostani languages, able.—Hurkaru, Dec. 17.

The 1st division of the third class was examined by which had hitherto been pursued as extra studies, and the Rev Mosse. These changes he said were intended to be brought into operation on the re-opening of the school. (Checis)

> After this Mr. W. Byrn, the Secretary, who is deservedly considered the Chief Pillar of this institution, addressed the boys of the first and second classes who were then before him, to the following effect: - It is now time that prizes should be distributed to some of you, which will be done by Mr. Montague, the Head Teacher of the institution; but I feel myself called upon to bun; to your notice, that in themselves the prizes are nothing, in I they are given only to create a zeal for study. Many of you will go without prizes, although your exertions have been considerable, and describe great That is appreciated by me had all those cou-in your unprovement. The receiving of the not ceined in your improvement. receiving of a prize does not alter the case. In feed I do not consider it at all obligatory on the institution to award mizes, and am very much disposed to question the expedience of the prevailing custom. It, therefore, any of you feel disappointed at going was without prize, I trust the reflections I have made will I som that for his, especially when I inform you, that I have a nebed your progress with care, during the part year, I have strictly examined you this day, and I wave heen perfectly subshed with the result of your Libouts. But what gives me and our i to ence you the greatest satisfiction, is the fact that several gratiemen of great tylents and judgment, but macronected with this institution, who have also eximinal you to div, accord with me in opinion on this subject. This is very flattering to me and to your teachers, who have laboured for your improvement and who cannot but hel gratified to see their exertions met by corresponding efforts on you

> The prizes consisted of two gold and tensilver predals. which were organizated on one side with a very pretty and appropriated devise - a bee love in a shrubbery and a band of bees at work extracting honey ham the flowers, and traching, by their example, the value of inclusing and its sweet results. The name of the institution surrounds the upper part of the medal, and on their obverse side two sprigs of larged are paint outcode an coupty space intended, we believe, for the name of the winner. Among these medits we were particularly struck by a benefitful silver star presented by M. J. Wood, with the Latin inscription engraved on a flowing tibbond -" Palmam que merut Ferat;" but by far the largest number of prizes consisted of books, the selection of which was very judicious; the sets were suited to the respective classes, and to the utilitarian spirit of the times. Mr. Montague, in delivering the or.zes, accompanied some of them with suitable addreses, upon the character of each book and of the receiver. tauling his exertions and pointing out in very plain language the particulars in which we thought there was room for improvement. Mr. Glass also presened, on behalf of Mr. Wood, Rothn's ancient Histort. to Master Westropp.

The boys conducted thems elves throughout in the most orderly manner, and every part of the business was got through with a degree of regularity, which manifested the strict discipline observed at this great and national institution of the East Indians, which now impuls the blessings of education to upwards of 200 hoys. The only painting that decorates the examination ball, is the pory trait of Mr. Rickets, the late Secretary of this institution, and the Agent of the East Indians to Parliament. We should be glad to see the opposite wall decorated by the Portrair of its present Secretary, Mr. Wale Byrn, whose long services to this institution are invalu-

THE ST. ANDREW'S DINNER.

The St. Andrew's Festival on Friday evening, the 30th November, was well attended, and went off with the usual eclat and meriment of that anniversary. The President's chair was admirably filled by Mr. Leith and that of the Cipupier by Mr. W. P. Grant, There were several very eloquent specches made on the occasion, of the plurality of which the following is, we believe, a tolerably correct detail:—

After the two first toasts—" The Queen" and "The Prous Memory of St. Andrew," which were drank, without, by the bre, any prefatory remarks from the chair "The Land of Cukes" was proposed in the tohowing terms by Mr. Leuth.—Gentlemen,—The next toast which I have the honor to propose, is also a national toast; but it is one which both custom and our own feelings will allow us to respond to with more warmth, and outward demonstration of enthusiasm, than the last. It is the Land of Cakks.

Gentleman, - It has been often notice las a national characteristic, that Scotchmen are fond of migrating from their native land, and this love of travel and the unbounded limits of our wanderings, which do not always have for their object a richer country than one own, have given lise to the facetious saying, that if the North Pole had been discovered a Scotchman would have been found perched upon its top. With this national guaracteristic, however, co-exists another as strongly developed, and which cannot be denied to as, meons, tent as it may appear - our love of countra! ((1,ers) bar as we may wurder, and distant though we may be, from our native land, the Land of Cake , Scotenmen will over draw together, and unite in the bonds of bretherhood, and Scotehnen will ever and ag up, in the moments sucred to the deepest emotion and holdest feelings, turn their faces towards Scotland, with as true a direction as the Mahommedan to Mecca! (fond appliase.) We are this night met to celebrate the conversity of our Intelar Saint, and to include in those delightful feelings which well forth from our hearts in thinking of our native land, and of our domestic hearts In this yearly fistivil, we come forth, as it were from the world of business, and from the busy seenes of enterorize and professional exection, that we " may gother up our thoughts, and mark at lessur, features that else had vainshed like a dicam, to conjugate up " a thousand thoughts that were old household thoughts." Which of you does not turn with fond affection to the spot where you diew your first breath, or heard your tare well sigh, to some spot sacred to the best offictions that " nestle there?" Is there not some tree, or brook, some mountain or some forcut, that is hallowed by recollections of your earliest, and no doubt happiest years? While all of us must recall, with pleasure and with pride, those scene of nature's grandeur, and Scotland's heroism which are stainped " with a local soul of independence and stern liberty."

I have said Scotchmen are given to journeying into foreign lands; but it is to their honor, that we find in the eathest records of Continental Europe, that the alliance of our wandering countrymen was courted, that they were prized as he elite of aimies, and that we now see in modern and more peaceful times, that our countrymen are honored as useful members of society in those place-where they sojourn; and in their honor Scotland hareceived honor. May we act our parts as well, white exiles from our homes, and return worthy of our country, to spend the decline of life in our native land, the Land of Cakes! I give you, gentlemen, as the toast, The Land of Cakes. Air - " Auld Lang Syne."

Mr. Leth-It was a saying of one of the Ancients. upon being asked which of all his friends be estimated the most, that " finey a usuall the bance such a question could be arswered." Now, this saving may be applied with a little alteration to the consideration of the ments of our Governors, who although they need not the a natunal death, must become ta wir othera, police dix de id, before we can from a just estimate of their worth, or at least, before we can profounce in culogium up in them. valuous running the risk of being charged with flattery! This must be now exerce for nordwelling on the merits of our present Crovernor G in cal, the support of our present toast. This much, however, I will say, that Lord Anchem I has contiled houself to our respect and thanks, for the enconfagement which he has given, during his short residence in Index, to commerce and education, the two great means of promoting the properity and happiness of the country over which highest been called to mie. Mr Teath - I give you, without profess or comment, the men who have braved "the bastle and the breeze." The Navy! An-"Rule Tratannia"

Captura W. Crossyton returned thanks.

Mr. Levili — The next toast is the Array. In drinking to this toast, let us recollect that it was by the army that we hold Braish India, the brightest and most covered, although seemingly, least appreciated pewel of the British crown. When it shall be said of Britain as is now said of Venice, "once did she hold the gorgeous Fast in tee," the British Parliancest, and our home rulers, may be faught her time value, and to appreciate her less. But, as long as the motal power of our army and navy remains nompared, we need not tear such loss; and we may boldly say to our trisidous enemics and open foes, whether Russian, Petsian, Butmahn, or Affghan.

" Come one, come all, the rock shall flee From its firm base, as soon as we!" An —" British Grenadiers."

Col, McI cod returned thank in a brief speech of much ability and humour.

Mr. W. P. Grant....Gentlemen, I have to call you back to the time when the independance of Scotland was longht for and established by our two great heroes, William Wall via and Robert Breek. They fought for all that is dear to man, their homes and their country, and secured the independance of Scotland, and in so doing, with tood one of the greatest perhaps of England's Kings, King Edward. It is remarkable that this was effected within the period of, I believe, twenty years, for Wallace declared the independance of Scotland by the battle of Sinling, and Bince established it by the battle of Bannockhuin, I call you to dink, gentlemen, to the Memory or William Wallace and Robert Brucks. Song by Mr. S. Thompson "Scots who late."

Mr. Lieth — The next toast which I have the honor to propose, is the health of The Prishtist of the Conscillor India, Colonel Morrison, who is in every respect stimable as a man, and an honor to our country. Air — "The Banks of Allan Water."

Mr Leith.—You have have just drunk to the rising sun, I now give you the setting sun. It has been said, and truly said, "an honest man's the noblest work of God." Such is our countryman, the subject of my toast, Alax. Ross, the late President of the Council of India. (great cheering, which lasted several minutes.) Gentlemen, I am glad to see that I have anticipated your wishes, and that your hedings and opinions correspond with mine, and that I judged rightly in supposing that I might take upon my-eli to introduce this toast, although not in the list of toasts put into my hands. I proposed this toast because I believed, and that belief is now strong thened by the manner in which you have received it, that Mr. Ross, in descending from his high office and returning to his native land, carries with him the estiem and regrets of all classes of the community. Air—" A man's a man far a' that."

Mr. Letth.—The next toast is the health of a gentleman, who has honored us with his presence this evening as a guest. I have the honor to propose the health of the Governon or Serampone. Are—"The Copenhagen Walte."

The Governor of Serampore. - I return my thanks to the Sons of St. Andrew for the kind manner in which they have drunk my health, and for the hospitable reception which I have met with from them.

Mr I eth -1 have already said that the habits of our countryman are erratic. I have now to propose the health of a wanderer from his native land at present a sojourner among us. But although he is a stranger in our Society, he nevertheless comes among us this evening not as a guest but as Scotchman, let us then give him a Scottish welcome. I would introduce him, gentlemen, to your notice, not only as a countryman, but as late distinguished member of the British Panhament, who, in that nody, represented one of the greatest counters of that great country, England. I have the pleasure to propose the health of Mir. Portin McQuits, late member for Bedfordshite. Au—" liere and there awa wandering Willie?

Mr. Potter McQueen.—Accept my warmest thanks for the kind manner in which my health has been proposed and drunk. I have no claim to this honor but my being a Scotchman. I have been a wanderer, and during my stay in Australia from whence I have just come, one of my greatest enjoyins its was to meet my countrymen at each returning festival of our National Sunt. These meetings are most processingly, they keep alive the best feelings, and conduce not only to keep upour affection for our native land and for our countrymen, but for all mankind. These meetings are known to have been instrumental in forwarding the most chantable and praiseworthy objects. I beg leave to return you my most grateful manks for the honor you have done me.

Dr. Grant .- I shall perhaps horrify some of you by declaring that I feel strongly tempted to abuse the Supreme Court You, of course, expecting to give my exquisite reasons for such a proceeding. In the first place then, it would be in such good taste, seeing that several honorable individuals connected with the Supreme Court are present; secondly, it is so easy to abuse, if you once can bring your mind to condescend to it. It is, indeed. so easy, that should thus have the elements of a ready made speech quite contenient. (theers). In the next place I see no reason why one person, however distinguished his abilities or high his rank, should have a monopoly of abusing the Supreme Court. (Cheers) He must not, I say, be allowed to have it all to himself. It is too good a thing. Abuse must be also exceedingly refreshing, judging from the alactity and energy with which some betake themselves to it. Thus have I heard of yore while enjoying the poetical fragrance of "the flowers of Edinburgh," two of those interesting Nereids who rejoice in proclaiming the excellency of "Cauller herring," amuse have alluded to, would also have the desirable effect of producing a sensation, and what is the chief object of most people but to cause a sensation? What are you all assembled for here this evening, but either to excite or share sen-ation? What is life itself, indeed, in the abstract, but the giving and the receiving of sensation ? (Laughter) But my reason of reasons for abusing the Supleme Court is, that were it not for the tyranny of that court, I should be sitting quietly in my chair instead of making a speciacle of myself for the slow unmoving eye of one or two hundred sons of St. Andrewto gaze at. By pursuing such a course too, you might be pretty sure of getting an excellent speech from my friend Mr. Clarke, or some other son of Themis would no doubt get on his legs and make one in reply. I thus logically make out my case against the Court; were there no Supreme Court there would be no Calcutta bar, and there no Calcutta bar, there there would be no John Farley Leith to be one of its most rising and brightest ornanents, and to preside here this evening, issuing his command (which must be obeyed) that I should propose a toast, Having thus vented my spleen against our Chairman and the Supreme Court, I now approach with the senousness becoming the subject of my to ist, for I have as yet hesitated to do so from consciousness of my own mability to do it justice.

It is but right, gentlemen, that you should be aware I rise by command, otherwise might I be deemed amenable to a charge of presumption for volunteering a toast, that to be done justice to requires no ordinary qualifications in the speaker, as you will allow when I state that it is the although or Sir Wallier Scorr. Nevertheless, while I disclaim its being supposed that I am volunteering a speech on this occasion, I consider it a very great honor to have been called upon to propose the toast, for I am second to no one in feelings of the highest admiration, and I may even say revenues for the character or our illustrious countryman, Sir Walter Scott. (Chrees)

To attempt upon such an occassion as this to give an elaborate summary of his genius and acquirement, would be out of place, even if it were not not superfluous, fresh as no doubt your recollections must be of his memoris by his gibed son-in-law, one of the ablest, most honest and manely works of biography that has (at least so it seems to me) ever issued from the press. (Load Applause.)

The genin of Sir Walter Scott was no less remark. able for the vastness of its range, than for its versatility. He was a wonderful painter not only of external nature. in all her varieties of aspect and change, but of man from the palace to the cot, from the senate to the dangeon. In each and every department you find the same strong, yet delicate; -flowing but accurate, pencil. There was a time when England taight twit us with her glorious Shake peare; but, without abetting a jot of our high admiration for him, we can now boast also of the Shakespeare of Scotland. In tragedy or comedy Sir Walter Scott was like Shakespeare, equally at home. To illustrate this by instances, to my present audience, would be quite superfluous. But it was not the tragedy and comedy of courts and camps, or of the great ones of the earth, that his genius exclusively devot-t ed itself to. In both departments his representations of middle and of humble life are equally felicitous, affecting and true. Two allusions will sufficiently demonstrate this-" the Bride of Lammermuir"-throughout, and the moving sceno in the fisherman Mucklebacket's cottage. What a magnificence of natural pathos in bothand yet each how different!

Edinburgh," two of those interesting Nereids who rejoice in proclaiming the excellency of "Cauller herring," amuse themselves much to their now apparent delectation and heedification of all who how them. Such a step as I ble memory. How enviable—they only can say who

In that vast store-house of knowledge, youth. that immense emporium of lore, he could readily find, and in abandance, whatever he required;—the judicial process, the obscure historical incident, the remote tradition, the wild legend, and the ancient ballad. Any order on that intellectual Bank was cashed at sight and at the pleasure of the drawer in massive bullion or bushels of farthings !

Having thus slightly touched upon his talents and his acquirements, we are next to consider what use he made of them. It is here that, indeed, we may be proud of our great and good countryman. Without hying himself servilely out for it—his works have ever a moral, and generally a just one. The violent man will there find reflected the finits of violence. The profigate will there read in fearful characters, the lesson that profligacy sooner or later learns to its undoing, and the good will there be further encouraged to love goodness for its own sake.

It is impossible not to be struck in him with that abundance of the milk of human kindness that makes unlove the man, and which ever gave a sweetness to the keen perceptions of genius and governed his sense of the humorous and the ridiculous. He delighted not like some authors in gloating malignantly over the fruities of poor human nature or feathering against it, the shafts of pittless satire and scorn. The elements we e so blandly mixed up in him that he was slow to any of the irritations of authorship, and utterly above that mi-erable caption-ness to the merits of others, or those unhappy jealousies which have also been too much the reproach of the literary character. It is but just however to observe, that this moderation was not the result merely of a constitutional placedity, but of a lofty principle and a conviction of the worse than uselessness of such angry controversies.

For all these, then, let us honour ourselves by testifyhis lived long enough, a sentiment I think beautifully expressed by Seneca. Vitasi scias uti-longa est. Vivere bonum non est, sed bene vivere. Itaque non ut din vivamus curandum est, sed bene. Longa est vita, si plena est. Quid hommem Juvant Octoginta anni per meitiam exacti ! Sapienter et fortiter factis, metiamur enjusque vitam non tempore. Landemus, et in numero febetom, tenonamus cum cui quantulunicunque temporis Contight, bene collocatum est ' (Applause.) .

Have we not reason, indeed, to be proud of being the fellow countrymen of such a man, who was not only possessed of such admirable qualities, but was a true Scotsman to hoot, and one who loved Scot, and dearly? If great were his ments, commensurate, for a time, was his triumph. No writer ever lived, that in his life time attained such a height of extensive popularity, such an eminence of prosperity and glory, as Sir W. Scott.

The prosperity alas! was hollow and fleeting, and withered in his grasp, but sublime were his efforts not merely to endure but to master adversity. The glory, on the other hand, remains and will continue to flourish like the ever green pines of his native hills, and imperishable as the blue mountains of Scotland.

He has laid our country under a lasting debt of gratitude, for there is not a hill or a valley of Scotland that he has not rendered classic by the magic of his genius. But let me close this hasty sketch, and that gratefully. for the indulgence with which you have listened to me. Of all the tragedies associated with the name of our illustrious countryman, the most moving appears to me to be the close of that precious life. Behold him setting strength, which he was destined never to enjoy again. verence. Behold now that mighty genius eclipsed, that glorious intellect obscured; he has only one aident, earnest wish, and heaven granted it this was to die in his dear Scotland. At length he remembers his beloved Abbotsford, the cloud rises, his intellectual powers may again recover their strength, his health may return, some ideas flit across his mind; he desires to commit them to paper, he is wheeled by his affectionate family into his study, he is set before that desk whence emanated so many splendi ! and immortal works; his favorite daughter places the pen in his hand. Mr. Leuth .- The next toast is Sin John Peter GRANT and the Judges of the Supreme Court. My own professional position, and the presence of my respected I friend who does me the honor to sit on my right, and for all these, then, let us nonour ourselved and I friend who does me the honor to should be ingount respect for the memory of the mighty dead. I friend who does me the honor to should be used to give, whose nume is prefixed to the toast I am about to give, whose nume is prefixed to the toast I am about to give, fear that I am getting tedious [cries of no, no.] We whose name is prefixed to the toast I am about to give, might from a self-h feeling lament that he did not live prevents me saying all that might be sail in giving this longer; but he who has led an active and an useful life, toast. This, I will, however, tearlessly say, because it his lived long enough, a sentiment I think beautifully is the simple and well known truth, that the judges of the Supreme Court are not merely administrators of the law, but uncompromising dispensers of justice. Air-" The Judges are met."

Sir John Peter Grant .- I rise to return thanks to you, gentlemen, on behalf of myself and my colleagues, for the manner in which you have responded to the toast which my honorable friend has proposed. I am commissioned by Sir Edward Ryan, the Chief Justice, to express to you his regiet at not being present this evening ; this he feels the more, as it is the first time he has been absent from a St. Andrew's dinner for a number of years. The cause of his absence is this. Sir Henry Seton has only just arrived in this country, and does not yet feel audiciently at home or acclimated to venture to a public dinner. He was, on this account, compelled to decline your invitation, and as he is at present residing with Sir Edward Ryan, the latter could not leave him.

Mr. Leith .- Gentlemen - Tue Civit Service, with all the honors, Air-" Todlin Hame".

Sir John Peter Grant .- 1 believe on the last occasion, I proposed the toast which I am now about to give. I suppose it is the gravity of my age and situation that is thought to fit me in a particular degree for giving this Gentlemen, to the subject of this toast our nation toast. owes all that she is, and to it we are indebted for all that weare. It is the Kirk of Scotland, (cheers). Allusions have been made to the national character of Scotchmen; that character is owing to the religion which the nation professes, and which not only brought us into existence, but has formed our character. The Kirk is, therefore, emitted to our utmost respect and recluded by saying aloud I I now propose THE KIRK OF SCOTLAND. Air -" Ay ain kind dearie."

N. W. P. Grant. - Gentlemen, I ask your permission, not the Chairman's, to propose a toast. It is the health of my worthy friend our Chairman, who has aided so much in promoting the conviviality of this evening, and who has always been ready to aid and assist at these our national meetings, since he has been in Calcutta. I give his health as a true Mearted Scotchman. The health of our Chairman, Mr. Leith. Air.—"Thore's Cauld Kailin Aberdeen!"

Mr. Leith .- I return my grateful thanks to my kind and worthy friend, for the manner in which he has been pleased to propose the last toast, and to you, gentlemen, for the manner in which you received it. I regret, gentlemen, for your sakes, that this chair is not better filled. I cannoot but be sensible of my own deficiencies, when I compare myself with those who have filled this chau in bygone times. There was a Craigdarrock; many of you, gentlemen, must recollect his eloquence and fervor in presiding at these meetings; and then there was my worthy friend opposite, Dr. John Grant, whose ability as Chairman is fresh in all our recollections; and then, though last not least, in our estimation and regard, Sir John Peter Grant, who filled this chair not only to the satisfaction, but to the delight of as all (cheers). Gentlemen, I have made a mistake, and I apologize for it. said that Sir John Grant filled this chair, I ought to have said that-it was Rothimurcus (cheers). This name puts me in mind of a toast which I have often had the pleasure to propose from this chair; and which has been always responded to, as I am sure it will be on this occa-sion, with acclamation. It is the health of a Highland Laird, who, notwithstanding his elevated position in our society, considers, I will venture to say, his paternal title—Rothimurcus, his proudest title and best loved

Knowing that his happiness is bound up in the happiness of another who is about to leave us. I regret to say, to seek for health in her native country, I trust he will permit me to join that lady's name with his in this toast; it is the name of Lady Grant, who requires but to be known to be esteemed. Nay, gentlemen, were I re-quired to describe what a wife and a gentle woman ought to be, I would point to Lady Grant. May she soon be restored to the enjoyment of perfect health, and may she and Rothimurcus be soon re-united .- if not in this country, in their native Land. Here's to the health of Rothimurcus and Lady Grant. Air-" Roth:murcus Runt."

Sir John Peter Grant .- I am overpowered by my feelings, gentlemen, and cannot thank you as I would. My happiness is indeed bound up in that of another, in whose praise I ought not to speak, but of whom I can-not speak without praise. You will excuse me, gentlemen, in expressing to you but a small part of that which I feel. I cannot trust myself to speak, but I shall only say that the name I most love is that of Rothimurcus, and that I hope while I remain in this country, I may have many occasions afforded me of telling you so, and of expressing to you my thanks, in a proper manner, which my feelings will not at Sesent allow me to do, for your good wishes for reyself and Lady Grant.

Mr Leith. - There is something melancholy in drinkin to the memory of one we love-our toast is THE ME. MORY OF BURNS, who although dead yet lives in his poe-try, and in the hearts of his countrymen. It is with mingled feelings of pride and shame, that I propose this toast-pride in being the countryman of Burns, and shame that our country allowed him to sing his " native wood notes wild" amid chilling poverty, and in a situatien which his noble soul and independent spirit spurned. His fate is not, however, a solitary instance of neglect, nor as our country the only one which has allowed worth and talent to remain amidst penury and neglect. Portugal

He con- allowed her Camoens to die in a common hospital without a blanket to cover him, and Spain admired the in-unitable Cervantes, but left him to draw out a miserable existence in constant dread of a prison. Gentlemen, I give you The Memory of Robert Boars, which we shall drink in solemn silence. Air- Flowers of the Forest."

Mr. Leith .- The next toast is THE COMMERCIAL COM-MUNITY OF CALCUTTA, a body most respected and useful, which fosters the industry of the people, developes the resources of the country, creates wealth, and contributes largely to the prosperity and happiness of India. Air - "Money in both pockets."

Mr Spier returned thanks, commenting on the general commerce of the country, of its prosperity, prospects,

Dr. Grant.—By my getting on my legs again, you will say that I am disproving my own assertion that I would prefer keeping my seat; but I have a toast to propose, which I cannot decline. It is the CALCUTTA BAR. I am proud to say that ever since I have been in this country, I have numbered many friends in that body, which for talents, integrity and independence, is not sur-passed by the bar in any part of the world. The members of the bar are ever foremost to aid their fellow citizens, when seeking to secure, or seeking an extension of, their political privileges. The bar is, as it were, a breakwater against the inroad of - but, gentlemen, I am afraid I am going rather far. Well; we will say, the bar is a break-water against the inroad of something, no matter what, which had better be kept out. The bar will stand the calumnies that have been launched at it by Mr. Macaulay, whose opinion and judgment are not much to be thought of. When in this very hall, sitting as chairman of the St. Andrew's dinner, he took occasion three several times to assert, in excellent taste you will admit, that he was not a Scotchman. How different is the conduct of a gentleman here this evening, born to higher rank, and more distinguished than Mr. Macaulay has ever been-Mr. Potter McQueen, who, although he was not born in Scotland himself, but whose father and ancestors were all Scotchmen, as Mr. Macaulay's were, boasts that he is a Scotchman, and has shewn in his speech that he has all the fervor and warmth of heart of a Scotchman. Gentlemen, I give you MR. CHARLES PRINSEP AND THE CALCUITA BAR. - Air " Up and war them a 'willie.'

Mr. Charles Prinsep .- Gentlemen, I rise to return thanks for the honor which you have done me, and the body to which I have the honor to belong; but I wonder that you could receive with such marks of approbation, a toast which has for its subject the Bar of the worst court on the face of the earth. (Great laughter and cheers.) Gentlemen; Dr. Grant has said, the Bar has been calumniated by Mr. Macaulay. It is not surprising, gentlemen, that the man, who could deny his country, should turn traitor to his own profession.

Mr. Clarks, rose and said that he would return thanks on his own behalf, for the honor which had been done the Bar of which he was proud to acknowledge himself a member. In concluding he begged leave to propose a toast—the Ladies of Scotland—no, he meant to say the Lassies of Scotland. Air,—"Lassie wi' the tint white locks.

Mr. Leith.-I take shame to myself in not having earlier in the evening performed a duty, and a labour of love, by proposing the health of my friend the Croupier. I do so now, however, with much pleasure, not only as Croupier, the duties of which office he has so kindly and so ably discharged, not only as chairman on the last occasion in which we met in this Hall, but as the Master of Rothimureus—the worthy son of a worthy sire, and as warm-hearted a Scotchman as I would wish to call a friend. The health of my worthy friend our Croupier with three times three, Air-" Willie brewed a peck o mawt."
Mr. W. P. Grant briefly returned thunks.

Mr. W. P. Grant.—Gentlemen, I have the pleasure adverting to the victories which that country had wone to propose the health of my friend, Mr. Charles Prinsep over the English, to which nation he belonged. The and our English guests, who have honored us with their company this evening. We are men of different countries, but now are on people. Air .- " The Roast Beef of Old England."

Mr. Charles Prinsep .- It is not the first time that I have experienced your hospitality, and have heard the expression of your good will towards my countrymen. I return you my grateful thanks for myself on behalf of my countrymen present. We are, as has been truly said, separate only in name from Scotchmen, we are one people with common rights and common interests, and I pray that England and Scotland may ever remain so, and be united with Ireland in opposing our common

Mr. Leith .- My friend Mr. Prinsep's speech is a fitting introduction to the toast which I have now to propose, it is our laish Guests who have honored us with their company. And I will take the precedent which my friend's speech affords, of offering up a prayer, that the union between Great Britain and Ireland may continue, and that Ireland may in that union enjoy equal previleges, and equal rights with England and Scotland, Air-" St. Patrick's Day."

Mr. L. CLARKE made some remarks upon what had been said regarding the Calcutta Bar, and proposed the and every one appeared highly delighted and gratified Mr. L. Had it not been for Scotland, we would, perhaps, have never been here. Hes early victories, although won over the English, were followed by the establishment of the cause of libery on a firm basis. Their disputes had vanished, and the two nations, were now united in one. He therefore felt great pleasure in proposing the prosperity of Scotland. Drank with all the honors.

Mr. S. Thompson sung the national song, Should auld acquaintance &c., during which the company rose up and holding each other by the hand, joined chorus, The scene was exceedingly pleasing and marken the friendly and brotherly feeling so characteristic of the sons of St. Andrew.

Mr. PATRICK proposed the health of Mr. Longue-ville Clarke, which was drank with much warmth. Mr. Clarke returned thanks in a very eloquent speech.

After this the Bowl of Punch was introduced, and several other songs sung by those who yet continued to prolong the festivities. We left the company about this time enjoying the pleasures of conversation and merriment.

INSURANCE GENERAL COMMITEEE.

Proceedings of a Meeting of Representatives of Insurance Offices, held at the Chamber of Commerce, 22d December, 1838.

PRESENT. R. H. Cockerell, called to the chair. J. Agabeg. W. F. Fergusson.

N. Alexander. P. A. Cavorke. J. W. Cragg. J. Cullen.

R. Davidson. L. DeSouza,

J. Lyall. K. R. Mac Kenzie. A. Muller. W. Prinsep. Rustomice Cowasjee. D. B. Syers.

Read the following communication which had been addressed to the several offices.

GENTIEMEN, -Subjoined is a copy of two Resolutions passed without dissent at the Meeting of Secretaries held on the 10th instant, to which we crave your attention. The reason which led parties to wish the arrangement contemplated by those resolutions, was supplied by the fact, that the occasional meetings of Secretaries to fix rules and regulations, have failed to introduce into the practice of Calcuta Insurance, that unity which is so desirable, and have led to no useful and abiding result. To remidy the inefficacy of such fugitive meetings, it was judged necessary to embody a permanent Commit-tee, deputed by the Directors and selected from their own number, to carry their views into effect, with a harmony of purpose which is now so much wanted-the two primary objects being, to establish uniformity in practice, and to effect a more distinct and equitable classification of risks.

Having been appointed at the aforesaid Meeting to take the preliminary steps for the establishment of a General Committee, and to draw up rules for its guidance, we now beg leave to wait upon you with a brief sketch of the plan, that you may take the sense of your constituents on the merits of the proposition, and obtain their sanction for the formation of the Committee as projected.

You need not to be told, that the circumstance of the extended number of Officers, without any recognised standard to regulate their procedure, and without the maintenance of any mutual understanding, has an unavoidable tendency to over-stimulate competition, which cannot but be injurious to the interests of the shareholders; for amid the struggle for business, not only is it to be apprehended, that the premia in general will be apt to decline below their proper level, but the protective limitations of the policy are too often relaxed, and in risks of very unequal value, there seldom obtains a sufficient discrimination of premium. To prevent such consequences, and to introduce and maiatain a sound economy in general practice, is one important object which is sought to be attained by the construction of the General Committee; but, independently of this desideratum, it is believed that the institution of this regulating Committee will prove largely useful, as a body of delegates from all the directions, well qualified to adjust such differences as may occur between offices and parties, and to deliver opinions on any difficulties, touching which those offices may desire to have authoritative information. The advantages will probably be more appreciated by the shareholders at the present moment, when, almost al! the offices having suffered more or less from the many recent heavy losses, they will naturally be inclined to provide for the future, if possible, the protection of a hetter system.

It is, perhaps, unnecessary to add, that the General Committee is not designed, in the remotest degree, to take cognizance of the concerns, or to interfere with the internal administration of the respective Offices. It is, from its composition, insusceptible of being an adverse or controlling power. Its labors and jurisdiction are to be confined rigidly to matters in which all have a common stake, and which may serve to guard the interests of the shareholders at large. In a word, it is merely meant to represent the interests, collectively, of the Committees, for general purposes, in a more simple and efficient form.

To give full effect to the projected measure, you will be sensible that it is highly desirable, if not indispensible, that all the offices engage to support it.

The measure is conventional—no penalty clause is inserted—but, should it meet now the approbation of the assurers, and continue to be entitled to their respect we hope its provisious will be adhered to.

In conclusion, we have to express our desire, that you will take the earliest opportunity to communicate to us the issue of this reference, adding whatever suggestions your Committee may instruct you to convey. Whenever we have answers from the several offices, a meeting of Representatives from the offices will be invested, to take the subject into final consideration, and to mature the scheme, if the body of under-writers shall have determined on its expediency.

We are, gentlemen, your most obedient servants.

It was subsequently determined, that the Race Course should be below the shipping off the Esplanade, so as to enable spectators to have a better view of the whole race than it was possible they could have had at the last, from the number of pinnances, boats and shipping lying between the shore and the racers, and thus intercepting the view.

Thanks were voted to the Chair, and the meeting

Fifteen persons, of those who were present, put down their names as annual subscribers to the new Regatta Club, which will enable the Secretaries, we should suppose, immediately to publish rules, &c., for the Club and consider it as established.—Cal. Cour. Dec. 27.

SEAMEN'S FRIEND SOCIETY.

Friend Society, was held last night at the Union Cha-pel, when Mr. J. W. Alexander was called on to take the chair, an office which this gentleman merits on acfrom the report, and from one of the speakers at the meeting, that the above gentleman has releived the society from this present incumbrances.

The Secretary, Mr. Boaz, whom we shall denominate the "Salor's Friend," read a brief and interesting report of the year's proceedings. The Report stated that there was an evident improvement in the attendance of sailors at the Bethel. That two ministers were engaged in preaching at the Sailor's Floating Chapel, and sometimes on board of vessels in the harbour. It also stated that an agent wars employed to visit the ships as soon as they dropped their anchor in port.

Mention was made of the new Bethel, which we understand is now neatly fitted, that it was out of debt, and that the public will now be called upon to meet the current expenses in carrying on this useful institution.

Mr. Bayne moved the first resolution, which was That the report now read be approved and circulated by the committee. In his speech he referred to the condition of sailors, which rendered an institution of this nature absolutely necessary. He rejoiced to find that some attention was paid both to the temporal and to the spiritual wants of sulors, and encouraged the meeting to continued exertions, by declaring that inspired prophets had not thought sailors beneath their notice.

Mr. G. Alexander seconded the resolution in a few words. He felt satisfied that the Society was doing good from the circumstances of having himself witnessed more than sixty at one time in attendance at the Bethel.

Mr. J. Atkins, of the Sailors' Home, proposed the second resolution, which was: -That this Meeting desires to offer its devout thanks to God for the success which has attended the operations of the Calcutta Seamen's Friend Society, during the last year, and for the happy circumstances ander which it commences the operations of a new year, and not less would they render the praise due to His name, for the pleasing intelligence contained in the report, of the general prosperity of the cause of religion amongst seamen. This was one of the best speeches of the evening, and was listened to with interest. He said that nothing could be done without the blessing of God. The pious husbandman commits the seed to the ground in dependance on the blessing of God. Pious merchants in engaging in commerce would look for the blessing of God; and pious parents in sending their children for instruction would pray for the blessing of God. The Seamen's Friend Society

The twelfth annual meeting of the Calcutta Seamen's looked for all their success to the same source. He stated the melancholy fact, that seamen, had occasioned enormous mischief by their immoralities—that they had done as much harm as Missionaries had done good. He very ably stated the necessity of such a Society as that for which he pleaded.

> Mr. J. A. F. Hawkins, C. S., supported the resolution with a few judicious observations.

> Mr. M. Hill, of Berhampore, moved the third resolution, which was :- This Meeting, in appointing the following gentlemen to be a Committee of Management for the coming year, with power to add to their number, would do so with earnest prayers that they may be guided and blessed in all their operations, by the evident presence and favour of the divine spirit :- Messrs. G. Alexander, J. W. Alexandar, H. Woollaston, A. Grant, J. Muller, D. Clark, W. Balston, and J. M. Vo-Treasurer, Mr. G. Grant. Secretary, Revd. T. Boaz. Minute Secretary, Mr. H. Audrews.

> Mr. Hill's speech wasthe longest, but it was lively and interesting—on meeting would flag while he speaks. He made some excellent remarks on the potency of prayer. Men of science and merchants were ene rgetic, patient and preserving, but were destitute of this powerful weapon, - prayer. In order that the Society for the good of seamen should succeed, he recommended the apostolic plan of setting the Committe apart by prayer, that they might resemble that useful order of character called deacons. He than called on the Secretary to offer up a prayer on behalf of the Committee.

> Mr. J. D. Ellis seconded the resolution, and spoke also of the sad condition of sailors in general, and for the truth of his observations referred to Williams', interesting narrative, which ought to be read by every one; it has been called the last chapter of the Acts of the Apos-tles. Mr. Ellis concluded by recommending the audience to cultivate personal psety in order to be useful to others.

> Mr. J. Penny, the Seamen's Minister, proposed the fourth resolution, which was :- This Meeting relying npon the faithful promises of God to all men, but especially on those which have direct reference to seamen, would pray this Committee, and all similar Committees, not to relax in their efforts to preach a crucified Saviour, and the necessity of the teaching of the Holy spirit, in order to the conversion and sanctification of the heart, and with reference to the imperative necessity that seamen above all others should be observant of the providence of God, the meeting would pray the Committee to continue these efforts, which, under God, must saue in the conversion of the abundance of the Sea unto himself,-Mr. Penny explained this resolution by tating, that the meeting expressed their subjection to home but the sea have now a home in every port, the command of God, a belief in his promises, and a and a chapel to which they can resort for instruction. dependance on the Holy Spirit; and also that the meeting expressed the wish that seamen might acknowledge providence of God, an.l that others might be stimulated to care for sailors. Mr. Penny proceeded to state, that we were under obligations to sailors, that they were the safeguard of the nation, the protectors of our liberty; that they enrich merchants, supply the community with comforts, and convey missionaries to different parts of the world. He stated that it was the duty of all Christians and of denominations, to unite in this work, and that the union of Christians is one of best methods to destroy prejudice. He concluded with an anecdote that spoke to the puspose.

Mr. Boaz seconded this resolution, and spoke of the We are glad to see that the society prospers, and we progress of these societies; that Sailors who had no wish it all success.—Cal Court. Dec. 27. Mr. Boaz seconded this resolution, and spoke of the

The news which the Secretary had just received from England, of the attention paid to sailors appeared to light up his countenance with joy and gladness.

The meeting was an interesting one. None of the speakers were long—all their speeches were well timed, and what we might say of proper length. The Secretary complained, that the meeting was not so well attended as he anticipated, although it was much better than in former years. Some perhaps were absent on account of the holidays, and had the meeting taken place at any other time, there might have been a full attendance.

DR. ST. LEGER'S REPLY TO THE CATHOLICS OF DUM-DUM.

My DEAR FRIENDS .- It would be a vain effort were I to attempt to pourtray the feelings with which I received and perused your truly affectionate parting address. It is needless, I hope, to assure you, that the congregation of Dum-Dum, has ever been a peculiarly dear and cherished portion of my flock, and that some of my sweetest consolations, were derived from the Christian wiety and faithful characters of malicious duties which piety and faithful observance of religious duties, which often with admiration I there witnessed, as distinguishing a considerable number. You have been good enough to thank me for my exertions in your regard. I am anticipated all I could say, and shews me that further compelled to disclaim in a great degree, the thanks offered, as any services, and far more than it was in my

The President accordingly proposed, seconded by Dr. Wallich, "that the Society receives with feelings of the deepest regret, the intelligence of the death of their late most able and indefatigable Secretary Mr. John Bell That a period of nearly for grars that he has filled the office of secretary to the Agricultural and Horticultural Society of India, the zeal, intelligence and ability which he has displayed, have been the raising the society to its present state of prosperity and usefulness. From J. Stewart, Esq., M. D., 59th Regiment N. I., stating his wish to re-enter the Society. This gentleman, in his letter, called the attention of the Society to the poppy seed oil of the Upper Provinces, which he proposed to employ as substitute for olive oil in India. He mentioned, that he had repeatedly used it in salad, and found it better than the oil sent from Europe. It could be procured fresh and pure for about 4 annas a pint.

The Secretary having requested the opinion of the Society, with regard to the period from which the new rate of subscription 'should commence, it was proposed by Dr. O'Shaugnessy, seconded by Dr. Wallich, that old members pay the reduced subscription from the 1st of January next, and that new members commence from the date of their entering the Society.

The following communications were presented.

1. Dr. Goodeve read a letter from a non-professional friend in the neighbourhood of Rungpore, in which was related a curious instance of the mode in which epidemic cholera attacks its victims. A few days since, the gentle-man alluded to, brought to his factory six coolies from a village about 12 miles distant, where cholera was raging furiusoly, his own immediate neighbourhood being perfectly free from the disease. Five days after the iranival, two of these men were attacked with cholera, and subsequently one more, but no other individual in the factory or near to it, suffered. The sick strangers were immediately dispatched to their homes at their own request, but no trace of the disease was left behind them. It would appear, that the cholera poison, whatever it may be, remained inactive for a week in the bodies of the suffer ers, and then manifested itself with its customary viqlence, at the same time offering a strong proof of its noncontagious character, by extending no farther in that neighbourhcod.

Dr. Duncan Stewart, presented a paper upon poisoning by mushrooms, founded upon some cases which had lately occurred to him. This communication was then read and discussed.

3. A case of pur uroe homorrhogica by John Wood, Esq., M. D., of Rungpore, was next presented. This was subsequently read and discussed.

4. Two communications upon land-scurvy, were presented by the Secretary of the Medical Board; one paper upon this disease, as it appeared in the 14th Regt., N. I., by Hugh Guthrie, Esq., Surgeon to the corps the other an official report on this subject, by superintending Surggeon Panton, President of the Committee assembled at Agra, to investigate the causes of this disease in the above mentioned regiment.

SUPREME COURT.

FRIDAY, Nov. 30, 1838.

SITTINGS AFTER FOURTH TERM OF 1838.

(Before Sir E. Ryan, Sir J. P Grant and Sir H.W. Seton.)

Equity Side.

RADHARISSEN MITTER VETSUS THE BANK OF BENGAL AMD OTHERS.

A report of the former argument in this case appeared in the Hurkaru of July 16th, and the subsequent judgement of the Court (Sir J. P. Grant dissentient) was reported in the Hurkaru of August 3rd. The case now came on for a rebearing before a full Bench of Judges.

Mr. Clarke and Mr. Nott for the complainants. will be necessary for us to go more fully into the statement and argument of this case than we should be other-wise disposed to do, as one of your Lordships was not present when it first care before the Court. This bill was filled to restrain the negotiation of certain bills of exchange of which the complianant was drawer, and the firm of Fergusson and Co, acceptors, and which were endorsed and delivered over, for valuable consideration to the defendants, the Bank of Bengal. Various transactions had taken place between the Bank, and the firm of Fergusson and Co., previous to the insolvency of the latter, and the discounted bills had been renewed insolvent, five of the bills were outstanding, payable at three months from the date thereof respectively, and upon which the entire amount due was four lakes of rupees The first bore (renewed) date 7th September, 1933, the 2nd and 3rd, 28th September, and the 4th and 5th 7th October. The petition of insolvency was presented by Fergusson and Co. on the 26th November 1833, before any of the said bills became payable. It is scarcely necessary to state that the firm of Fergusson and Co. were the only parties for whose accommodation these instruments were drawn, and that the complainant had no beneficial interest in them whatsoever. In fact, there was an express, understanding (admitted in the answers) between the firm of Fergusson and the complainant, that the complainant, as drower, was to be considered a mere nominal party, and not to be held liable upon the bills; and although there was no evidence that the Bank were, actually parties to be understanding, yet there are cir-cumstances from which a constructive knowledge might be inferred. Now comes the material part of the case. Other transactions of loan took place between the Bank and the house of Fergusson and Co., which loars were secured by the deposit of certain copper as a collateral security, and certain instruments of agreement in the na-ture of promissory notes were executed. The first of these transactions was of the date 2nd September, 1833, when 10,000 manuas of capper were deposited as a col-lateral security for the sum of Sa. Rs. 2,45,600 at three months;—the second of the 6th September, 1833, when from time to time for the accommodation of the firm. Sul-fice it to say, that at the period when the house became 2,000 maunds were pledged for Rs. 73,700, and the third of the 28th of September, 1833, when 1,500 creditor has acted in such a manner as to affect the maunds were pledged for Rs. 35,400. Now, had this claim of the surety against the principal debtor, the liabicopper been pledged generally, the case would have fallen precisely within the principle of Young v. The Bank of Bengal; but the promissory notes or agreements of deposit, contained a clause which distinguished the present case from that decision, and which (as the learned Chief Justice suggested) was probably inserted for the very purpose of meeting that decision. By this special clause, the copper was declared to be deposited, not only as a security for the specific loan, but also for the securing all sums already advanced or engaged to be advanced, or which at any time thereafter should be advanced; so that a general hen was expressly given to the Bank for all past and future advances, and the Bank was bound to apply the surplus value of the copper beyond the amount for which it was specifically pledged. to the liquidation of the bills, before they could come upon the complainant, who was a mere surety. But what did the Bank do? They permitted the assignees of the insolvent firm to redeem the copper, and it appears in evidence, that the copper was alterwards sold by the assignees at a profit of rupecs. 72,000. There is another assignees at a property representation in the statement of the Court must next be directed. This Share stood in the name of W. F. Fergusson, the principles cipal partner of the firm, but it is proved in evidence to have been in fact the joint property of the whole firm, who could not appear of course as the registered holders. In the month of February 1834, although formal notice had been given on behalf of the complainant, to the Bank to retain the Share, it was surrendered to the assignees of the firm, who afterwards transferred it to the assignee of Mr. Fergusson's seperate estate, for the benefit of which it was ultimately sold in December 1835, at rupees. 16,449. Now, by the 15th and 21st sections of the Bank Charter, all shares are hable for debts due from the shareholder to the Bank. The Bank, therefore, had a general tien upon this share, and ought to have applied it pro tanto to the liquidation of the amount due upon these buls.

It may be mentioned, that when this case was first brought before the Court, there were two other transactions, (relating to the deposit of indigo, and of certain Company's paper) relied upon by the complainant as discharging his liability; but as the opinion of the Court was unanimous against us on this part of our case, we shall abandon it.

There are scarcely any facts in dispute between the parties. The only material matter which is not admitted on both sides, is, whether the Bank had any actual or constructive knowledge of the creumstances under which the complainant became a party to these bills Mr. W. F. Fergusson, the chief and managing partner of the firm of Furgusson and Co., was also one of the Directors of the Bank of Bengal; and we contend that the knowledge of Mr. Fergusson, as a Director of the Bank, must be taken to be knowledge on the part of the Bank itself, and that the Bank, thereof, constructively at all events, was cognizant of the understanding which subsisted between the complainant as accommodation-drawer, and the firm of Fergusson and Co. as acceptors of these bills. It may perhaps be contended on the other side, that the case of a partnership, is different the case of a partnership and that the knowent from that of a corporate body, and that the know-ledge of a director would not bind the Bank generally; but the two cases of Waithman v. Raikes, and Exparte Carbis 4 Deacon and Chitty's Reports, are in favour of

But independently of any question of actual or constructive knowledge on the part of the Bunk, our main argument, in support of the discharge of the liability transactions, notwithstanding the express clause conformed the complainant as drawer of these bills, is founded upon the general principles of the law of principal was expressly given to the Bank for all past and future; and surety. It is an established rule, that if the claim of the surety against the principal debtor, the liabi-lity of the surety is discharged. The surety has a right to be placed in the very same situation as the original creditor, and if this equitable right is prejudiced by any act of the creditor, his claim against the surety cannot be enforced at law or in equity. Thus, if time be given by the creditor to the principal debtor (Craythorne.v. Swinburne, 14 Vessey Junior, Ges v. Milnes, Glyn and Jameson), or if the security be lessened, (Law v. The East India Company, 4 Ves. Jun.) which is precisely the case here, the surety's liability is at an end. The acts of the Bank, in permitting the copper deposits to be redeemed by the assignees, instead of applying their surplus value to the Inquidation of the bills in question, and in surrendering the Bank share, instead of selling it applying the proceeds in the same manner, have prejudiced the rights of the complainant as surety, and lessened his security against the principal debtors, the firm of Fergusson and Co., and have, therefore, pro tunto exonerated him from his hability.

Sir E. Ryan, at the close of this argument, intimated to the counsel fo the Bank of Bengal, that it would be better to defer their argument until to morrow, as it was already a late hour.

The Advocate-General assented.

JADUBCHUNDER SEAL AND ANOTHER V. COCKERELL AND CO.

Mr. Clarke requested leave to mention this case, which was a motion for an injunction to stay proceedings at law. The common law action stood for hearing for the present sittings, but he (Mr. Clarke) had been perfectly prepared on behalf of the complainants (the defendants at law) to support the injunction. The motion had stood. over, solely at the request of his learned friends on the other side, who had not been prepared with their grounds. He hoped the Court would not now consider it necessary to call the motion on as to-morrow, (this-day,) was the last day of the sittings, and his learned friends could not possibly bring on their action at law before next term. There were two or three short Equity causes remaining on the board.

The Court were at first doubtful whether Monday, was not the last day of the Sittings, but upon a reference to the Almanack it was found, that the Sittings terminate next Sunday, and that, practically, therefore to-morrow. Saturday, (this day,) is the last day.

The Alvocate-General had no idea of being thrown over until next term in this manner.

Sir E. Ryan, Well, Mr. Advocate, we will not hear you until the Equity Board is cleared. But if it is a matter that requires an urgent hearing, there is no objection to its coming ou, after the Sittings, in Chambers, I do not see how it can avail you much until next Term .-Hurkaru, December 1.

SATURDAY, DEC. 1.

The Advocate-General and Mr. Printer were heard this morning for the Bank of Bengal. The transactions relating to the deposit of indigo, which involved by far the largest amount, have been abandoned by the other side, and very properly so, as this part of the case fell precisely within the principle of Young v. The Bank of Rengal, and the complainant could only have succeeded by impugning the authority of that decision. A little examination, will shew that the principle of that case extends even to the copper would have produced an available surplus :- how is it attempted to be shown that this surplus was to be applied to the liquidation of the sums due upon these bills? Suppose the assignees had offered to pay the amount of the bills when they respectively fell due, and claimed their right thereupon to redoem the properly deposited,—can it be contended that the Bank could have refused to allow the assignees to redeem, and could have sold the deposits to satisfy other claims? Clearly not; because the right to sell was only conditional on derault being made in payment. If so, the same rule applies equalty where the assignees have allowed the tune to elapse, and have not claimed to redeem un'il, at a subsequent period, there are third parties interested, whose rights must not be lost sight of ; these are the general creditors of the estate, whose rights cannot be made dependent on the acts of the assignees. It is clear, then, that upon the application of the assigness to redeem the property deposited upon repayment of the advances for which it was specifically pholged, the Bank would have had no right to retain, to the prejudice of the general creditors, and they would have had no defence to an action of trover.

The law of get off and mutual debts and credits, is not applicable to the present case. It is true that that law may apply even where claims are not due in presente, but in future :- the future debt, however, must be a claim certuin, and not a claim contingent. In this case it was contingent, because the firm might have come in and redeemed the deposit at any time, and the assignees might have redeemed at all events before the time had actually lapted. Now, it is absuid to say, that the mere possibility of a surplus value being realized, and accruing in the hands of the pawnee, constitutes a debt due to the pawner, which may be made the subject of cut off.

But, again; there is nothing what-oever on the face of the evidence, to show that the immediate sale of the copper would have produced any available surplus at all, or that a profit would have necessarily accrued from its retention by the bank, with the view of selling it at one fature period. It is certainly true that the assignees, by keeping the copper on speculation, did actually succeed in eventually obtaining a profit; but this was nothing more than a mercantile speculation which might have turned out either profitable or the reverse, a cording to creamstances. It is absurd to say that the Bank were bound to own copper-merchants for the bese fit of a third party, and mour the risk of a teaching speculation ! There is nothing, then, to show that the disposio, of the copper at the current market rates, would have produced a profit, and it does not appear, therefore, that there was any available surplus applicable even to the part liquidation of the outstanding bills.

We admit, without qualification, the principle of the law of principal and surety, so excuestly contended for on the other side, that any wilful act on the part of the credita by which the rights of the surety against the principal debiur, are prejudited such as the giving time, without consent, or dimensioning the security to which he is cutified, -discharges the hability of the surety. But, for the seasons already urged, the principlans wholly mapplicable here, because there has been no act no the part of the Bank, of which the complainant, in his character as surety, can complain. It has been contended, that the formal notice given on behalf of the complainant, to retain the copper for his benefit, was binding on the Bank; but let it be considered under what circumstances this notice was given, that the immediate sale of the copper by the Bank the debt. Even if the Bank had the power of bolding on the deposited property, were they bound to do o upon such a notice as this? There can be no equity raised in favour of the surety until he has placed himself in the situation of the ereditor, as against the principal debtor by offering or at least undertaking io liquidate the debt due.

> It has been attempted to be shewn, that the Bank must be taken to have been (cognizant of the whole transaction, on the ground that the chief partner of the firm, Mr. W. F. Fergusson, between whom and the complainant the arrangement regarding the hability on these bills subsisted, was at the same time one of the Directors of the Bank. There is a great distinction, however, between the partners of a private firm and the members of a corporate body. Bank of Scotland v. Watson, I Dow's Reports. Under the Bank Charter, it is expressly provided that thie: Directors must concur to bind the Bank by their acts. A director of a bank established under a corporation, cannot be considered to stand in a position at all analogous to that of a partner in a private firm. It would be productive of engless inconvenience and injustice if such a mere theoretical rule were to be admitted, and all the members of a corporation were to be constructively affected with knowledge of matters of which they were in fact utterly ignorant, and which, indeed, they had no means of knowing, merely because they happened to be within the coguizance of an individual member.

> With respect to the Bank Share, it is to be observed. that the Charter only gives the Bank a hen upon the dividends of shares, and it does not appear that any dividends had been here received. In fact the Charter prohibits the Bank from making advances upon Shares. and it is difficult to see, therefore, how the Bank could claim a general lien upon them for debts due. But further, it has been decided that Shares must be taken to belong to parties in whose names they are registered, and the Bank were not necessarily aware of the fact that the Share standing in Mr. Fergusson's name, was parmership property, and could not therefore reluse to surrender it to the separate assignee.

> Mr. Cochrane and Mr. Sandes, appeared for the assignees of Frigusson and too, but were not heard against the complamant. They were admitted to be entitled to their costs.

> Mr. Leith appeared on behalf of the Secretary of the Bank, Mr. G. Uduy. The Court had refused to hear him on the first argument of the case, as they considered that the Secretary had no right to argue the case for the Bank; but it now became necessary for him to mention the question of costs, as he understood that his right to costs was not acknowledged by his learned friend on the other side, although, to the best of his own recollection, the Court had expressly declared hun entitled.

Sir E. Ryan, In my notes, I find that I expressed an opinion at the hearings, that the bill must be dismissed againstavou with costs; but afterwards, in giving judgment. I was of opinion (whether right or wrong) that you were not entitled to costs, because you ought to have demurred to the bill.

Mr. Leith urged, that a demurrer would not have head. The Secretary to the Bank was certainly not a party heneficially interested, but he was made a defendant for the purpose of discovery; now the Bank being a corporate body, could only answer under seal, and the complainant was eptitled to make the officer of the Bank a defendant, for the purpose of obtaining an answer upon oath Cartwright v. Hately, 1 Ves. Junior, Wynch v. Meule, 3 Peer Williams, 310. A The notice was, merely to hold the deposited property, Junior, Wynch v. Meule, 3 Peer Williams, 310. A without any payment made on the part of the surery mere witness might in general demor to a bill, but not of the debt due, or even an undertaking to discharge to he is a co-defendant with a corporation.

Mr. Clarke was heard in general reply ..

The remaining causes on the Equity Board were then disposed of, decrees being taken by consent. This was the last day of the sittings .- Hurkaru, December 3.

IN THE MATTER OF JANE BROWN.

Mr. Clarke, on behalf of Mrs. Moffat, made a return to the Habeas Corpus obtained by Mr. Cochrane, that gentleman having put in a second affidavit by Mrs. De Rozatio, snewing that Mrs. Moffat was subject to the jurisdiction of Court. Mr. Clarke's return did not enter mio any other point, but merely denied juri-dic-tion, on which Sir Edward Ryan was of opinion, that the Court could not issue an attachment, or enforce the suit .- Ibid.

The Criminal Sessions commence this day, and we are sorry to say, that in the numerical amount of criminal cases to be tried, the calendar is heavier than it has been for forty years last past. As respects the cases of what may strictly be called great crimes, the list is comparatively light; the great encrease in point of number of offences, arises out of a cause that must speedily be amended, or both grand and petty jurymen, will ere long petition to be reheved from a burthen, which it will be impossible for them to support, without ruinous consequences to their individual affairs. We stated on Wednesday last, that the number of prisoners committed to be tried at the ensuing sessions, which will commence this day, was very great. There were, on the evening of the 3d instant, 118 persons confined in the great gaul for that purpose. They now amount to We stated also, that for the last 45 years, there has not been so large a number of persons committed for tital at the Supreme Court, and never on such very Liffing charges as those now imprisoned. Petty their is the crime for which most of the prisoners for trial have been committed, and, in some cases, the value of the property stolen, is as small as six annas.

We have been told, but we do not vouch for the accuracy of the statement, that the cause of whis enormous gaol delivery, originates in a wigging, which the beach of sitting Magistrates received from the Board of Law Commissioners, touching the summary mode of trial and conviction in cases of felony, which, it is alleged, and which it would be futile to deny, the Magistrates have been in the practice of adopting. It appears, as we have said above, that a man is brought before the Magiatrate, charged with stealing to the value of 6 annas; the Magistrate, who has perhaps twenty such cases brought before him in the course of the day, has been in the habit of taking into consideration the mischievous consequences of committing all these petty delinquents to take their trial at the sessions, and has assumed the power of summarily convicting and punishing in such cases. We have neither right nor inclination to determine, whether the Magistrate should have this power; we think he should not; and so, it appears, think the Law Cammissioners. We have told the Magistrates, that they had not this power; and so have the Law Commissioners. We have pointed out a remedy, whilst we pointed out the mischief; and so have nor the Law Commissioners, and the consequence is, that the Magis Law Commissioners; and the result is, that numerous cases of petty thefts, have been thrown upon the Sugigantic machinery of this Court, with its grand and Sir E. Ryan. The Court will pronounce judgment jury, is to be employed for weeks in determining the petty cases of theft, with which the calendar is overwhelmed. We have no doubt, the grand jury, before they separate, will bring this to the notice of the Court. formally; for, of course, the Court cannot help noticing a tact, which will affect them, as much as the juries - the extraordinary burthen imposed upon them at these Shasions. As a remedy for this mischief, we would suggest Courts of Quarter Sessions, with juries of five; and with regard to Courts of Quarter Sessions, to shew their utility and necessity, we cannot do better than republish the charge of the Chief Justice, on the occasion of the introduction of the new criminal act.

- " I am fully aware that it has not of late years been usual to hold any Court of General or Quarter Sessions. except for the purposes of making assessments on the owners or occupiers of houses, according to the provisions of the 33d Gen. 3, 52. s. 153. I find, however, from the minute book of the Sessions, that Courts of this description have been held by the Governor-General and Members of Council; and that Grand Junes have been summoned and charged by the Chanman to enquire, though no persons appear to have been tried. Ícan have no doubt of the power of the Governor-General and Council to hold a Court of Quarter Sessions. The Charter of 1753, expressly empowers the Governor or President of Fort William and the Council, for the time being, or any three or more of them, to hold a Quarter Sessions of the Peace, four times in the year, and they are authorised to do all acts that sustices of the Peace in England may, under a Commission from the Crown. By section 36 of the latters Patent of 1774, the power given to the Governor and Council under this clause, to act as Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer, was, and is, repealed; but their jurisdiction as a Court of Quarter Sessions is expressly recognized by the 21st section.
- "The 38th sec. of the 13th Geo. 3, 63, also expressly enacts that the Governor-General and Council are to have authority to act as Justices of the Peace, and to do all matters and things which appertain to that office, and are empowered to hold Quarter Sessions within the settlement of Fort William four times in every year, and the same shall be at all times a Court of Record.
- " I know that it has been considered a question of some doubt and difficulty, whether any of the statutes enable Justices of the Peace under Commissions from this Court, to hold a Court of Quarter Sessions, for any other purpose than those of making an assessment, but I will not now enter into the difficulties to which the various statutes relating to this subject give rise.
- " I can only say that whatever may be the inconvenience (which I should have thought would have been present to those who assisted in the framing of this act) it will be absolutely necessary that a Court of General or Quarter Sessions should be held, in order that the di ections of this statute may be complied with. This necessity is the more apparent from the provisions of the 48th and 49th sections.
- " The 48th section provides that in all cases (not limited to paid conviction under this act) where the sum adjudged to be paid on any summary conviction shall exceed fifty sicca rupees; or the imprisonment adjudged shall exceed one calendar month; or conviction shall take place before one Justice only; any person who shall think himself aggreeved by any such conviction, may appeal to the next Court of General Quarter Ses-The clause goes on to direct the notices, &c. which the party appealing shall give, and provides for his discharge, if in prison, under the conviction, on his giving sureties, to try the appeal. The Court at such trates, who would not listen to us, have listened to the Sessions is to hear and determine the matter of the appeal.
- " The 49th section provides, that no such conviction o preme Court for trial at the present Sessions, and the adjudication made on appeal therefrom shall be quashed for want of form; or removed by certiorari, or otherwise, into any of His Majesty's Superior Courts of Record."

If the two sections to which I have just referred, are to be construed as applying only to convictions under this statute, there can be no doubt that a Court of Quarter Sessions should be regularly held, the necessity for which would be still more apparent if these sections are to be taken according to their literal meaning without reference to the other clause of the act which precede them, whichever may be considered the right construction to be put on these sections, it is clear that the charter under which we act, expressly recognizes the Court of Quarter Sessions as instituted under the proceedings by writs of manadamus, certiorari, &c. If therefore any party felt himself aggrieved by a summary conviction under this act, against which, owing to no Court of Quarter Sessions being held, he was unable (though enutled) to appeal, he would have a right to institute proceedings in this Court, to compel the Court of Quarter Sessions to assemble and hear, and determine his appeal.—Hurkurn, December 8.

BONNERJEE Versus BONNERJEE.

The application in this case, by Mr. C. Reid, to be paid from Court 1,66,000 and odd hundred rupees, which stood over from the sittings, was this-day disposed of. The Court directed the payment of the money to Mr. Reid.

Mr. Clarke, on the part of Rajah Bejoy Govind Sing, applied to file a petition for leave to appeal to the authorities at Home against this order.

This application for the present, prevents Mr. Reid from receiving the money.

He subsequently applied for the Judges' vide final order, and was referred to the Registrar for the same.—

4TH SESSIONS, DECEMBER 8, 1838. .

(Present Sir E. Ryan, Sir J. P. Grant, and Sir W. H. Seton,)

At a little after 11 o'clock, the Court assembled, at tended by the the Sheriff and his Deputy, and after the formal proclamations, the following gentlemen who compose the Grand Jury, answered to their names.

J. A. Dorin, Esq., Foreman.

J. Gilmore, W. G. Frith, W Brightman, J. C. Palmer, N. Alexander, J. Richards, G. A. Prinsep. Colin Campbell, J. S. B. Scott, G. Vint, E. Oakes, W. Storm. J. S. Smith, J. H. Arratoon, D. M. Gordon, B. II. Betts, A. C. Bedel, Burnursing Mullick, H. Cowie, Moteloll Seal and A. F. Smith. Govindochund Sein, Esas.

The Grand Jurors being sworn, His Lordship the Chief Justice, addressed them in an elequent speech touching specially as to the great number of prisoners to be tried at the present Sessions, of which address we are sorry we can give but the outlines.

His Lordship believed, that more than 120 persons were now confined in jud to take their trial, and regretted the number should be so enormous, ausing owing to peculiar circumstances. The Magistrates for a long time past thought they could, and they did, dispose of minor cases before them under a certain Regulation of 1814, sanctioned and approved of, by the then Chief Justice, Sir E H. East, which provided, that in those cases the Magistrates might proceed to conviction by fine or imprisonment on non-papment of fine. Doubts have subsequently arisen with the Law Commissioners, and the Magistrates have thought proper to send all these clases of cases for trial at the Sessions. Thus the number has been enhanced, whereas it would not have been so, if, as heretótore, the Magistrates would have disposed of them, and which would be just, and precisely in accordance to the opinion of Sir F. Roe, the Magistrate at Westminster, according to whom, pursuant to the report of 1837, of the Crunical Law Commissioners, it would appear that Sir F. Roe is not guided by any circumstances, character or leatures, other than the probable expenses falling on the county in making commitment in such cases, instead of the Magistrate disposing of thom, and the benefit and service ensing in regard to time; which his Lordship added, might be applied as well to this metropolis, but until suggestions from higher authorities, at present this mode must It rested with the legislature to remedy be attended to. the exil. His Lordship then went on to comment at length on the report of 1837, of the Criminal Law Commissioners, and the above alluded to dictum of Sir F. Roe, the Magistrate at Westminster, or rather which appeared to have been in reply to certain questions arising on the report of the Criminal Law Commissioners of 1837, and his Lordship adverted to the local Police Acts and the Vagrant and Juvenile Criminal Laws at Home; and that by the letter, Juvenile offenders, under the age of from 3, 10, to 12 years, should not be committed for trial, and those of 16 years of age for larceny, not 179 Nobin Chose, with stealing from the boule of medicing the value of 10 shillings, could be tried and Concentrate Muckeijes, in Chora Bagann, a marble convents by two Justices of the Pages, and if they thought fit, sentenced for six months' imprisonment in |

His Lordship continued, that in certain cases, this summary mode of proceeding might be questionable, but if not, this summary jurisdiction to the Magistrates, some other mode, or tribunal, should be substituted the revival of the Court of Quarter Sessions; by which later, on the other hand, the want of benefit or juros witnesses and the public, and the encroachment on the time of all, (except the judges) would be precisely the same; but the question as to the mode of modifying the evil rested with the Government, and as regarded the french, his Lordship added, with the concurrence of the otherof them, that they would feel the least by a subdivision of their time, although they might be better employed, and would gladly and cheerfully Jo so; but yet his Lordship could not not retrain from repeating, that the evil complained of, was great; for, amongst the present cases, as the gentlemen of the Grand Jury would observe, better than half of them consist of simple petty

The witnesses in which cases, attended at first from dry to day at the Police, will now have to attend before them, the Grand Jurors, and, next on the Petty Jury, men; and the number of the witnesses in the present instance, comprise no less than 370, all from amongst. the poorer classes of people, and in all probability, people who depend on their daily lanour, for the daily subsist tence of themselves and tamily; -and another glaring evil existed, this Court setting promiscuously, a long intervention of time necessarily chapses, so that persons committed for petty offences, might in the interval of their trial, suffer longer imprisonment than they should, or at any rate, a difficulty will naturally arise as to a proportionate pun shownt, considering the imprisonment they suffer anterior to their trial.

His Lordship then polated out cases in the present calendar, and nonced, that happily, one only was for murder, that of one D'Cruz, for the murder of Caroline Isaac, and if the gentlemen of the Jury believed the tepositions. His Lordship regretted, that they have not the option but to return a true bill for wilful murder. passoner, it would appear, was anxious that the deceased ty Jurymen, that two sets of them, and not the rest, would have yielded herself to him that, which she she repeatedly and peremptorily refused, and the unfortunate women, in the absence of her mother, was murdered, under encumstances which left no doubt of the crime, as will appear. If, however, the gentlemen of the Jury should see any necessity for consulting the Court, they were of course at liberty to do 40.

His Lordship next dwelt on the case of one Chunga, for child-tealing, which appeared to be not a common case, this being the first of the kind in this country that His Lordship remembered. His Lordship pointed out the law in such cases, and the punishment to be Transportation, and that it would appear by the evidence, that the child was at school with the prisoners, and so continued up to the 25th of August last, when, as usual, the boy, 8 years old, returned at about 10 or 11 o'clock, and was seen until about 1 o'clock of the same day. The boy had gold jewels about his person of the value of 150 rupees, and formerly it had been known that children having on jewels were for the sake of them murdered, and in this case strong suspicion existed of the murder of the child by the prisoner, with whom the child has been traced to have been, up to the last that the child had been seen. Yet his Lordship said, that the indicatment could not be returned for the crime of homicide, the general maxim and principle of law being to the in some cases, and amongst which, this present case did verdict of guilty. Sentenced to one month's hard labor not come in. Those were in eases of murder on the in the House of Correction, considering the imprison-High Seas, and the bodies being thrown over board.

His Lordship next adverted to some cases for burglary and larceny, and to three cases for cutting with intent to commit murder, observing, that in these latter cases, three females have been most cruelly stabbed, and this class of crime, seems of late to be much on the increase. As to the law, however, in these cases, his Lordship felt sutisfied there could be no doubt, or necessity to explain; but if the gentlemen of the Grand Jury desired, in any case, or point, to consult the Court, the Court would be tendy and glad to attend to them; and His Lordship concluded by alluding to the case of one S. D'Silva and J. Gomes, charged for violence under evidence, and confirming evidence. The Jurors then left the Court and Sir J. P. Gaint left the Bench. The Jury soon after returned with a true Bill against Khoda Bux for larcenv.

The following Petty Jurymen, were called, who answered to their names :

Mr. C. P. Sealv. Mr. J. Ridley, " Al Crow, F. Allice, ., H. Griffin, J. P. Devine, ,, ., J. Talber, J. G. Parker, ,, W E Jenkins S. Jones and T. Allardice, J. B. Vendenberg.

Mr. J. B. Vendenberg, one of the Petty Jurymen, objected to serve on Jury, being under age. The Court informed him that if this mode of objections were allowed, it would be difficult to select a set of Juiors, and that Mr. Vendenberg ought to have taken the objection through the regular channel, according to advertizement in the newspapers for that purpose, viz. in the month of May, every year, these points are disposed of, and the names of disqualified or exempted Jutors, re-moved from the Jury list. Mr. Vandenberg pleaded that he was ignorant of this rule. The Court replied, " every body is bound to know it," and ordered Mr. Van lenberg to take his seat-which he did.

The Jailor informed the Court, that the prisoner Khoda Bux, agrinst whom a true Bill had just been returned, was at the Hospital, and therefore could not be brought up for trial. The Court in intimated to the Petwould be required to attend, one set to relieve the other and that from Monday the Court would sit every day at 10 A. M. and this arrangement being emered into, as to the Petty Jurymen, the rest of them would be discharged, and every day at about I o'clok p. m. or so soon about that time, as a then pending trial would admit; one of the two sets of the Petty Jurymen, would be relieved for the day but every mornuing at 10 both the sets must be in attendance or, considering the state of the Calender, the Court would be obliged to impose and enforce heavy

The Grand Jurors, in the course of the day, return. ed the following indictments as true, against Gopaul, Petumber Ghose, Sebo, Sistydhur, Mohun, Sobaratty, Gour Doss, Sebochaund, Govindo, Usserrun. and Ramchaud Dutf, all for larceny, and against Ussurrun and Kisto Doss, for burglary, against Manick, for shop-breaking, and the bill against Sisty Hurry, for larceny, they returned as untrue.

The prisoner Gopaul was put on his trial for stealing a dotee, value 12 annas, one Company's rupee and 32 pice, the property of Taraneychurn Bhuttach argee, who contrary, according to that celebrated authority. Lord appeared, and 2 other witnesses were examined, one a Hale; unless the body of the deceased be found, or Police chowkeydar. The charge was proved and the Ale; unless the body of the deceased be found, or Judge addressed the Jury formally, who returned a the actual commission of the crime be proved,—except Judge addressed the Jury formally. ment from date of commitment.

vis Seebo was next put on his trial, for stealing from the house of Mrs. M. Sinaes. 1 lotts, value 1 rupee, 1 dhoote value 8 sinas, the property of Lalchand beater The prisoner said he was drunk at the time and could say nothing of the matter. The Court recorded a plea of not guilty for him. The bearer and 2 other witnesses proved the case. Verdict guilty. Sentence I month's hard labor in the House of Correction.

Sistedhur, was also tried, charged for stealing a dhotee, valued at 1 rupee, and 9, annus and a half of pice, the property of Junggui. The case being proved, the prisomer was found guilty, and sentenced to 1 month's hard labor in the House of Correction.

Kistno Doss was also tried for burglary, in entering the dwelling house of one Sreemutty, and stealing rice, value 9 annas, turmeric 2 annas, dhotee and chudder, 6 and 10 annas. The prisoner pleaded not guilty. From the evidence before the Jury, they returned a verdict of guilty. Sentence 5 years' transportation.

Petumber Ghose, was tried for stealing a lota of the value of 12 anner, who together with a female and one witness, proved the charge. to which the prisoner ploaded not guilty; and in the course of cross examination by the latter, it appeared, the prosecutor was indebted to the prisoner, who, in consequence frequented the prosecutor's house to get paid, and that they were neighbours; also that the pri-soner was a man of property, according to his standing in life. The prisoner called two witnesses on his side, the first of whom correborated what had been eligited in the cross-examination, gave the prisoner a good character, and the reason for the same, and concluded by saying, that the proscutor being in debt to, see the prison er, whenever asked for payment, used to threaten to rum the prisoner or to use the witnesses words to " see the end of him," in order to get rid of his demand. The other witness proved, that an affray commenced in the house of the other witness, when the prosecutor gave him in charge of the police, and after which the female witness for the prosecution picked up a lota, handed it to the chowkydar, and charged the prisoner with theft. The chowkydar confirmed this part of the evidence, and added, that the prisoner was let at large on bail by Capt. Birch, when taken before him on the night the charge had been preferred. The presoner was about to call other witnesses, when the petty jurymen declared, they were agreed, that this was a case of complete conspiracy against the prisoner, and that he was not guilty. The Court told the Jury, that such being the case, the trial ended, and Heat the Court agreed with the Jurors, and would have intimated that opinion to them, for, independently of the evidence for the defence, that on the part of the prosecution had been contradictory, and that the Court would not pass over this matter as to that part of it, which rearded the Police, in thus exposing an innucent man. The prisoner was discharged.

The Traverce Board stands as follows : - 2 cases on the prosecution of Mr. W. D. Shaw for assault and false imprisonment, against Mr. Ogilvy one on the prosecution of Denouath Chosall v. R. Barlow, for the like charge. - Hurkaru, December 10.

THURSDAY DECEMBER 27, 1838.

THE QUEEN U. J. B. O'GILVY-THE QUEEN U. THE SAME

These two cases, (both for trespass and false imprisonment) which had been traversed from last sessions, were mentioned to the Court this morning. Their Lordships said, that they should appoint a day specially next Monday.

THE QUEEN ON THE PROSECUTION OF DEENONAUTH GHOSAUL U. ROBERT BARLOW.

This case was called on pro forma, and the parties were permitted by the Court to speak with each other.

THE QUEEN V. AUDINATH GHOSAUL.

The prisoner was arraigned for burglariously entering, with intent to steal, into the dwelling-house of Bisso nauth Poramanick, in September last,

Mr. Merton appeared for the defence. The prosecutor, being called as a witness, deposed to having found the prisoner in his house about midnight, whereupon he gave the alaim, and a chokedar came up and seized him. The witness admitted that nothing was found upon the prisoner, and no property was found missing or even removed from its place; nor could be speak with precision as to the modelin which the prisoner had obtained entrance. There was an old mat partition, which appeared to have been partly toru or cut in the fastenings, but the prosecutor was quite uncertain whether the matting had not been in the same condition previous to the night in question.

Sir Edward Ryan, addressing the jury, said, that it appeared useless to go on with the case, as the prosecutor, who was the party most likely to be able to speak thaullees. Verdict guilty. Sentence as in the last to the point, gave no evidence of a breaking and entering. No actual robbery was attempted to be proved or even charged, and the substance of he case, therefore, was to prove that there had been a forcible entry with felonious intent. It was impossible for the jury to draw the inference from such vague evidence, that this had actually happened.

The jury then returned a verdict of not guilty.

The prisoner was ordered to be discharged.

THE QULEN P. RAMDIALL NOY.

The prisoner was arraigned on a charge of embezzling money, the property of his Master, and found Guilty, but recommended to mercy.

The Court adjudged him to suffer six months' imprisonment, with hard labour, in the House of Correction.

Upon this Jury being discharged, and informed, that their attendance would be required on the day after to-morrow at ten, one of the gentlemen rose and addressed the Court with great gravity, requesting that as that day would be the first property of the Rares (which the whole world were very anxious to behold!) the Court would kindly postpone the hour of attendance from ten ten ten to always postpone from ten to elever o'clack.

Sir E. Ryan, with rest courtesy, granted the request, adding that be more expect their attendance punctually at eleven. 4

THE QUEEN.U. SALIGRAM THAKJOR AND TOO OTHERS.

The prisoners were arraigned upon a charge of stealing certain maunds of Mint copper, on the 30th of Decoper last. The indictment contained three counts one laying the property in Kriparam, another in Lochun Doss, and a third in those parties jointly.

Mer Morton appeared for the defence. There was no counsel for the prosecution.

The first witness, who was the Gomastah of the only. This missescription did not arise from any fault charge of a Jemeder, for the purpose of being put on board of a boat. It appeared from this winness's testi mony, that the pro-ecutors were partners, (father and son) and that there was a third partner not name! in the indictment, a grandson, by name, Nundilall. This grandson, who was 28 or 30 years of age, was in fact the managing partner of the firm.

Sir E. Ryan said, that it was useless to go on. The copper was proved to be the property of three persons jointly, and it was described as the property of two prosecutors, stated, that he purchased the copper in on the part of the Clerk of the Crown; for by him question (16 bags) for his Masters, and gave it in everything had been done to obtain the requisite information, but that information had not been supplied. The present acquittal of the prisoners of course would not prevent a fresh indictment from being preferred against them.

> Mr. Morton begged leave to medition, for the sake of his client, that witnesses had been summoned, who (he was instructed) would have been able to prove a clear

The prisoners were arguitted .- Hurk. December 28.

This Insolvent was not opposed, and, after the usual oath, was discharged.

IN THE MATTER OF MAURICE CHARDON.

Mr. Attorney Waddington applied for an Adjudication of Insolvency in this matter, the Insolvent having departed from out of the juri-diction to evade pryment of his debts. He made the application on the part of Mezers, Cantor and Co., cieditors of the Insolvent, to the extent of 3,800 Res on a promissory note.

IN THE MATIELS OF JAMES CULLEN AND R. BROWNE ; COL-VIN AND CO. ; M. SCHLATIFR ; CALDER AND OTHERS ; MACKINTO-II AND CO.

The Assignces in these several matters applied for and obtained leave, to file their respective accounts.

IN THE MATTER OF KISTNO SONDER SEAL.

Mr. Strettell applied on the examiner's certificate for further time for the examiner to make his report in this matter, which was granted.

IN THE MATTER OF BEBER AUMFFRUN.

This case, as reported on the 20th ultimo, stood over for this day; but the Insolvent having been in the interval discharged from custody by her detaining creditor, no order passed in this matter.

IN THE MATTER OF BEBRE SOUCO. The like as the abovepreceding matter.

IN THE MATTER OF JAMES YOUNG AND OTHERS.

Mr. T. Holloyd, an assignee in this matter (cojointly with Mr. W. C. Hurry) applied to be relieved as to his assigneeship. The Court granted it. Mr. Hurry to continue, and of course not relieving Mr. Holroyd as to past responsibilities.

IN THE MATTER OF W. F. CLARKE AND OTHERS.

Mr. E. McNamica made the like application as in the next preceding matter, and Mr. J. W. Alexander Mr. Clarke, on the part of several other creditors was proposed by several creditors to be placed in the took objections, first as to the irregularity of the applications of the regioning Assignee. Mr. Clarke, on the took objections, first as to the irregularity of the application of the regioning Assignee. Mr. Clarke, on the took objections, first as to the irregularity of the application of the regioning Assignee applyability of the region of nomination of Mr. Alexander, or rather, as Mr. Clarks termed it, he proposed more a modification than an opposition, viz. that a co-assignee be deputed with Mr. Alexander, to whom there could be no objection other than that he, Mr. Alexander, was acting as assignee to 200 estates, and being a Commissioner of the Court of Request, se could not devote that time which would be necessarily requisite in the discharge of the duties of Assignee in this Estate, wherein a great deal yet remained to be done, for the purpose of winding up the affairs. The Chief Justice refused Mr. Clarke's application on two grounds.

1st. That his Lordship felt quite satisfied that if Mr. Alexander was unable to discharge the duties of the Assignceship, he, Mr. Alexander, would have relinquished the appointment, and the absence of any such information on Mr. Alexander's part, considering also hat Mr. Clarke represented only a few of the creditors in his present application, his Lordship could not maintain the application.

2.11y. A decided objection exists as to the gentleman intended by Mr. Clarke's application to be associated with Mr. Alexander, Mr. H. Holroyd, whose avocations in the Supreme court, could not possibly admit of his nomination, owing to the arduous duties he was to perform. It, however, a largely body of creditors than what Mr. Clarke represents in his present application. could make out a case, that the Assignee, Mr. Alexander, could not discharge his duties as ought to be, or that the business was retarded, and not conducted with that ease and facility so as to render them, the creditors. ample justice, the Court might, in that case, entertain the application differently. Mr. Clarke repeated that he wished it to be understood, that no ground of complaint laid against Mr. Alexander, or any other objection than that he was Assignee to too many estates. The Court replied, that most of those to many estates entitled a great deal of trouble on Mr. Alexander and yielded but little, if any, emolument; and therefore it would be very unfair towards this gentleman, to take away from him the Assigneeship of this estate, likely to remunerate him, and that for no other reason than that he acted as Assignee to estates which cost him labor with no gain.

Mr. Alexander was nominated.

IN THE MATTER OF J. CULLEN AND OTHERS.

Mr. T. Holroyd applied for leave to be discharged from the Assigneeship, and Mr. J. W. Alexander, was, proposed by several creditors to the substituted.

ought to have been two distinct orders, for the one could not be before the Court until the final and actual removal of the other. The Court informed the learned Counsel, that the order had been so framed by the directions of the Court, there having been no application to the contrary when the order passed.

Mr. Clarke resumed his application and said, that creditors to the amount of 22 lacs applied for Mr. Alexander. but Mr. Clarke applied for Mr. Leighton, on the part of creditors, to the extent of 40 lacs, and had affidavits to prove the signature of these creditors, and also to those who signed by proxy; and Mr. Clarke pointed out, that amongst the grounds put in, in the application for Mr. Alexander's nomination there was no affidavit filed as to the correctness of the debts of the creditors applying for Mr. Alexander, nor as to the signatures by proxy on the part of those creditors.

The Court intimated, that this objection taken by Mr. Clarke, bordered upon that of irregularity for want of the affidavit, as alluded to by Mr. Clarke, and that that deficiency could, and would, be allowed to be supplied; for it cannot be supposed, that the signatures were not genuine. Mr. Clarke then went on to state, that Mr. Leighton had been the principle and managing assistant in this firm for many years previous to its insolvency, and had a thorough and perfect knowledge of all its affairs and business, and of the several and extensive constituents and debtors and creditors of the firm, together with that of their residences and resource- in different parts of the globe; and that the resigning Assignee and his predecessor, acted in the office solely with the aid of Mr. Leighton, who in fact, conducted every thing under their superintendence and direction, to the entire confidence and satisfaction of all parties, and Mr. Leighton was a person of probity and property, is in a lucrative merchantile business on his own bottom; under these circumstances, Mr. Clarke contended, that it would be unjust and unfair towards Mr. Leighton, to disconnect him now. Moreover, that creditors to the extent, as before mentioned, of 40 lacs of rupces, were anxious that Mr Leighton should continue, which could only be by appointing him, no doubt from an impression, and very justly, that Mr. Leighton alone could do them justice; and this gentleman, not from any desire on his part, but to meet the wishes of these creditors, had arrainged with his partner to be allowed to devote a part of his time to this matter, wherein Mr. Leighton interested himself, in order that the assets and effects be rightly appropriated and disposed of to the benefit of the creditors, many of these creditors being his relatives and intimate friends,

The court proposed to associate Mr. Leighton as a Co-Assiguee with Mr. Alexander. The question as to the nomination, the court intimered, did not rest as to the extent of the amount of the debts due to the creditors, and that nominating Mr. Leighton a co-assignee with Mr. Alexander, would be meeting the wishes of all classes of the creditors, keeping in view the distinction of the creditors, one class applying for Mr. Leightors and another for Mr. Alexander; and the court observed, that most part, or at any rate a great number, of the growy signatures to support Mr. Leighton's nomination, apreared to be signed by one of the Insolvent Partners, (Mr. Culten) as the constituted afformey.

Mr. Clarke repeated to the court, that the matter had been forced on Mr. Leighten; it was no wish of pressature, and concluded by adding, that the addition-his; and Mr. Clarke concluded, by reading a letter that let or smeaded schedule be filled in Court at least a passed by which this fact appeared; and he informed these previous to the next day of hearing. Hurkers. the court, that as Mr. Leighten whened barely to meet December 5.

the wishes and interest of his friends, he, Mr. Leighton, not being nominated the Assignee, refused to act as a Co-Assignee with Mr. Alexander. Mr. Clarke immediately afterwards mentioned to the court, that he wish ed it to be reserved until the next Court-day, for Mr. Leighton to decide whether he would or would not accept of the Co-Assigneeship. The court accordingly reserved him the option, and Mr. Alexander was of course appointed the Assignee.

IN THE MATTER OF A COLVIN AND OTHERS. Mr. E. McNaghten resigned his office of Assigneeship. Mr. J. W. Alexander was appointed to succeed him.

IN THE MATTER OF JAMES CALDER AND OTHERS. Mr. T. Holroyd resigned his office as Assignee and Mr. Alexander was substituted.

IN THE MATTER OF JAMES JACOB.

This matter, as reported on the 20th ultimo, came on to-day for rehearing, and Mr. Strettell, attorney for the insolvent, applied for leave until the next Court day for the hearing of this matter, to enable the insolvent to file an ameneded or additional Schedule, which, Mr. Strettell added, the insolvent had not time to prepare, owing to his accounts and papers being partly destroyed by white-ants and the remainder in a confused state. Moreover, that he has not been able to get access to certain accounts of the late firm of Alexander and Co.

Mr. Strettell then put in an affidavit, verifying these facts, and also a book containing accounts, that the insolvent had prepared, stating that he had not been idle or dilatory fo far as laid in his power, and asked for leave to put in this book of account, which the court said could not be received but by the Assignee; and the court granted the extension of time for the hearing as as set for, observing at the same time, that the grounds as set forth by the application, did not seem altogether satisfactory, particularly as to the aliusion to the accounts of the late firm of Alexander and Co., which it cannot but be presumed must at all times he come-at-able at the office of the Assignee to that Estate. Mr. Strettell wiehert to offer some explanation, but the court said that at present nothing remained, but to allow the matter to stand over until the next court day, and the fill olvent was remanded to prison.

Mr. Strettell filed with the Assignee the book of accounts before spoken of. Mr. Leith mentioned to the Court, that it would perhaps enlarge the order by adding, that in the making up of the amended or additional schedule, certain sums of money be brought into hotch-potch, viz. monies received by Mr. Jacub from time to time, subsequent to her margiage with the insolvent, which are alleged to have been legacies and presents to her, and to have been appropriated towards the build. ing of a house, in the purchase of which is invested a sum of 4,000 rupees that had been settled on Mis.

Jacob by a deed, previous to her marriage. The learned Council added that the 4,000 rupees and the deed in question, having preceded the marriage, that sum alone. and not these others, received by Mrs. Jacobs, either as legacies, presents, or otherwise; ought to be reserved to her under that deed, in exclusion to the creditors.

The court entertained Mr. Leil's application as

HOOGHLY SESSIONS COURT.

November 29, 1838.

(Before J. Curtis, Esq., Sessions Judge.)

TRIAL OF PERTAB CHUNDER.

Assad Ullee, nasir of Zillah Burdwan, deposed. I recognize the soi disant Pertab Chunder, the Rajah of Hurdun, Hafiz Futtehollah, Radakissen Ghovaul and the other prisoners in this case. I first saw the pseudo Rajah in April last at Culna. The datogali o Culna having, in Bysack last, reported to the Buidwan Magistrate the arrival of the sor disant Rajah at that town; and having further added, that this Rajah intended to have landed with an armed retinue at Katly Khal, and that he had dissuaded him from it, the Magistrate thereupon dispatched at two dispatch at two different times, two jemadars with some hired burkundauzes to prevent this Rajah from landing with his followers; subsequently the darogan dispatched another report to the Magistrate, that the pretended Rajah had landed near the bural-ground of the Burdwan Kajah, and tollowed by a drunken mob all armed; and this Rajah had ordered his adherents to seize the muskers of the sepoys on guard at the burying ground, and it was with the greatest difficulty that he dissuaded him from it. "The Magistrate, on receipt of this report, said the deponent, dispatched me on the 29th April to Burdwan, to disperse this Rajah's assembly and to arrest him and take him prisoner to Houghly. I arrived there the next day, and saw only the naib darogah, the moonshy and a peon on guard; and having heard that the darogah had gone to see the soi disant Rajah. I sent information to him of my arrival and he came. I enquired of him whether the assemblage had dispessed, and he replied in the negative. I then gave the darogan's purwannah to him. and desired him to accompany me to the Rajah, to disperse the Rajah's party. I saw several boats moored to the shore, and 30 or 40 boats and the Rajah's budgerow at anchor in the stream. I desired the durogah to go and give the Rajah notice of my arrival. The darogan then called Futtehollah, the Rajah's darogan, and Mirza Hossanee, the petition-presenter of the Rajah, and requested them to communicate to the Rajah my arrival and wish to see him. They replied, the Rajah is not at leisure to see you at presert, and advised me in the interim to go to the Hurdun Rajah's boat and see him; and I did so, and informed the Hurdun Rajah the reason of my coming, and explained to him the purport of my purwannah. The Huidun Rajah spoke a great deal about this pseudo Raja being the real Rajah, and the probability of his soon seating himself on the Burdwan then left me in his budgerow, and proceeded to the pseudo boats. Rajah's budgerow, and shortly afterwards one of their domesties, called me to come on board this Rajah's budgerow. I then proceeded there, accompanied by the zemadar and a few armed burkundanzes. The men on guard at the Rajah's, informed, us that we could not go on board thus armed; but that I and the and indispensable servants. I replied, be that as it may, you should not keep so many persons about you. The Rajah replied, I wish to go to Burdwan. I said if you desire to proceed to Burdwan, discharge this concourse, keep a few necessary servants, and I will see you safely attended; then, on his objecting to go with so few servants to Buidwan, I counselled him, in compliance with the purwanah, to return to Hooghly ! and I would accompany him there. He replied, my attorney, Mr. Shaw, is arrived; I will see him during the day and give you, in the evening, a final reply to your orders. I then returned home, and, as I imagined from the obstrate and overbearing conduct of the Rajah and his rabble, that they would not disperse, for reported this conversation, and the state of the affairs at Culna, to the Magistrate, and began to investigate into the correctness of the statement of the Rajah having landed at Culna with an armed force, and the general conduct on shore; and having ascertained the correctness of the daugah's report on that subject, and dispetched it to the Magistrate. Towards the evening, although I despaired of dispersing this Rajah's men. yet, that the Rajah may not have cruse to say that I had failed to call for his reply, as he had desired me, I went to the guar and desired the darogah to go on board; and if the Rajah should show any dispositions to disperse, let me know. Some delay having occurred in the datoga's returning, I, after dusk, returned to the thans, after having desired a person to call him. Soon after my arrival at the thans, the datogah and the police peous came. I enquired of the darogah what uply the Rajah gave him. He said that Mr. Shaw, on behalf of the Rajah, had told him that the Rajub was proceeding to Burdwan with the sanction of the Governor General in Council, and he would go there with his whole retinue. I then sent another report to the Magistrate, informing him of my inability to disperse this concourse; and this report. I dispatched by horse-dak. This was on the 30th April, and the Magistrate arrived on the night of the 12th May at the thana, with the military and the civil surgeon and a awoke me and inquired how matters stood. I said in statu que, and showed him the Raja's boat; and I took the gentlem n to the residence of Mr. Alexander, and, by the Magistrate's desire, stritoned persons on the road to give intimation of the arrival of the soldiery. During the night, the others retired and slept with their comparies, I in my palkie, and the Magistrate and Doctor at Mr. Alexander's. Early next morning, before day break, we proceeded and woke the military and rouzed them on the banks of the river, and pointed out the Raja's boats to the Magistrate. The firing then took place and the men evere captured. I took out a gold. guddy. I replied, I have no interestin this matter; all that nilted sword from under the Raja's pillow, and the I have to do is disperse the assembly. The Hurdun Rajah other arms were found by me on searching the other Crass-examined by Mr. Shaw.—I, on that evening, re-ceived two letters from the Raja, written in Persian. The Raja had brought II concubines with him, and there were 7 in his budgerow at the time I found the sword under the Raja's pillow. There was no riot in not go on board thus armed; but that I and the sword under the Raja's pillow. There was no riot in darogah, with 2 or 3 others, may come unarmed Culma, from the time of my arrival till the dispersion and communicate our message. In compliance with of the assemblage. I never told Mr. Shaw that this request, I and the nazir, accompanied by 2 or 3 daroga's reports were all laise. Rada Kissen Ghesaut peous, went on board. I gave the purwannah to the presented a petition to the Magistrate of Burdwan, Rajah and he looked at it, and Monshy Hurrochunder read its contents to him; after which I told the Rajah that it was necessary for him to disperse his retinue. The neither the Raja of Burdwan nor the Nabab of Moorahis. Rajah republic they are not a mob, but my domestic by Takoor Ally, was engrossed from rough drafts after nied me from Calcutta. Report this reply of mine to the Magistrate's return to Budwan.

Govind Sing, Jemadar, deposed. The witness corrobotated the evidence of Mayaboolla, late the daroga of Culna, and of Asseed Ally, the nazir of Burdwan, regarding the transactions which becurred at Culuaduring the stay of the pseudo Raja 18 that place.

Dusserut Palluch, deposed like the former witnesses, in confirmation of the transactions which occurred at Culna during the period the soi-distant Rajah was anchored off that town.

Hurrochunder, was brought up from the jul. It appeared that he was connected with the charge against these prisoners, and is to get his release from the jul on this charge, provided hespoke the truth.

Mr Bignell said, that he had no charge at present against him, but if he perjured himself he would have; and the Ziliah Magistrate said, that the written agreement with the man is in conformity to the existing regulations in this country; and if he does not depose to the truth in this case, he can be sent back to jail, and recommitted on the present charge.

This witness deposed. I know all the prisoners - I was the Secretary to the sor-assant Rejah, and wrote his letters for him by his dictation. Letter No. 1 is signed by Bucktawur Sing, the naza of this Raja. Who wrote the contents of it, I don't know. No. 2 is signed by the Raja. Who wrote the body I do not know. No. 3 was written by me, and signed by this Raja. It is addre-sed to Mudden Soedan Nudy, desning him to meet the Rejn at Amberka. I cannot say whether it was ever dispatched or not. No. 4 is likewise signed by the Raja, and written by me to the Nazir Assoul Oodeen, appointing him the Jemadai of the female household, the salary to be settled on his being installed as the Raja of Burdwan. No. 5 to a list of names. It is not signed, and who wrote it I cannot say. On re-examining it, he said, it is signed in. Nagree, which I cannot read. No. 6 is missing No. 7 is a petition from Assood Ally. Who wrote it I know not. The next No, is 15, and it is a drift of a letter written by me, to Matab Chunder, at the dictation of this Raja. was a letter copied from this, addressed to Matab Chunder, at Goyah, but as it could not find Matab Chunder there, it was returned. Another deatt by me, written to Matab Chunder, is a letter complaining of his arrival at Burdwan, and his feats of Prawn Bobon, and that he has employed persons for his protection; and that his case regarding the Rajaship of Budwan. was to be tried in the Supreme Court of Calcuna. No 17 is signed by this Raja. Who wrote the body of it I cannot say. It is addressed to Thakoor Ghosal, desirin-him to at end to the Raja's business as a salaried pers u at floughly, and after the Raja would succeed to higuidlee, he would appoint him daroga of the Rejbarry at Ambeeka. No. 18 is missing. No. 19 is not written by me, and bears no signature. No. 20 is an unsigned memorandum, written by me, of the arrival of 200 guestof the Rajah to play the holes. No. 22 is written by me; it is a memorandum, not read, of the arrival of the kertle-drums and flags. The next is not numbered, and is an or to Ram Chunder Molies, to come and attend to his duty within seven days; and Sebou Jema dar, to entertain 100 sepays to attend the Raja's train at Ambeeks, and to accompany him to Burdwan. Two letters, signed by the soi-disant Raja, to the address or Poybit Raja, were admitted.

Cross-examined by Mr. Show.—I was one year in the soi disant Rajah's service. I was with him all the time he was moured off Curins: There was no disturbance caused by him there. When the darogah explained to the Rajah the purwanna for him to disparse his sabule; the Rajah replied, I have no annecessary attendant.

nied me from Calcutta. Report this reply of mine to the Burdwan Magistrate, and let me know his order on this representation. The nazir arrived after this, and the darogah accompanied him to the Rajah's boat. and shewed to him the purwannah to disperse the llegal assemblage. On that evening the darogah went again, unattended, on board the Rajah's boat, and he did not appear to be alarmed. There were two burkuudazes with him, who staid out whilst the darogali went to the Rajah's 100m. The darogan never attempted to apprehend the Rajah. Mr. Shaw, on this occasion, seat for the nazir ; but he did not come. There was purwanua read that evening. Mr. Shaw dictated a letter to the nazir, signed by the Rajah, requesting him to mention how many persons he was to disperse. I wrote it in Persian. Pertaub told the darogah I am come. send for the nazir, and let him explain his purwanua to me, and then I will take measures to comply with its purport. The Rajah had the same servants with him at tuing that he had at Calcutta. Some of the shopkeepers and others of Culna, used occasionally to wait on the Rajah with presents. The only respectable person that came to see the Rajah, was the Huidun Rajah. The pseudo Rajah had presented a petition to Government, to be permitted to proceed to Burdwan to be recognized, and from the evidence the application was refu-e !; but a letter was dispatched to the Magistrate to see that no collison took place between the pseudo Rajah's and I Prawn Baboo's men. I do know Mr. Graham, the attorney of the Supreme Court. He had promised the Rajah to accompany him to Buidwan. He is a very good man, and had no wish to quarrel with any person. This Rajah had 60 or 70 burkundazes; they formed his guard and sentinels at his house, offices, and heats at Calcutta, and accompanied him from thence to Culina. The Rajah had I pinnare, 8 or 9 budgerows, and 2 or 8 bhowless and 304 boars. There was an averry in one of the boats, and the music and the kettle-drums on another. One was a bottle khana and the other the abilore-khana, a lourth the cookroom, and the sleeping hudgerow was separate from the andience boat. The buckundauzes were employed in guarding these boats. I was for a few days in the criminal juil, after my arrival from Burdwan, but sinced have become a Government witne-a, I have been removed to the civil side. men in custo ly on this charge, were some the Rajah's servants and some merely candidates for services was 8 o. 9 days in the criminal jud. I was arrested on the 21st of Bysuck last I was 10 days released on bail and then remouded to custody. All bail did not render up his bail. #1 do not know whether my bail has been released from his hability on my account. I did not commit any fresh crime during the time I was out on bail. I had a subpoena served on me from the Supreme Court. I waited on the Magistrate to inform hun of it, and the Magistrate then said, you are a Government witness, you must remain confined in the civil jail. My bail-bond was not returned to me. I was sent down by the Joint Magistrate in custody of 2 prous to Calcutta. The Rojah is a praceable and noble looking man. Mr. Bignell remarked, that this was irrelevant to the case. Mr. Curtis concurred in this opinion. Mr. Shaw replied that he only wished to show how the prosecution got their witnesses, but if the Judge objected he would discontinue it.

Cross-examined by Mr. Bignest. The Rajah wrote to the darogah, that he had 350 men with him at Culna, He did not discharge any of them, because he waited that the Magistrate's reply to his letter, which he had requested the daroga to forward to him.

Mr. Shaw, when Mr. Bignell was about to file the documents found in the Rajali s boat, said, that he opined that if Mr. Bignell filed these he ought to file them all. Mr. Bignell replied, that he would be those he thought favourable to his case, but they were all acceptable; again; and then he again quitted his house for five and if Mr. Shaw wished he could apply for and file years. During this period I did not see him. the others.

When this witness had concluded his testimony, the Judge ordered him to be released .- Hurkaru, Dec. 1.

The case of this person has been postponed from Friday the 30th November 1838, until Monday the 3d December 1838, in consequence of the indesposition of the prisoner. Dr. Wise, the civil surgeon of the addition, reported, that the prisoner was attacked with a fever and a swelling in his legs, likely to end in elephantiasis, and that it would be advisable to let him have two or three days rest.

Mr. Shaw wished to know whether, under the present circumstances, bail would now be taken for the prisoner; he likewise wished to be permitted to accome modate him with a charpoy and a coverlet.

Mr. Bignell replied, that he believed it was against the jail regulations to admit the articles Mr. Shaw requested; and as to bail, he considered that if the prisoner's removal from jail was necessary, no place could be more appropriate for him than the station hospital, where the civil surgeon, no doubt, would in auch case order his removal.

Mr. Shaw stated, that at present the Rajah is obliged to sleep in his palkec.

Mr. Curtis replied, that if a petition were presented to him on this subject, he would order what he considered necessary for the prisoner's comforts. With regard to the bail, he had better apply to the Nizamut Adawlut. Harkaru, December 3.

MONDAY, 3p DEC. 1838.

Premchand Bonerjea, nazir of the Criminal Court of Lilla Nuddea, deposed :- I recognize the prisoner Kisto Lal and the Hurdhon Raja. In the Bengal year 1234, when I was the kootwal of Goowaree, Kishenagur, Kisto Lal was then a candidate for the situation of a jemadar or a thana. At that time his father, Sham Lal, and his two brothers, were alive. Sham Lat's monkey had, during that period, strayed into the tent of an European merchant, who had his tents pro tempore pitched opposite Sham Lal's house. This led to a disturbance, and some men were wounded on both si les in the affray. I got notice of it from Lowin Sing, the patiol of the division. Two of three men in the service of the Europeans and Kis's Lal and his two brothers, were arrested on that occasion, and examined betore Mr. D. Mc Farlan, the magistrate of the division. Kisto Lal was the complainant in that case, and I was entrusted to observe, that the European did not quit the village until the decision of this suit. It lasted ifteen days. At the expiration of that period, the case was compromised, and Kisto Lal filed the deed of adjustment. I believe that the prisoner who alledges himself to be Pertab Chunder, the late Rajah of Burdwan, is the Kisto Lal I have been deposing about. I resided near his homested fifteen years; but in consiquence of his assuming the titles of the Rajship of Burdwan, I caunot speak confidently as to his identity. Kisto Lal composed a book which no resident of Kishenagur could read. He formed a picturesque arbour, in which he secreted a corpse, and used to read this mysterious book during the night over the body. During the first ten years of these filten years, I repeatedly saw him at various times; but during the last five years, I lost sight of him, and only saw him last year near the Ayherreetollah ghaut in Calcutta, when he was riding in a tonjohn in secont state, followed by about two kundred attendants. He once, about ten years ago, quitted his house for about six months, and then returned whether he was marked with the small pox or not.

Questioned by the Mohomedan Law Officer. I cannot tell the exact year of the quarrel between Kisto Lal and the Europeans at Kishnagur. I was the city daroga at that period.

Deponent added. Kisto Lal was for a few days appointed acting darogah of Santipoor; but on the representation of the shristadar of his Court, that Kisto Lal was a debauched character, Mr. McFarlao recalled him. Sham Lal died intestate; his property is in the custody of the judge of Zilla Nuddea.

Cross examined by Mr. Morton. Prisoner is darker and stouter than when I knew him in Kishenaghur, Kisto Lal had apparent small pox marks on his face. Sham Lal Bose knew Kisto Loll.

Neel Comul Ghose, shristader of zilla Nuddea, Crummal Court, deposed. I recognise the Hurdhua Rajah, and I saw a person resembling the pseudo Pertab Chunder at Kishenagur, maned Kisto Lal, son of Sham Lal; but whether this prisoner is that person or not, I cannot certify. I knew Kisto Lal and might have spoken to hun occasionally.

Brijamohon Mookerjea, peeshkar of the Criminal Court of zilla Nuddea, deposed. I recognize the Hurthon Rajah and the pseudo Pertab Chunder, whose name is Kisto Lal. I have known him for sevent years at Kishenagur. He is the son of Sham Lal, and he had two brothers, Gour Lal and Roop Lal. This prisoner's countenance resembles Kisto Lal's. Thu test of this deponent's evidence was in confirmation of the testimony of Premchund Bonerjee.

Cross-examined by Mr. Moiton. The statement in the Magistrate's Court, in which it appears that I expressed my doubt to the identity of this prisoner with Kisto I.al, is not correctly engrossed. I deposed there the same as I do now here but; I had no time to read it and correct the error, before I signed it.

Ramchunder Biswas, deposed. I am a retail dealer, reside at Kishenagur, and have known the pseudo Pertab thunder for ten years intimately. His name is Kisto Lal, and he is the son of Sham Lal. His two brothers, Gour Laland Roop Lal, are dead. I kept a school at Gwarree in those times, and the prisoner used to come there and read Bengally and Persian. The prisoner's uncle was a robber. Kisto Lal has studied astrology and law; but latterly he kept a concubine and became a drunkard, I therefore discontinued his acquaintanceship. About 18 years ago, the pusoner, who was 18 years of age, had a fall from a hoise. I saw the prisoner latterly at Chorebagan, in Calcutta. He is 36 years old.

Cross-examined by Mr. Morton: When the prisoner fell from his horse he was hurt severely and bled. and there was a seer of blood came from somewhere towards his back.

Gunga Govind Bonerjee, deposed: I recognize Kisto Lal, the son of Sham Lat I fave known him eversince he was 10 or 12 years of age, and 1 was educated in the school of Thakoordoss, a resident of Burdwan, with K sto La', hr our years. About 15 of 16 years ago, kisto Lai quitted his house, but returned again, after staying away eight or 10 years.

Cross-questioned by Mr. Morton. During the last 16 years I saw Kisto Lal three or four times, and once since his return. When Keto Lal went away, he was about 21 years old. Although 1 only saw Kisto Lalduring the last 16 years three or four times, yet I am positive that the soi disant Portab Chunder is that person. Within this time his complexion has the changed, but he is a little stouter. I do not remainder Questioned by Rada Kissen Ghosaul. I never gave and when I used to go there I used to put up with him evidence before in the Court of Requests, or any other Court.

He was a witness in this case, and gave his deposition regarding the death of Pertab Chuoder in the Magis-

Moyhes Pundit, deposed. I first saw the pseudo Pertab Chunder, when he called himself Kisto Lal. It was about six years ago, at Burdwan, on the Sealmarree road, Four years ago I saw him at Kishenagur. When at Burdwan he wore the Brahmanical thread. and his hair was long and tied up behind in a knot, and he was dressed as a devotee. At Kishenagur he had his hair cropped, and did not wear the same fashioned clothes as he did when I saw him at Burdwan. He used there to argue with me, Paul Christian and Padre Krukenberg, on the theology of the Hindoos, and did so for three years. Prisoner reminded me of my former acquaintanceship with him at Burdwan. I questioned him with regard to his change of dress and appearance. He replied it is not the same day that you now see; it has undergone a change since I quitted Burdwan I conjectured from this reply that there was some mystery in the prisoner's conduct, which he wished to conceal. I went to the Hooghly Jail with the clergyman, and there, in the presence of Mr. Samuells, the Magistrate, and Dr. Wise, the Civil Surgeon of the station, said, 1 recognised the prisoner to be Kisto Lal, the son of Sham Lal. Prisoner's father was a Bremacharee, i. e. a hermit devotee. I was introduced to him by Mr. Krukenberg, whose pundit I was, to dispute with him on the Hindoo theology. He declined to dispute with me; but referred me to his son Kisto Lal, and I from that period commenced these religious disputations with him. I am positive that this prisoner is Kisto Lal, the son of Sham Lal, Bremacharee. I have not the slightest doubt on this subject.

Cross examined by Mr. Morton. I saw Kisto Lal once at Burdwan, and seven or eight times at Kishenaghar. When I first saw the prisoner in jail at Hooghly, I did require 10 days to consider of it, before I could state precisely whether he was Kisto Lal or not, This I did because, although certain that he was Kisto Lal, I did not wish to depose to his identity on oath, without seeing him again, two or three times within these ten days. I did not see him within those days, so I was not enabled thereby to reftesh my memory; but as I am a pundit, I can, from that very circumstance, remember facts more tenaciously then other people do, and in proof, thereof, witness recounted the particulars of a meeting he had with Mr. Curtis, when he was Judge of Burdwau; but Mr. Curtisdenied all knowledge of this meeting. Questioned by the prisoner. Although I reside at Burdwan I am not a servant of the Rajahbarry there.

Gunga Persad Teewarry deposed. I recognise the prisoner to be the son of my Cousin Sham Lal. His name is Kisto Lal. I knew him at Kissenauhur ever since he was 10 years of age. He, was the eldest of three brothers; the next eldest to him was Roop Lat, and the youngest Gour Lal . I am a resident of Jesore and am a Brahmin. In B. S 1230, he resided near Ramchund Mitter's house at Kishenaghur, in whose house I used often to see Kisto Lal; but I did not see him for these five orfeit years, until lately day him in custody at Bancoorah. His dress and habits were then changed. He kept then a long, bushy beard. I had no conversation with him on that occasion, but after it I have heard much of his movements. I have not seen him subsequently, with the exception of the time when I was examined in this case in the Magistrate's Court of this district. I am quite sure this prisoner is Kisto Lal, the son of Shom Lai, Bramacharee, of Kishenaghur. I have known him ever since his childhood. He is 36 years regarding the death of Pertab Chunder in the Magistrate's Court. He died last Kartick. I have within the last 18 months resided at Ambeeka Sham Lal's relatives were originally natives of Moolstoodee, in Zillah Jessore; and they removed to Kishenaghur during Kisto Lal's infancy. With the exception of three years' journey to Burdwan. I never knew Kisto Lal to quit his house, and I used invaliably to see him at intervals of two or three months. The prisoner is my nephew. Questioned by Mr. Morton. Thou I have for these two years, know that the person alledging himself to be Rajah Pertab Chunder, is my nephew, Kisto Lal, yet I never mentioned this circumstance to any person. I am out of employ and will be most happy to get a situation wherever I can. I have no hopes of procuring service in the Rajbarry of Burdwan, as I have no friends there. I never was called by any other name than Gungapersad Tewary.

Mudden Chuckerbutty. The whole of this witness's evidence tended to corroborate the testimony of the witnesses whose examination preceded to-day, regarding the pseudo Pertab Chunder being the son of Sham man testing a resident of Kishenaghur, and his name being Kisto Lal.

To a question of Mr. Bignell, Mr. Graham replied, that he would give to morrow the names of some of those witnesses whom he required the sounest.

It was arranged that by sent of parties the evidence of Mr. Alexander before the Magistrate, should be read in this case, and filed a documentary testimony.

A charpoy and warm clothing were ordered to be supplied to the psindo Rajah to-day by Mr. Curris, Mr. Trower has objected to come up and give his testimony before the Sessions Julge, unless his expences be paid to him. Major Stock Carter Webber, torquerly commandant of the Burdwin Provincial Battalion, has made the same objections to come down as witnesses.—Harkara, December 5.

DECEMBER 4, 1838.

Rumbur Tewary, a retainer of the pseudo Rajah, was brought up from the Civil Jail of the district and deposed. I recognize Maha Rajah Pertah i hunder an i his retainers, the darogah, mookhtar and others. I likewise recognize the Huidhun Rajah. In Chait last, Ghosaul dispatched me with letters to Rajah Gour Narrain of Kishnaghur, and to the mad Rajah of Pachite; and likewise with a letter to Sadoo Bahoo, the brother-in law of the l'achite Rajah. This letter I lost on the road. Ghosaul, when I left him, said, the Rajah will go with Government permission to be iscognized by the Ranees of Burdwan. This son of the Pachite Rajah replied, that when Periab Chunder will mount the guidee, I will go and visit him. I was arrested by, Chaptain Hannyngton at Purreelea. No letters were in my possession, but on the hed of Mouthoor Mohon Mitter, by Captain Hannyngton's sheristadar. Lam subject to fi's of abberation and cannot read and write, but by a mark on these letters, I can precognize them. (Here, Mr. Shaw remarked, that these letters had been Witness recognized No. 18, in which it admitted.) was stated, that the Rajah would come, sided by the authorities, to mount the Burdwan Raj, and craved aid of maney; and two others which he recognized were nruch of the same tenor. I had on conversation with him saw him twice at Maulaubepoor, zillah Burdwan, depo-on the occasion, but I recollect his features perfectly nent's village. At the latter time Kirpanund was not I first became acquainted with him about three or four with him. He made short stays at each time and put years ago, at Bishenpoor; at that period it was generally reported, that he was Rajah Pertau Chunder. After this witnesse had fluished his depositions he was released.

Kasinath Bose, deposed -1 recognize the soi-disant Rajah. I do not know his name. I first saw him about six months previous to the bruit of the reappearance of Rajah Pertab Chunder. He was then living with a young man at Shampooker, in the house of Goopeenath. I went to see him there in company with others, in consequence of a rumour, that two hand-ome devotees had come to reside there, and some believed them to be saints. I am not certain as to the purport of this conversation, but I believe that one of them said, when four persons combine, in a short time the world will know who me are. I have on further recollection if ought else transpired between us.

Questioned by Mr. Bignell .- I was acquainted with Rijah Pertab Chunler I saw him chiefly at Burdwan. I believe I have distinct remembrance of his features. have seen the pseudo Rajah subsequent to my interview with him at Shampooker, at Mr. DeSonza's, and likewise at his residence in Calcutta, No, from my recollection of the features of Perian Chunder, I cannot say that i ; believe the priso ier to be that individual. I cannot say whether in assuming the name of Pertab Chunder, he is or is not an imposter; butte is not like that individual. I saw Mr. Hutchinson, of the Civil pervice, after a lapse of eighteen or uneteen years, in Messes. Tulloh and Co.'s Auction, and we mutually recognized each other. The prisoner is taller than Pertal Chander and younger. His teeth are dissimilar, and the Rajah was much fauer.

About 8 or 9 years ago, Kishen Chund, who is likewise called Lalla Bahoo, brought me a Bengally bond, executed by Bebee Folitali Koomary, the sister of Rajah Taj Chunder, i favor either of Rajah Tej Chunder or of Rajah Pertab Chunder, I am not sure of which; and he offered to dispose of the same to me for sicca rupees 500; leaving it to my option, either to pay the money myself or to prevail on Bebee Tohtah Koomary to pay it and redeem the bond. I believe it was for sicca supees 5,000; but of this I am not quite sure. At the time Kis-en Chund brought me this bond, I had money transactions with Bebee Toutah Kopmary. How Kissenchund obtained the bond I am not aware. I believe he held a confidential situation under the late Rajah Pertab Chunder; but the nature of it I do not know.

Mr. Morton observed, he could not conceive what this bond had to do with the present investigation.

Examined by Mr. Morton .- I never told to Mr. De-Souza, in his ga den, in the prisoner's presence, that I believed him to be Rajah Pertab Chunder of Buidwan. Mi. Shaw showed me a letter from Mr. DeSonza, in which it was stated that I had recognised the prisoner to be Pertab Chunder, but I denied the correctness of the assertion. To the best of my recollection, I never told Mr. Desouz that I believed the presoner to be Pertab Chunder, neither to Mrs. DeSouza or Mr. Graham. assertion to any person. I am a Putnee Talookdar of in his Kutcheiry .- Hurk., December 6. the present Rajah of Burdwan, of several talooks.

Govind Biswas deposed, that he had known the prisoner since 4 years ago, when he was named Aluk Shah, and had some followers. He used to worship the God Sheve, Deponent saw Kirpanund in his company, the prisoner Kisto Lal but I cannot speak with up in the house of Ruttenchund. His first sojourn was for 20 days. Ruttenchund died during the mouth of Kartick last year.

Examined by Mr. Morton .- I would recognize Kirpanund, if I were to see him. I went to the Jail with the Shristadar to day.

Questioned by the pseudo Rajah .- No person has taught me, to state what I have deposed to-day.

Ramajunder Mitter. 2 This witness, on being required to take his oath, before giving his deposition, began to blubber like a child, and said I know nothing, why swear me? He even refused to sign the ekrarnama, and began o roll on the ground; and although he was threatened to be taken to the prison, he still refused to be sworn, and was ultimately removed to the Hooghly Jail.

After this witness had been removed to the jail, it appearing that there were no other witness in attendance at the Court to day, and none expected before 3 or 4 o'clock p. m., the Court adjourned at half past I o'clock p. m. till 10 o'clock to morrow morning, Moonshy Hurrochunder, who was brought up from the Civil Jail, on Thursday last, the 29th ultime, and ordered by the Judge, after he had given his testimony in this case, to be released, as he was what the law termed a King's evidence, and there was, Mr. Bignell stated, charge against him. Yet he was after this order of the Judge, sent off by the Shristadar' of the Magistrate's Court, on that night to the jail, and brought up the next morning before the Magistrate, when, it appearing that there was no charge of any nature pending against him, either in the civil or criminal Court, the Magistrate ordered his immediate release.

Previous to the examination of Ramrutten Tewarry. the judge particularly enquired whether there was any charge against him of any nature connected with this case, and after he had ascertained that there were none, and that he likewise was a King's evidence, he then proceeded to take his deposition. This witness during his examination swore, that he had been ill-treated and almosts starved in the zilla jail, and had got cramps in his legs from confinement, and requested permission to sit down whilst being examined. This was granted to him by the judge. He likewise stated, that he had watery effusion from his ears, and was parnally deat. The judge, after this witness had concluded ms testimony, ordered his release. The Magistrate, who happened to be there in the Judge's Court, very humanely backed the order and desired his Shristadar to let him go where he pleased, without making him undergo the same formula as Moonshy Hurroochunder had undergone.

To a question of Mr. Morton, Mr. Bignell replied, that he believed that he would be enabled to close the case for the prosecution by the expiration of another week, but much depended on the speedy and punctual arrival of the witnesses subposned in the case.

From what fell from the judge during the trial of this case, we believe it is not his intention in future to take up the miscellaneous civil duties of his court every Saday, and defer the hearing of this case on those days, as I have invariably told Mr. Graham that presoner is not be had originally proposed; but to proceed with it every Pertab Chunder. In fact, I never made the above day without intermission, until it is finally terminated

DECEMBER 5, 1837.

Prannath Mookerjes deposed. I think I recognize the certainty to this prisoner's identity with that person; for I have not seen Kisto Lal for about eight years. When I last saw him it was when Mr. McFarlan was Judge and Magistrate of the Kishenaghur District. He was then very young and slighter made than this prisoner is ; but my impression that this prisoner is Kisto Lal, is very strong, from the close resemblance he bears to his late father Sham Lal, who died last year at Gwaree, and who was my priest, and I saw him often at Kishenaghur. Sham Lal never told me what had become of his son Kisto Lal. During the eight years I have mentioned, I was temporarily absent from Kishenaghur, and went to Jessore. Shain Lal had three sons, Kisto Lal was the eldest, Roop Lal the next, and is dead; but what has become of Crour Lal I don't know. I was not very intimate with Sham Lal, but he lived for upwards of 20 years at Kishenaghur, were he died; but his native village was Mohr-poor, l'hana Dowlutpore, Zillah Nuddea. 1 do not know any of the other prisoners. I am Sheiishtadar of the Judge's Court, Zillah Nuddea. I am not acquainted with Gungapersad Tewarry. Sham Lal died intestate and there are no heirs to his estate, although notice has been proclaimed in the Judge's Court, for the heir to come forward and claim the estate of the deceased. I knew Shain Lal for 37 years, and Kisto Lal when he was a child. Kisto Lal was a permanent resident of Kishenaghur, with the exception of two or three months, when he might have been absent from it; but of this I am not aware. Kisto Lal was very learned for a native; he knew Persian and Sanscrit, and composed an astrological work in the latter language. When I knew him, he was a candidate for employment. Whether he assumed the habit of a Brumachargee, I do notknow. I imagine the prisoner to be Kisto Lal, but I cannot say so to a certainty. Possibly he may not be Kisto Lal, but I cannot conceive him to be any other individual.

Questioned by Mr. Shaw .- I know Joychurn Sircar, of Kishenagur, but whether he knew Kisto Lal intimately or not, I cannot say. Joychund lived near Kisto Lal's house in Gwaree. Joychunder told me that he believed the prisoner to Kisto Lal. Joychunder was examined before the Magistrate of Hoogly in this case. I do not know whether Joychunder is subpoened to give evidence in the case before the Se-sions Judge. Joychunder practices as a Mooktear of Zilla Nudden." l have had no conversation with him within 15 days. Joychunder never told me that he could not recognize the prisoner to be Kisto Lal in the Magistrate's Court. I saw a Clergyman in Kishenagur once, but I do not know his name. I do not remember whether Kisto Lal was marked with the small pox or not, as I never closely examined his features. Sham Lal Bose, Mr. McFarlan's shristadar, must have known Kisto Lal.

Hurrochund Hujra. I know the pseudo Partab Chunder; his name is Kisto Lal. I likewise know the Hurdhon Rajah. I am a vakeel of the Judge's Court in Zilla Nuddea. This witness likewise deposed, that the soi-disant Rajah was known to him at Kishenagur, as Kisto Lal, the soin of Sham Lal, for 25 years; and that he had not seen him of late for 8 years. In fact hievidence was but a corroboration of the other witnesser regarding this prisoner's residence at Gwaree, the suburb of Kishnagur, for many years.

of Kishnagur for many years.

Whilst the Touzdary Shristadar was reading the deposition of this witness, as given before this Magistrate of Hooghly, there was a passage on it, in which this witness had stated before the Magistrate, that the pseudo Rajah's features were the same but there was a slight alteration. The prisoner here addressed the Court, and began to state what he codecived to be the purport of that passage; but the Judge immediately stopped him, the passage; but the Judge immediately stopped him, the passage is but the Judge immediately stopped him, the passage is but the Judge immediately stopped him, the passage is but the Judge immediately stopped him, the passage is but the Judge immediately stopped him, the passage is put the Judge, which Mr. Shaw is suffequently appeared, during the proceedings, under stool to be offensive to his client and infurious to his case.

The passage which caused this interruption was this This witness before the Magistrate had deposed to the following effect:

The prisoner resembles Kisto Lal, but he is somewhat altered. Kisto Lal was fairer than this prisoner, and this prisoner is stouter and taller than Kisto Lal was.

During the examination of Pronath Mookerjea, Mr. Shaw objected to the judge's writing, that the prisoner was versed in the Persian language, &c. He said, that as this witness had not deposed positively that the prisoner was Kisto Lal, he believed, strictly, under these circumstances, it would be more appropriate to write Kisto Lal knew Persian, &c. then to write the prisoner knew Persian.

Mr. Curtis replied, that he considered that the witness had sworn to the identity of the prisoner with Kisto Lal to the best of his knowledge and belief, and this he imagined was construed by law to be fully sufficient to justify his writing the passage as he had done,

After the Shristadar had finished the reading of the witness's depositions before the Magistrate, the Judge asked Mr. Shaw, whether he had any questions to put to this witness. Mr. Shaw replied, that after the expression the judge had used to his client from the Bench, he declined to put any question to this witness.

The judge replied, that it was irregular in the prisoner to interrupt the Shistadar, whilst he was reading the deposition of this wirness as given before the Magistrate, and whenever the prisoner would attempt irregularly to interrupt the Court, he would always check him.

Mr. Bignell remarked, that it is always optional with the prisoner to appear other in propria persona or through his vakeel; but it he files a vakulutnama, as this prisoner had done in his case, it was, according to the Mofussil practice, tregular in him to interrupt the proceedings, but properly he ought to leave his case entirely to the discretion of his vakeel.

Mr. Show replied, that it was not his intention to dictate to the Court what its practice should be, or to interfore with it; but he certainly would decline examining this witness after what had just occurred.

The Judge than asked Mr. Graham, whether he had any questions to put to this witness. Mr. Graham replied in the negative, as fikewise did the prisoners when questioned on that point.

The defendant's mooktars to-day filed, we believe, the names of nine witnesses, whom they must urgently required immediately after the case for the prosecution would be closed.

Whilst Mr. Shaw was cross-examining one of the witnesses to-day, a convenation arose from it, in which Mr. Shaw informed the Court, that he had understood from Mr. Samuells, the Magnetrate of this district, whilst he was conducting the examination of the witnesses for the prosecution in this case, that all the witnesses who had usen examined before the Magnetrate for the prosecution, would likewise be examined before the Sessions Judge in this case.

Mr. Bignell replied, that he, as the Vakeel for the prosecution, would call only such witnesses to be examined as he imagined would tend to prove the charges stated in the indictment, which he had preferred against these prisoners, and onit the examination of those whose testimony he did not consider to be essential to his case; although they might have been previously examined before the Magistrate of the district, preparatory to drawing up the indictment against the prisoners; but he had no objections to the defendants subpenaing any of these witnesses for the defences if they considered their evilence to be serviceable to their case; but with regard to the Revd. Mr. Deere, regarding whose evidence this since he gave his evidence before the Magistrate, and Mr. Deere had informed him, that he had since that period seen the prisoner, and he could now confidently say, that he was Kisto Lal.

Mr. Shaw remarked, that as Mr. Cuttis had, in con sequence of the testimony of Prawokissen's evidence, subnænaed many witnesses whose names were not in the list of witnesses submitted in this case for the prosecution, he supposed that the Judge would have called all those who had been examined before the Magistrate in this case. Such he had understood the practice generally to be, but if he had been misinformed, he stood cor-

Mr. Curtis replied, that those witnesses had been called in consequence of some unforeseen circumstance having arisen from the case; but generally speaking, it was not his intention to interfere, but let the parties call their own witnesses to prove their respective cases.

There being no other witnesses in waiting, the man who had been yesterday sent to the jail, because he refused to take his oath, on any of the forms prescribed by the Court, was brought up again to day, and on his persi-ting in his refusal, recommitted to jail. Afterwame Mr. Bignell proposed to adjourn the further hearing of this case until Friday next, the 7th instant, which, he said, would be perferable; by that time there would arrive witnesses enough to occupy the Court for one whole day instead of sitting for one or two hours over every two or three witnesses, as they may happen to arrive. This proposition being acceded to by both the Judge and the prisoner's vakeels, the Court adjourned till 10 o'c lock A. M. Friday, the 7th instant, in consequence of the present non-attendance of witnesses for the prosecution __Hurkaru, December 7.

DICEMBER 8, 1837.

Paul Christian deposed .- I have for the last six years been a resident of Kishenagur, but formerly I resided in the district of Burdwan. I recognize Sham Lal's son Kisto Lal, and the Rajah of Hurdhun. In the month of me any similar offer. December 1833, I went to the residence of the Rev. Mr Kraukenberg at Kishenaghur, and we went to preach the gospel to the residents of that town, where we saw Sham Lal standing in the verandah of his house. After a short conversation with the clergyman, Snam Lil in troduced us, in a small room, to his son Kisto Lal, and requested us to converse with him, and we there had an argument with Kisto Lal on various religious topics The next day we repeated our visit accompanied by Mohes Pundit, and renewed our theological arguments. During the controversy Kisto Lat frequently interrupted it by indecent bursts of laughter. Molies Pundit told Kisto Lal, that he believed he had seen him previously. Kisto Lal replied:—May be, when this soul inhabited another body." Hearing this reply the clergyman remarked to me in English, this man appears to be an impostor, and has no fixed notion of religion, it is needless conversing with him. After this the Clergyman ceased to visit him during the months of December 1833, and January 1834. I on various occasions have seen him seven times at Kishenaghur and I saw him in company with Mohes Pundit. When he was in the Jail at Hooghly, I was directed to see and recognise him by the Clergyman. did not then wish to expose him, and, therefore, when questioned by Mr. Walters, the Commissioners, after my interview with the prisoner, I requested ten day's time to consider and give my reply to his and Dr. Wise-queries regarding the identity of the prisoner; but i even then told them that I believed him to be Kisto Lal, but I could not then speak positively on that subject dispute arose, all that he could say was, that his testimo-femaciated, and had a beard and long hair tied up in a ny would not injure his case, for he had seen Mr. Decre knot behind his head, and his dress was likewise different from what it is now. In consequence of Mr. Kraukenberg been enabled to recognize the prisoner as Listo Lal by the tie of his hair, prisoner refused to tie it in a knot in my presence. I spoke to him and advised him to desist from persisting in this imposture. This was in 1836. After my return to Kishenagur, the Rev. Mr. Deere requested Sham Lal to send for his soff Kisto Lal. and he would get him a situation in the zilla court ; but the Gossian replied, that Kis o Lal had gone to the village of Maudpoor to collect some money, and said " go and search for him there " When I heard this, I replied there is no necessity of searching for Kisto Lal across the Pudda river, for he is in confinement in the jail of zilla Hooghly. After this I wrote to Dr. Wise a letter, informing him that if he wished to be satisfied of the identity of the prisoner with Kisto Lal, if he would send their travelling expenses, there were many residents at Kissenagur who had been acquainted with Kisto Lal and could proceed to Hooghly and recognize him. To this letter I received no reply. From the time I ceased iny visits to Kisto Lal in January 1834, I neither saw nor heard of him, until I saw him in the zilla jail of Hooghly in 1836. I saw his father Sham Lal in 1835. at the house of an Indigo planter. His son was not then with him. Mr. Klaukenberg is not now residing within the East India Company's territories. I have no doubt that the prisoner is Kisto Lal, he is so exactly like him. It it were possible for two persons to be the exact resemblance of each other, then there may be a doubt, not otherwise.

> Questioned by Mr. Graham. I did not see yesterday evening Menik Sing, I saw the Shristadar, Munsaram, on the road, and questioned him regarding the payment of my expenses in coming as an evidence in this case. He referred me to the sessions judge. The reappoarance of Rajah Pertab Chuoder at Bancoorah, was a common rnmour amongst the vulgar people : I took no notice of it. I neither know whether the Pseudo Rajah was arrested at Bancoorah, or that Poraua Baboo wrote to the Rev. Mr. Deere to come and see the prisoner, his expenses being paid to him, nor did Poraun Baboo make

This witness claimed 11 rupees as his travelling expenses, and the Sessions Judge allowed him 10 rupees.

Ramchunder Mittur, Mohorir, in the Collectorate department of Burdwan, deposed. I reside to the village fomalpoor, zillah Burdwan. I recognize Kisto Lal, the on of Sham Lal, alius Shamanund Gossain. Shamanund used often to come to my house, at l'ailmarree, in Burdwan, and put up there for 10 days at a time. He was my family priest. In the year 1237 B. S. Kisto Lal quarrelled with his father, and came and resided for 2 or 3 months at my house, In 1241 B. S. Kusto Laf again visited me at Tailmarree. During the first visit he was a candidate for employment under Government but at the latter he had assumed the habits of a sacerdotal character. He on that occasion resided 15 days in my house. Subsequently in 1242, I saw him is Kishnagur. At that time, he resided in the house of my house. Komul Raur, and many persons came to see him, and said the young Rajah is returned. I never contradicted this rumour, I advised him to desist from this imposture, otherwise he would get into trouble ; but he paid no attention to this counsel. I gave no contradiction to the rumour, because if I had done so, I would have been taken before the authorities, and my depositions taken and an order passed in it. I only mentioned the circumstance to my brother. My brother likewise saw the pris soner when he visited me in 1237 B. S., and 1241. B. 4. My brother still resides in Burdwan. His name is The prisoner was lying on a cot. He was then very much is Jugget Mitter, and he has not been subprensed in this case. When the prisoner was at Komul Raur's, I did not see any person attending on him.

Questioned by Mr. Graham .- It was a little previous to the Doorgah Pools, that the prisoner was at Kishnagur, in his assumed character of Pertab Chunder. He was never in cucum-tances to be able to engage my brother's service. Gour Lai was younger and shorter than the prisoner, but he resembled him very much; he was rather an hurnt. I have no recollection as to whether he was pock-marked or not. Kisto Lal had ten toes and 10 fingers.

Deconauth Gangoly, deposed. I resided at Sceekaunth in Zilla Buidwin. I know this man, (pointing to the Pseudo Rajah) but I do not know his name. I saw him during the month of Assaur, four or five years ago, dressed as an ascetic, in the house of Doorga Doss Mundel, for some days. Doorga Doss-Mundel died in Kartick last. Another ascetic accompanied the pusoner to Sreeekanth, and Prawnkissen waited on him there Prawiki-en had three names, He called himself at Bincoorah Kerpanund and Ghasseeram. I am certain that this prisoner is the Gossain. I saw him at Sreekaunth four years ugo; but I do not know this name. I never went with Ke panund to Kishenagur. The Choots Gossain had different featurefrom this pusaner. Prawnkissen invariably accompanied the minor ascetic to Doorga Mundel's house, i never saw either of the two Goossains drink any intoxicating liquor.

Questioned by Mr. Bignell. I never heard these Gossains' names at Steekaunth. They went under the appellation of the Burra and Chota Gossains.

Questioned by Mr. Graham. I do not know from whence the personal came to Steekaunth. Sooroop Naram Deo, the Chota Gossam, was handsomer than the prisoner, and was shorter.

where Law the Pseu to Raja resting as a Gossam tout of five years ago, in the house of Doorga Mundel. I bear heard his name. Seven months previous to this Prisoner is dated and souther than he than was. That the thing was the second of the previous to this Prisoner is dated and souther than he than was. That Gossain agrival, another Gossam had come and resided for some days. I know Prawuki-sen. I did not see Questioned by Mr. Graham. Never expecting to him with the Gossam that came first to the house of be examined regarding the prisoner. I took no notice Gossain.

Questioned by Mr. Graham. Prawn was at Sree. kananth when the prisoner was there. I do not know the prisoner's name, or who he is.

Anoopchunder Dutt, resident of Sreekanth, deposed I recollect having seen the sor disant Rajan three or lour years ago, at the house of Doorga Mandel Doss, in Assaur or Shrabon He was then in the diess of a Gossain. I do not know his name; but I have subsequently heard that he is called Partab Chunder. once or twice at Sceekaunth. I know Kirpanund, alias Prawnkissen. He has become insane and embraced Christianity. He was at Sreekaunth when prisoner was there. Prisoner only came once to my village. In the other Prawnkissen waited on the Chota Gossain, who was fairer and about the same height as this prisoner. Prawnkisson did not accompany that Gossain to Sreekaunth; but in consequence of his having performed a miraculous curs on Doerga Mundel, Plawn became his disciple. I do not know the name of either of the Gossains, or from whence they come, or where they intended to go. About seven days after the departure of the prisoner, the inhabitants of Breekaunth bruited about that" the burra Gossain, who had resided at Doorga Mundel's, was the young Raja of Burdwan. On my inquiring of Doorga Mundel who this Gossain was, he said I need not tell you now who he is, you will know that in a few days; and I guessed from this reply that he was some great personage.

Solochurn Buttachar, resident of Sreekaunth, deposed. I am a Bramun beggar. I know the principal person, his name is Gossain. He was in Doorga Mundel's house, about four years ago in Assaur for 12 days, Kirpanund was with him, during his stay at Sreekaunth. I saw him three or four times. The subabitants of the village mobbed together and threw stones at him to turn him out of the village and pelted him with mud, because he was a magician. The magician then went to Burdways and about 20 days after his departure, there was a rumour in the village that he was changed to Raja Pertab Chunder of Buidwan. Kirpanund did not accompany him. I never heard from whence this Gossain had come. Some months previous to this Gossain's coming, mother, taller than him, came to Sreekaunth, about six or seven days after the chota Gossain's arrival, called on him at Doorga Mundel's dwelling.

In consequence of the Sessions Judge's language to the prisoner on Wednesday last, during the hearing of his case, Mr. Shaw has declined any further attendance on his behalf in this Court professionally.

Mr. Shaw has, we learn, been interdicted from visiting the prisoner in juil .- Hurk. Dec. 10.

DECEMBER 10, 1838.

Wookinchund Chowdry, inhabitant of Moosabgunge, Zilah Burdwan, being sworn, after some difficulty, recollected the prisoner Kisto Lal, who had in 1239 or 1240, B. S., resided about 18 months in his house. I knew, said the witness, a father Sham Lal; he used occasionally to visit me I know the pisoner to be Kisto Lil, because his features resemble that persons, When he resided with me, he led a devotional life, and came in a palkee attended by a servant named Bhola-Gour Lal, prisoner's brother, likewise came Sham Mograth, deposed, I am a resident of Steekaunth, to my house occasionally, attended by Kirpanund, Prisoner in the morning eat milk and rice, &c. and koordoss wrote my father's accounts occasionally.

Doorga Mandel, but he used to attend on the Chota whether he was pock-marked or not. In consequence of his diinking liquot, I did not go near him. He was not deeply marked. The Shristadar, the Nazir, and the Darogah of Chinsurah, and another, took me yesterday morning to the Houghly Jail. Besides me the whole of my village of Moosabgunge could recogn ze 16 persons. My father supplied his meals, but never lent him any money.

> Mr. Trower wished to put some questions to the pri-I saw him somer previous to his swearing positively to his identity after the lapse of time. This being assented to,

> > C. Trower, Esq., was sworn and said .- I was formery very intimately acquainted with Rajah Pertab Chund for 8 years, and I think from the strong recollection of his countenance on my memory, I would be able to recognize him again if I were to see him. The picture which I saw in the Cutchery of the Magistrate of this district, I considered to be a striking a likeness of Pertab Chund. I have met the prisoner twice, once in Mr. Prinsep's office, and once in the Magistrate's Court here, and I do not trace the least resemblance between him and Rajah Pertab Chund, ? as far as my recollection will enable me to speak on that point. The witness here wished to put the questions afore alludeds to, to enable him to speak with greater certainty on this point.

The prisoner on being consulted said, I will recollect striking circumstances, but trifling matters have been all to them to the best of my remembrance.

1st question. Do you recollect my going to Burdwan, as the Collector of Burdwan and Hooghly. A. It was about 10 or 12 years before my quitting my Raj? I recollect the circumstance.

2d. Do you recollect who was then the Judge and gistrate of Burdwan? A. It was before Mr. Martin was appointed Judge and Magistrate of Burdwan. I think it was in Mr. Bayley's time.

Mr. Trower declined putting any further question, and said, that from the particular circumstances that occurred regarding these questions, he could never have forgotten the man's name, and it was neither Mr. Bayley nor Mr. Martin.

M. Graham wished to place the prisoner besides the portrait, and have them examined.

Mr. Trower replied, from his voice, his features, his height and every circumstance that has occurred since I have seen him, coupled with his replies to my questions, I have not the least hesitation to saying, that he is I have already examined him not Pertab Chand. twice minutely, and I do not trace the least resemblance between him and Pertaub Chund.

Questioned by the Prisoner. Was not Mr. Peter Emmer and Mr. Ridley in your service ? A. Peter Emmer I brought up. Rolley was in my service.

2d. Was not my dewan Seeboo Collecah ? A. Yes, I made him my dewan.

Questioned 3d. Did they not visit me in the Raj barry ? A. I cannot say, I was not acquainted with their habits.

Prisoner wished to converse with Mr. Trower further to assist his memory in recognizing the prisoner to be Pertab Chand.

Mr. Trower replied, that if the prisoner were to speak to him till eternity, he would never be able to convince him that he was Pertab Cffund.

Questioned by Mr. Bignell. Peter Emmer called on me and consulted me as to his giving evidence on the identity of the prisoner, and he told me during the conversation, that he was very young at the time when he had seen the Rajah, and he therefore imagined, that he could not give any satisfactory replies on this point. I declined giving him any advice on the subject. Dr. Scott was in 1816 or 17 at Burdwan.

Takoordoss Chuckerbutty, resident of Moosabgunge, deposed to having seen the prison, r Kisto Lal in his village, whom he recognized, and added, that he likewise knew his father Sham Lal, who used to visit his village and reside with Budden Chowdry and Premchaud, there. They were devocees, but they used to druk intoxicating liquors and raught both Budden and Premchund to get drunk likewise. I have accounts written by me of the expenditure which Premchand and Budden Chowdry incurred on account of the prisoner Kisto Lal, his father Sham Lal, and his brother Gour Lal, whilst they resuled in their houses. I was a servant of Budden and Premchund, and wrote their accounts occasionally, and can produce them from my employers house, it requested to do so, in a few days. Kisto Lal resided for 18 months in Premchund's house in 1839 B. S.

The witness was desired to produce these papers by the 3d of the ensuing bengally month in Court, and testify to them.

Bykanthnath Chowdry, inhabitant of Moosabgunge. deposed. *I do not recognize any of the prisoners distinctly. I did not yesterday, in Jail, recognized the prisoner to be Kisto Lat. I used seldom to be in my karu, December 12.

forgotten by me. I will, however, endeavour to reply | native village, but generally with my employer. Mr. David Hare, at Calcutta. I heard that Gossains named Sham Lal, Kisto Lal, and Gour Lal did occasionally reside at Premchund's house at Moosabgunge, but I never saw them there.

> Questioned by Mr. Bignell. - Yesterday, when I saw the prisoner in the jail here, I told the jail darogah, that I could not speak to his identity as Kisto Las Doorgadoss Gungooly, inhabitant of Monsabgunge. I do not recognize any of the prisoners. On the Judge pointing out the pseudo Pertab Chunder to the witness, witness said, I only saw him last night at the jail here, and never before in my life. I never saw him at Moosabgunge, nor do I know either Sham Lal, Kisto Lal, nor Kissenpersud. I never visited Preinchund at Moosabgunge. I never heard of any Gossaiu in my village in 1239, B. S.

Questioned by Mr. Bignell. I saw the prisoner in pail yesterday evening, but I never told the datogan that I had recognized him to be Kisto Lal. I am a distant relation of Premchand's, but in consequence of a law out I had with him regarding some ancestorial property, I am on indifferent terms with him.

Mr. Bignell applied to have securities taken from them, because he intended to move the court to prosecute the two last witnesses for perjury.

The Judge then intimated to this witnesses, that both he and the last witness must give security of 200 rupees each, to answer to the charge of perjury about to be brought against them by the Government prosecutorin

Deponent added, that ever since his arrival the night before last, he has been kept by the Nazeer in strict confinement, and not allowed to converse with any person whatsoever, not even his brother, who is a Mohorir in the employ of the Mahomedan Law officer of the court.

Gungapersad Tewarry was re-called and re-examined this-day on his former written asservation. There are other uncles of the prisoner besides myself, viz. Sew. persad Tewarry, a resident of Mooktardar in Zillah Jessore, and Mudden Tewarry, residing in the same place, Tukeer lewarry and Sourcey Tewarry. There are no other relatives besides these and myself of the pussoner Kisto Lal Tewariy. They have all seen Kisto Lal.

Subposnas were, in consequence of the eviedence of tins witness, ordered to be issued against these relatives of the prisoner.

Gungapersad Tewarry, questioned by Mr, Graham. I do not know whether Kisto Lai had six toes on any of his feet.

Mr. Bignell intimated, that he would forego the prosecution for perjury against Byconth Nath Chowdry. but he had sufficient proofs to convict Doorgadoss Gungoolly In consequence of this intimation, the Judge ordered Bykanth Nath to be released, but ordered Doorgadoss to be made over to the Nazir of the Civil Court, and kept to custody until he gave bail for 200 rupees, to appear in this court and answer to the charge of perjury about to be instituted against him.

Mr. Biguell intimated, that there were only six witnesses remaining, and requested that the case may be postpoued on Wednesday next, as he had urgent business to compel his attendance at the Sudder Revenue Board of Calcutta on that day.

This request was complied with by the Court .- Hur-

DECEMBER 11, 1838. "

Bholanath Roy, resident of Barnagore, deposed. I recognize the soi disant Rajah. About 12 or 13 years ago, I went to Kishenaghur to learn to read and write, where I saw Kisto Lal. and I subsequently heard at Calcutta, that a Burdwan Rajah had come to the Fouldarry Balakhana. I went with some others to see him. The soi disant Rajah on seeing me, recognized me, and asked me whether my name was not Bholanath. I replied "yes." It struck me at the time, that the soi disant Rajah resembled Kisto Lal. I have heard that Kisto Lal's lather's name was Sham Lal, but I never saw him. I have heard that the pisoner had been to Barnagore, but I was not present when he went there. This was about three years ago, previous to my seeing him in Calcutta.

Ram Narrain, Moonshy of Barnagore, I saw the soi disant Rajah about two or three years ago at Barnagore He resided at a garden there called Khass Bagan. He was then attired as a devotee, I do not know his name. I think this prisoner is the same person, I then saw there. How long he resided there I do not know I saw him four or five days in that state. I remember not whether he had any followers or companions with him. Many Gossains come and go through my village under similar circumstances. There was nothing peculiar in him to attract my attention particularly. Who he is or what is his name, I am not aware. My house was surrounded by the police peons, and I was prevented ingress and egress from and to it, unless I would attend to the subjection his case. This compulsory procession me to come here and give my deposition in this case.

Seebookur, of Barnagore, deposed. I recognize the soi disant Perus Chunder. I weave cloth in my house and not under a tree. I am of the same caste as Rada Kissen Bysack. This prisoner's home I do not know. I saw him about two or three years ago at Khase Bagan in Barnagore. He was then attired as a devotee and had a beard. He resided about six months at Khass Bagan, and about eight months altogether at Bainagore. His complexion was then darker than it now is. He lodged there in the house of an aged widow. He employed hitime in tying up his hair, eating sweetnesss and drinking milk. I used to see him daily during his stay at Barnagore. I am sure this prisoner is that devotee; but he ia little stouter. He had a few women in his employ, He never told me who he was and from whence he had come, or where he went. During his stay at Barnagore, many women waited on him. I heard of his being suo sequently at Calcutte, but I never saw him there. not intimate with or on visiting terms with Rada Kissen Bysack. He is a rich man and I am a poor one. I do not know the name of the widow in whose house the prisoner resided. He had two or three bearded servants, who were his disciples and ministered to his wants.

After the close of this witnesses's testimony, Mr. Big nell remarked, that there were no more witnesses for the presecution required by him, with the exception of Moothoor Mookerjea, who has concealed himself in his house at Chitpoor; and the witnesses subposnaed from Hooktada, viz the relatives of Kisto Lal, as deposed to by his uncle Gunga Persad Tewarry.

The Jude replied, that these were, in his opinion, very material witnesses, for they could depose to the pusper's identity as Kisto Lal.

Mr. Graham remarked, that if these men are the relatives of Kisto Lal, why do they not, in the absence of Sham Lal, come forward as next of kin, and claim the property of Sham Lal their brother, deceased, which the amlas of the judge's Court of Nuddea have sworn in now, for want of an heir, to the custody of that Court, and which Court has issued a proclamation for the heir to come forward and elaim his property; for in the absence of Kisto Lal, they evidently appear to be next of kin, and entitled to it?

The judge replied, that as long as Kisto Lal was alive they could not claim it; and Mr. Bighell added, that Mr. Graham, he believed, had himself stated in a correspondence in one of the Calculta papers, that he would produce the real Kisto Lal, who, Mr. Bignell has been subsequently informed, was got into a scrape and is incustody by the orders of the Magistrate of Zillah 24 Pergunnahs.

Mr. Graham replied, that his letter stated, that if he produced a Kisto Lal, it would be the real one, and that it is yet remaining to be determined upon.

The judge here suggested, that it would be advisable to give notice to the defendants, and their mooktars, to prepare themselves to enter upon their defence.

Mr. Graham wished timely notice to be given him of the day on which he would be required to enter upon the defence, so that he may be able to secure the services of Mr. Morton for the prisoner on that day.

Mr. Bignell observed, that he believed that his case would be closed by Saturday the 15th instant, by which time, if Moothernath Mookerjea did not arrive, he would not stop the case for him.

The judge likewise remarked, that he believed that Mr. Morton had been engaged as Counselin the case of Mr. Shaw versus Mr. Ogdvie, for a talse imprisonment, and until that case was decided at the Sessions, he would not be able to attend here; but be that as it may, Mr. Morton has already filed a mooktarnama in this Court, as the prisoner's mooktar, and he can come whenever he likes; the Court certainly will not postpone the case a single day for his accommodation.

After this the judge asked Mr. Bignell, whether he intended to bring a charge against the witness who had been committed yester-day into custody at his request, on a charge of perjudy; for if so, he must order him switt of commitment to be drawn up, and refer him to the distinct magistrate to have his case tired before him.

Mr. Bignell replied, that we could distinctly prove that the pisoner had, when taken to the jail, the evening previous to his giving his depositions in this Court, stated before the Police Authorities there, that he had recognized the pisoner to be Kisto Lal, the devotee, who had resided for some time formerly to his village: whereas he has now on oath denied all knowledge of him in this Court. Mr. Bignell did not add whether the statement which he asserted this witnesses had made before the police amlas in the jail, was on oath or casual conversation; but he remarked, that the prisoner having thenied on oath that conversation to have passed between him and the police amlahs, constituted the ground of perjury.

Mr. Graham wished to move the Court, that if this witness was committed the other witnesses, as the prosecution was a Government one, would get cowed, and the witnesses for the defence made to refrain from speaking boldly; and he added, if he did not think so, he would have moved for the commitment of one of the prosecutors witnesses, Kassinath, who had formerly stated, that he had recognized, the prisoner to be Rajah Pettab Chunder, and atterwards, in this Court, demed that fact on oath.

Mr. Bignell said, that if Mr. Graham would under take to prosecute, he was welcome to have any of the witnesses, either for the prosecution or the defence, committed for perjury, if he thinks he can produce sufficient evidence to prove the charge against him.

The judge then ordered the commitment of the witness in question to be drawn out, and the prisoner made over to the magistrate on a charge of perjury,

After this the witness, who had been confined for some days, because he had refused to take his bath, was again brought up and asked if he would now be sworn | Why he confined me I do not know. When I saw him in any form; but be persisted in his refu-al. The judge then, without swearing him, asked him if he recognized the soi disant Pertab Chund, and whether he recollected ever having seen him in his village as a gossain, 3 or 4 years ago. The witness replied to both the questions in the negative.

he judge then remarked, that it would be uselesn is maining this man any longer in custody, and that his deposition, it is evident, will be of no avail in this case.

Mr. Bignell replied, that he considered the man had been sufficiently punished, and he may be released.

The judge then ordered his release, and the Court adjourned for the trial of this case till Friday the 14th m. stjant .- Harkaru, December 13.

DECEMBER 14, 1838.

Jugget Nurreau Mitter, resident of Tailmarce, depo sed. I recognize the soi disant Pertab Chun ler. His real name is Kisto Lat. He is the son of ham Lai Bramacharce. I have seen him 2 or 3 times when he visited me at my house in l'ailmarree, Zillah Burdwan His father was with him when I first saw him. He first visited me 1235 B. S., and staid two or three months. On the second visit 1237 B. S. his brother accompanied him; and he then staid about two months. On these occasions he was a can librate for employment in the Company's Court. His third visit to me was in 1247 B. S. He then came in the habit of a Gossatu, and was accompanied by a Brahmin. He staid 10 days with me, and then a pallite came for his use, and he set of for Moosab gauge. After this, when I was in the empoly of Mr Tylor, the Collector of Resumption in Zillah Hooghly and Buidwan, during the last mohorum, I heard a great rumour of the re-appearance of the late Rajah of Burdwan. I, in consequence of this report, went with others across the liver to see him at Bhatpara, where his boats were then moned. When I saw the pseudo Pertab Chunder, I recognized hun to be my old intimate acquaintance Kisto Lal. He held a Nepalese ciec e in his hand, and was seated in a budgerow in great state, aurrounded by many attendants. He recognized me and ordered his guards to sieze me, and four up-country poons assered me and brought me to him. The peon lifted up the creese and threatened to slay me with it. This greatly alarmed me, and I fainted away. Afterwards Kisto Lal ordered four men to keep watch over me, and I was taken up under their custody to Culna, where, during the confusion occasioned by his arrest by the Magistrate of Burdwan, I jumped over board and escap e ed by swimming across the river, and fled to my house During the period Kisto Lal was proceeding up to Culna, he studiously avoided anchoring on the Hooghly side of the river. In the B. S. 1242, there was a report in Burdwan, that the young Rajah of Buidwan had come to Kishenaghur. I was then at Calcutta, and on my return from then e, four months subsequent to the ru-mour. I enquired of my brother, Ramchund, the particulars of this rumour, who informed me that it was only our old friend Kisto Lal, who had been endeavouring to pass himself off for the late Rajah of Burdwan. I know Kisto Lal. I have heard he was an inhabitant of Kishennagur. I got acquainted with his family, because I am well know to keep open house in Burdwan for all devotees, and they, therefore, availed themselves of it and used to put up at my house whenever they went there. Prisoner is darker and stouter now then he was then. He is fairer and taller than Gour Lal was, and bears not the least resemblance to him. What has become of Gour Lal I do not know. I cannot say precisely how many days Kisto Lai kapt me in confinement. I suppose it was four, five or six days; but I was during the whole period in-sensible, and could not distinguish night from day this case,

I said, why have you assumed this imposture? It was on hearing this he became enraged and ill-treated me.

Questioned by Mr. Shaw -I heard there was a person named Therroo Chunder Moonshy, in Kisto Lal's retinue, but I never had any conversation with him, or any one in the boat. I might have called the prisoner Maharajah, but I never called him hazoor-(adds subsequently) I never called him Maharajah. There was a person named Moodoo Podar, who distributed pice to the prisoner's men. He now and then gave me a few pice for diet money, I never distributed pice to any person. I was insensible during all the period I was with the prisoner. I never presented a petition to the prisoner for employment, and if my name is enrolle I amongst the prisoner's servants on that occasion, it must be a false entry. I am a mohorir, and I can read and write. I never wrote the entries of the expences of the prisoner's train during the period I proceeded with him to Culna. I do not know who is my zemindar, but my father's zemindar was the Rajah of Burdwan.

Luckynath Bose deposed. I saw, about four or five years ago, the soi disant prisoner in the village of Mailladeepoor, where I resided. He then lived as a devotee in the house of Ram Rutten Chatterjea, and said his name was Aluck Shaw. He had no attendants on him to the best of my knowledge. He lived at Mailladeepoor about one month, and I used at intervals of three and four days to call on him and pay my respects to him. Since that period I never saw him, until I saw him the day before yesterday in the jail of this district. I am not sure whether he called more than once in my village. No other devotees came to the house of Ram Rutten Chatterjea at Mailladeepoor to my knowledge. The prisoner Sagur Dhur was in a village near my habitation. From whence Aluck Shah came to Mailladeepoor, and where he went to from thence, I know not. I have no ostensible means of livelihood at present. I do not know Prawnkissen nor Kirpanund.

Roopchund Ghose deposed. I am a resident of Mailladeepoor. I recognize the soi disant Rajah and the prisoner Sagar Dhur. I saw the former about five years ago in the house of Ram Rutten Chatteries, at Mailladeepoor, where he resided as a devotee for one month, and I saw him four or five times during that period. I do not know his name, or who he is, from whence he came, or where he went. He had no attendants with him. From that period I have never seen him until to-day-(adds afterwards) I saw him the day before yesterday, in the Hooghly Jail. Three or four year previous to this prisoner visiting Mailladeepoor, another devotee came there. I do not know who he was, whence he came, where he went, or how long he staid there. Ho likewise put up at the house of Ram Rutten Chatterjea. I know neither Prawnkissen nor Kerpanand.

Jugget Mundal, being called, Mr. Curtis asked whether, as this deponent is likewise a resident of Mailladenpoor, and had nothing more to say beyond what the three witnesses who had just preceded him had deposed already, it would not be unnecessary to have him examined. Mr. Bignell, after having consulted the Sheristadar Munsa Ram, and learnt that the witness could but confirm what the others had already deposed to, he saw no necessity for examining him, unless the defence wished it. Mr. Shaw replied, that he did not wish to have the witness examined, and the witness was consequently dismissed without being examined.

The Sherishtadar then informed the Court, that there were no more witnesses in attendence to-day, but two were expected this evening; and that the houses of a few more had been surrounded, notices stuck at their doors, and egress and ingress to and from the houses denied them, until they attended to their subpoenas in " Mr. Curtis proposed, that if the witnesses for the prosecution are not all in attendence before Tuesday, then to put the prisoners on their defence on that day.

The Mohamedan Law Officer said, that Tuesday and Wednesday, were Mahomedan holidays, viz. the Eed. The day was then fixed for Thursday in consequence thereof.

Mr. Bignell said, that the only witness for whose attendance he was anxious, was Ram Mohun Monkerjee, whom he expected daily. And the Sherishtadar said that Ramgol Mohim, was expected daily from Dinagepoor by dawk, to swear to the prisoner's identify. With the exception of these two, there were no very material witnesses; and Mr Bignell said, that after Monday, if the evidence of the witnesses for the prosecution are not in readiness, they may commence their defence that day; and if any of the witness for the prosecution come, they can be taken up and examined as they come.

Mr. Shaw, who resumed to day the case for the prisoner, said, that he wished two days' clear notice previous to his, client being put on his detence,

Mr. Shaw then brought to the notice af Mr. Curtis. that he had been denied access to the prisoner in jail, which, as he was the ounsel for the prisoner appeared atrange to him. The Judge replied, that the jail was exclusively under the Magistrate's control, and on Mr. Bignell informing the court, that Mr. Samuells was very willing to assign his reason for the prohibitory order, if officially requested to do so, Mr. Curtis had an official letter addressed to Mr. Samuells on that subject.

Mr. Graham presented an English petition on behalf of the pseudo Rajah, praying, in the event of the Government not being disposed to assist him in entercing the attendance of his witnesses, and as many of them had the Jail, as Mr. Shaw's pro eedings on that occasion refused to come unless their expenses were paid to them, had been irregular and contradictory to the Motustil that the property now under the custody of the Zillah Jail regulations. Court of Hooghly, which had been seized at Culna as his, may be sold for his benefit, and the proceeds appropriated towards the expenses of his case.

Mr. Curtis had refused to take this petition on the plea, that the preamble of it insinuted that the Government were exerting their influence to convict the prisoner at the indictment now pending against him, which he said was an unfounded and gratuitous slur on the Government, and sent for Mr. Biguell.

Mr. Bignell replied, that he thought the insinuation too absurd to notice it, and that the prayer of the petition might be granted. He added, that he had, however, seen the prisoner in the jail the other day, in consequence of some reports he had read in the daily papers, regarding the complaints made by the prisoner as to his com-forts in the jail, and had asked him whether he required anything, and whether he had any cause of complaint. The prisoner on that occasion had informed him, that he had no cause of complaint and required nothing; and when questioned to his petitions of complaint, the prisoner had told him, that the gentlemen about him had drawn up the peritions, and he had signed them without being aware of their contents; and Mt. Bignell insinuated, that, perhaps, the like may be the case in the present mainuces.

Mr. Show gerein interrupted Mr. Bignell, and informed him, that his questions to the prisoner,—consider-ing that he had all along his counsels to guide him and attend to his wants, and that Mr. Bignell was the counsel for the prosecution,-were both unbecoming and gratuitous; and his intimation as to the prisoner not knowing the contents of the petitions presented on his bahalf, was an ancalled for and unbecoming stur on his Counsel in open court, and he requested that the like may never be again repeated before him.

Mr. Bignell here explained to Mr. Shaw.

Mr. Shaw then infromed the Judge, that the prisoner in presenting this petition, did not mean any thing offensive to the Government, as he on a further perusal of it would perceive; but one thing is evident, that there is a strong feeling existing abroad, that the Government feels an interest in the conviction of the prisoner, and that at one time Mr. Samuells and Mr. Smith had eatertained an idea of prosecuting Rada Kissen Bysack 🕍 others in this case, for having assisted the prisoned money.

Mr. Curtis then passed an order for the sale of the prisoner's property in cutody of this court, and that public notice of five previous days be given within the dis trict, by a public crier, of the intended sale; and Mr. Shaw said, that he would advertize the same in the papers .- Hurkaru, December 17.

DECEMBER 15, 1838.

There being no witnesses in attendance to-day, on behalf of the prosecution, the case was postponed till Monday, the 17th instant.

Mr. Shaw requested to know whether the Judge bad received from the Magistrate any reply to the letter which the Judge had yesterday dispatched to that officer requesting him to assign his motives for his interdiction to Mr. Shaw being permitted to see the pseudo Rajah in the Criminal Jad of the district.

Mr. Curtis replied, that he hal, and Mr. Samuells had stated, that it having been brought to his notice that Mr. shaw had gone into the civil jail and the bospital, and held conversation with the witnesses for the prosecution who were king's evidence, he had in consequence thereof interdicted his being permitted to go into

Mr. Shaw replied, that if he had in the instance alluded to by Mr. Samuells, transgressed the Jail regula-tions, why did not the people on duty there, prevent him. They surely had nothing to dreat from him, for he never betrayed any symptoms of resisting the public authorities; and even if he had, there could be no appreheusion of violence from him, as he only had his walking stick about with him. Mr. Shaw further added, that Mr. Samuells was not justified in manuating these remarks against him; nor was this the first unjust insinuation Mr. Samuells had cast against him. There appeared sometine ago, a letter in the Englishman newspaper, of which letter Mr Samuells had the kindness to consider Mr. Shaw to be the author.' The letter was signed in-TERLOPER, and related to certain circumstances regarding the treatment the prisoners who had been appres hended with the soi disant Rajah had undergone in the Hooghly Jail and hospital." Now," said Mr. Shaw, "if I were aschautably inclined to wards Mr. Samuells in this instance as he has been to me. I might with equal justice suspect him to be the writer of the letter, which appeared in reply to that letter in the Bengal Hurken sign-ed JUSTILIA." Mr. Shaw added, that with regard to the alledged conversation, the sum total of it went no further than his admonishing these witnesses to testify the truth before the Court, without fear or apprehension. He concluded by informing the Judge, that having been informed by the Magistrate that the prisoner was new solely under the Session Judge's control), he begged to know whether the Judge would permit him, Mr. Shaw, the prisoner's monktar, to see him in the Crimonal Jail, and thus overrule the Magistate's prohibition on that point; or whether he would uphold the magistrate's order regarding it?

Mr. Curtis replied, that with regard to the persons on duty in the Iail not opposing Mr. Shaw a going toto the Civil Iail and the hospital, and there discoursing with the witnesses, which was an irregularity on his part.

was that, they perhaps, were afraid of him, he being an i European. Be that as it may, Mr. Shaw had no right to go sither into the Civil Jail or the hospital, in neither of which places any of his clients were then confined; and his discoursing with the witnesses for the prosecution, was certainly contrary to the existing regulations. With regard to his now permitting Mr. Shaw to see the prisoner in Jail, he begged to inform him, that the Jail was biely under the control of the Magistrate, and he could not well interfere with him in his duty; but that as the prisoner could brought to the Sessions Court, almost daily, Mr Shaw could there both see and speak to him, and Mr. Graham could go any time that he might wish to see the prisoner into the Jail, and communicate Mr. Shaw's messages to him ; added to which, if Mr. Shaw would on any occasion intimate to him that he wished to see the prisoner, he (the Judge) would direct the Magistrate to send him to the Sessions Court, where Mr. Cuitis said Mr. Shaw may retire with the prisoner into Mr. Curtis's private room, and converse with the prisoner uninterruptedly even for hours, if he wished it. And as to whatever the newspapers might publish about the case, he advised Mr. haw to take no notice of these publications; for, added he, although I am informed that you published in the Hurkura paper that I abused your client in Court during the trial of his case the other day, which I never did, yet I never paid any regard to it, nor do I intend in future to pay any attention to whatever they may publish about me in this case.

Mr. Shaw thanked the Judge for his courteous offer in tendering him his private room in the Court when ever Mr. Shaw might wish to speak to the prisoner apart but he begged to decline this offer, as likewise that of making Mr. Graham the medium of his communication with the prisoner whilst in Jail; remarking, that he was not applying for Mr. Graham, but for himself, He then told the Judge, that in the Supreme Court the prisoners' attornies were permitted to see them even after their conviction, which was not the case in the present instance, With regard to the publication in the Hurkary, he denied all communication or control with that paper, with which he believed Mr. Samuells had more to do than him; and so far from wishing to give publicity to the matter mentioned by the Judge, he had exerted all bis influence to suppress it altogether. He concluded by requesting the Judge to furnish him with an official copy of Mr. Samuells's objections to Mr. Shaw being permitted to visit the prisoner whilst in the Jail, and by the Judge explicitly answering him whether he would set aside, as the presiding Judge before whom the prisoner's case is now pending, that order or not. He begged to and that he now made the application on his own behalf, as the mooktar of the pusoner in this case.

Mr. Curtis replied, that on Mr. Shaw making a written official application, he would ass an order on it for Mr. Shaw being permitted to obtain an official copy of Mr. Samuells's reply to the Judge regarding his objec-tions to admit Mr. Shaw into the Juli; but with regard to whether he would set aside, or not, Mr. Samuells's order on that matter, he would consider of it and let Mr. Shaw know his determination within a few days.

Mr. Shaw then requested Mr. Curtis to know whether he would, on an official application being made, permit the witnesses for the defence, whilst down here, to remain under his custody. Mr. Shaw added, that his reasons for making this request were, that the Magistrate's Sheristadar, Mungahram, may not see them and con"I was then", continued the witness, "a condidate for verse with them previous to their being brought into the a situation in the Magistrate's Court of that district, and Judge's Court to give their evidence in the case; for, Shaw added, that the Sheristadar had already had BS. until 1230 BS. Kisto Lal had a prother, named some conversation, which Mr. Shaw considered object. Gour Lal, I do not know whether Sham Lal had another standing life with About Mr. Shaw considered object.

Mr. Curtis replied, that he sould not grant Mr. Shaw's request, as in so doing he would be departing from the usual practice of his Court in similar instances. The witnesses must all, on their arrival at Hooghly, be made over to the Fouzdary Nazir, who will after that be anwerable for their appearance in the Court, to give their testimony in the case; but he (Mr. Curtis) would take special care that the Fouzdary Sheristadar shall not be permitted to hold any objectionable conversation with any of them, and would order the Nazir to prohibit his repeating this mode of procedure.

Mr. Curtis then informed Mr. Shaw and Mr. Graham. that if the witnesses for the prosecution were not in attendance at the Court by Thursday next, he would, without postponing the case again for their convenience, order the case for the prosecution to be closed, and deire the prisoners to commence their defence forthwith,—

DECEMBER 17, 1836.

Gungapersad Moakerjea, resident of Santipoor, deposed, that in the B. S. 1220, when I was about 20 years of age, I studied Persian in the school of Moonshy Ek. ram Ullee, at Kishenagur, and resided there with my brother in that city, who was then in the employ of Kasmath Baboo. I then used to see a person named Kisto Lal, the son of a devotee, resident of Kishenagur, who had an idol there. The pseudo Rajah strongly resembles that person, in so much so, that I would be very apt to take him for that individual; but whether he teally is Kisto Lal or not, I cannot speak positively, as this occurred upwards of 25 years ago.

Questioned by Mr. Shaw. I now reside at Tailmarree. I came with others to see the pseudo Rajah in the Kutcherry here, and on remarking the strong resemblance the prisoner bore to Kisto Lal, it was overheard and some person reported it to the Magistrate, who, about 20 days ago, served me with a subpoena in this case. Kisto Lal, when I saw him, was fairer and much thiner this prisoner is, had not any mustachees, and was about 16 years of age. Here Mr. Shaw named several witnesses' names, who had been examined in this case as witnesses for the prosecution, and who had deposed, that they had seen Kisto Lal at Kishenagur, about the time this deponent had seen him there, and who had testified that they were inhabitants of Kishenaghur; but this witness denied his acquaintanceship with all but two of them, who, it seems, are amlahs in the Judge's Court of zillah Nuddea. Deponent added, that for many years he has not been to Kishenaghur, and it is 25 years since he last saw Kisto Lal.

Mr. Shaw remarked, that he had understood from Mr. Samuells, that he would not direct any more witnesses to be subposned in this case after it had been closed in his Comit; whereas by this witness's testimony, it appears, that he had been subposned after this promise had been given.

Mr. Curtis replied, that he had nothing to do with Seebnarrain Gangely deposed, that he is resident of Dowlut Gunge, Zillah Nuddea; that about 15 or 16 years ago, he saw a person named Kisto Lal, the son of Sham Lal Bramacharee, residing at Kishenagur, whom the Pseudo Rajah strongly resembles; but whether he is that Kisto Lal or not, he could not positively declars. tionable, with some of these witnesses; and this appli-cation was to prevent his doing the like again. brother besides Gour Lat. I only heard of two brothers, but whether his name was Gour Lal or Sham Lal. I do not know. Kisto Lal, when I saw him, was fairer than the prisoner, and had no mustacheos. I have not seen him for the last 17 years. From whence Sham Lal come, I know not. Moesabgung, is 10 coss from my village. This witness, it appears, was likewise one of those who had come to see the Pseudo Rajah in this case, and having expressed his opinion as to his resembling Kisto Lal, was reported to the Magistrate and served with a subpœna, at the same time as the last witness, with whom he had come to see the Pseudo Rajah.

Questioned by Mr. Shaw. Sham Lal had an idol at Gwaree; but he was not rich. Sham Lal was lame, but I never saw any horse in his possession, nor did I ever see Kisto Lal ride on borseback. I was acquainted with the officers of the district of Nuddea, and some of the inhabitants there. Here Mr. Shaw named some inhabitants of Kishenaghur, who had deposed in this case, but witness knew none of them. I only knew Kisto Lal, Sham Lal, his farther, and his younger brother; whether he had any other relatives or not I do not know.

Mr. Curtis informed Mr. Shaw, that if the other witnesses for the prosecution were in the attendance, would he examine them, and then put the prisoners on their defence; if not, he would put the prisoners on their dafence at once, and examine the witnesses whenever they may come.

Mr. Curtis informed Mr. Shaw, that he had issued orders to Mr. Samuells to admit Mr. Shaw into the jail, to see his clients whenever he may wish to see them there. He further allowed Mr. Shaw to take his witnesses as they arrived here into the jail, for the purpose of seeing whether they could recognize the pseudo Rajah. He very properly remarked, that as the prosecution had been allowed this indulgence, it is but fair that the defendants should be allowed the same privilege.

Mr. Shaw intimated to the Judge, that as there were now upwards of 20 witnesses for the defence already in attendance, and the number subposensed amounted to upwards of 270 altogether, if he were permitted to receive them on their arrival here, he would give a receipt for the witnesses and release the nazir from all responsibility for their re-appearing in this case as witness; but he would take the responsibility of it altogether on himself; and it let them escape, it would be his own loss. By this means the would save the Government from great expense, by doing away with the testimony of many whose evidence he may consider supefluous, as these witnesses get two anoas a day diet money whilst here.

Mr. Curtis replied, that there can be no impediment to Mr. Shaw having free communication with the witnesses whenever he might wish to do so.

Mr. Bignell re-marked, that whatever might be the practice, the Zillah Courts, as to who is to have charge of the witnesses, should be adhered to.

Mr. Curtis said, that he cannot make the witnesses over to him altogether; but he ordered the nazir to permit Mr. Shaw, to converse with them whenever he felt inclined to depo; and on the nazir remarking, that it is requisite for itim to be present to prevent Mr. Shaw from instructing the vitnesses; to which Mr. Curtis replied, that there is no necessity for his surveilance, for he does not think Mr. Shaw capable of such conduct; and even it he were, they must have been tutored long before this. The nazir replied, perhaps he might refresh their memory; to which Mr. Survivalended, no, no.

A petition from one of the defendant's witness was put in, stating his publity to attend, is consequence of indisposition. He was ordered to furnish a medical certificate.

The Foundarry Sheristadar stated, in the case of the man whom Air. Biguell had moved to be committed for perjury in this case, that the prisoner's brother, who is a Mohorir in the Court of the Mahomedan law officer here, had written privately to some persons who were subposenced by the Magistrate to substantiate the commitment, informing of them these subposeas, and they had in consequence absconded, and there would be a difficulty in getting them to attend. The Mohorir has been sustanted.

Mr. Curtis replied, that he had nothing to do with

Tuesday and Wednesday being native holidays, the case has been postponed until Thursday, the 20th inst., at 11 o'clock A M., to enable Mr. Morion to come up and conduct the defence.—Hurkaru, December 20.

December 20.

Sooroopchunder Tewary, resident of Mooktada, de-posed, I know Kisto Lal. I am his maternal uncle. His mother's name was Muunah, a Brahmunee, and his father was Sham Lal Brahmacharee. It is 8 years since I saw Kisto Lal at Kishenaghur. His parents are both dead. He had two brothers, the elder named Roop Lal and the younger Gour Lal. His father was originally an inhabitant of Mohespoor. Gungapersad Tewary is my cousin. It is about 22 years since Sham Lal removed from Mohespoor to Kishenaghur. Kisto Lal was born at Mohespoor, and his brothers at Mooktada. Kisto Lal was about 12 years old when Sham Lal removed to Kishnagur. Kisto Lal has studied the Bengallee, Persian and the English languages-the latter slightly. Sham Lal never resided at Mookrada, but his family used frequently to visit us, and I used to see him occasionally in Ki-bnagur. Mudden Tewary and Shupersad Tewary are my brothers. They, about 5 years ago, removed their homesteads from Mooktada. to Monileg. I never saw Kisto either in any service or in the habit of 4 devotee.

Fakeerchund Tewary, of Mooktada, deposed. I am the maternal uncle of the prisoner Kisto Lal and the brother of the last witness. I was very young when my sister married the prisoner's father Simu Lal. Roop Lall died at Kishnagur 5 years ago, and Gour Lal quitted his village much about that time. Gour Lal quitted his village much about that time. Gour Lal quitted his village, and I have not seen him since Shara Lal died about 12 months ago. I have not seen Kisto Lal for the fast 7 or 8 years. None of the uncles of Kisto Lal were concerned in any gang robbery.

Isshurchunder Tewary, resident of Chandpoor, deposed. I know the prisoner Kisto Lel, he is my aunt's son. I have never been to Kisto Lel, he is my aunt's son. I have never been to my village. Kisto Lal was then 6 or 7 years old and pursuing his studies. I have never been to Mohespoor. When he was 15 or 16 years old, he came again to Mooktada, when I saw him for the last time. How long it is since that period I do not remember. Fakeerchund Tewary resides in my village—he is a bachelor. Besides Mannah, who married Shain Lal, Fakeerchund Tewary had another daughter named Praun, who married Paunchoo Shookool, a resident of Burdwan.

Mr. Bignell informed the Court, that there were two or three more witnesses, one or two of whom, if he could have get them he would have been most happy; but as he has hitherto failed, in spite of all his efforts to get them, he will not keep the prosection open for them any longer.

The pseudo Pertab Chunder in his defence, stated, rather warmly, that he was not Kisto Lal, and that the evidence for the prosecution had a abused him, by making him the son of Sham Lal, for that if the were so, 10,000 persons at Kishnagur would have known it. The Judge ordered, the indictment to be read to lum, and then dold the prisoner, that if he would reply calmly to them; he would hear all his objections fully, and write them down; but if he forgot himself and inishehaved, he would order him down amongst all the other prisoners.

The charges were then read, and the prisoner replied, I am neither Kisto Lal nor Aluck Shith. I am Rajah Pertab Chunder of Burdwan, and the son of Rajah Tej Chunder Bahadoor, late Rajah of Burdwan : never went with a tumultous assembly to seize either Culnah or the guddee of the Burdwan Raj; nor did I disobey the orders of the Magistrate of Burdwan, conveyed to me by the Diroga of Culna, whitst I was there; nor dol I nor any of my followers cause any disturbance during my stay there; nor have I in any 14stanges, under false pretences, taken money from either Radakissen Bysack or any other person whatsoever, as alledged in the indictment against me. I have, besides what I have now stated, a written detence, in which I have more fully stated the nature of my defence, and which I will file to morrow in English, with a Bengally translation. Prisoner added, that his wine-ses were named in the schedule, and if he should require more, he would inform the Court.

Mr. Leith, who appeared to day for the defence, but who will return to Calcutta to morrow, detailed slightly the nature of this written defence, which he said was much the same as what the pursoner has now stated and contains a commentary on the evidence against him as given on behalf of the prosecution, regarding his i tentity as Kisto Lal, and the particulars of his alledged death and brital, denying the correctness of these assertions, and naming the winnesses who will prove his case generally, some of them his relatives.

Mr Cuttis said, that he did not think the old Raja Tej Chunder's sister, Rauny Tootah Koomariee, would ever come to this Court and give evidence in the case, and he did not think the evidence of his wives will be legally available in the case, as wife and husband are legally one and the same person.

Mr. Bignell said, that he would not start this objection, for it he did so and allowed the Rannees subputined for the defence as the wives of the late Raja Pertub Chunder to be the prisoner's wives, and objected on that ground, he would thereby, by implication, be admitting the identity of this prisoner with the deceased Rajah Pertub Chunder, who he pretends to personate.

Mr. Leith replied, that he believed that Ranny Tootah Komarree, the prisoner's aunt who had brought up Raja Pertab Chunder from his infancy, and was very fond of him, and is very anxious to see him, could recognise him by some particular marks on his body.

The Hurdhon Rajah, Hurrykur Narrain Raj, pleaded not guilty to the charges against him, and said, that he was not a follower of Raja Pertab Chunder, but had meiely proceeded to Culna to see the Rajah, after having heard of his arrival there, and was unjustly seized as one of his accomplices.

Radakissen Ghosal, the prisoner's mooktar, pleaded that he was not at Culna, when the affray is alledged to have occurred.

Tulluk Allah Shah, the darogah of the prisoner, pleaded that he merely read the papers to the Raja, and wrote some for him, and carried a few letters and messages as a part of his duty. He neither saw any riot whilst at Culna nor did he commit any.

Sugaur Dhur, pleaded, that he likewise was a servant of the pseudo Rajah, and had as such followed him to Culua, where he was arrested. Whilst at Culua he neither saw nor heard of any ries there, committed either by the Rajah or his partisans.

Kally Jematiar, pleaded that he had been the Jematiar of the pseudo Raja, previous his to arrest at Baucoorab, for a disturbance said to have been commuted by the Raja there. He was there sentenced to six months' imprisonment as an accomplice in that offair. After he release, he never entered the Haja's xervice, but he hats gone to Culna, to get the wages of his former sevices from the Raja, and was there agreeted as one of his forlowers. Whilst at Culna, he nether saw nor heard of any disturbance committed by the Raja or his partisans.

Joomoon Khan, Kidmutgar, in the soi distant Rajah's employ. His plea was, that he wished the Rajah to get his guidee—that is what he wished. Aft. Curia said, no doubt, in that case the Rajah will promote you to be his Dewan for your fidahity towards him, especially as you have already suffered ten months' incarceration, for being his accomplice in his affair at Bancoorak. The prisoner said, that there was no breach of the peace committed at Culia, neither by the Rajah or his reunue, and therefore he could not possibly be an accomplice in an affray, which never occurred. He would, he continued, in apite of every obstacle, continue to server the Raja till he was restored to his right, or he would die.

Besides the pseudo Raja, who had 273 witnesses, the Hundan Raja had 5 and Radakissen Ghosal 6 to prove their alibis. The other prisoners had none.

The following is the charge against the prisoner, to which he put in the succeeding written reply.

Alak Shah, alias Rajah Pertaub Chunder, alias Kisto Lat Paurce Bramhmachatee, charged with gross fraud and impositive, in talsely and fraudulently, asuning the name of the deceased Maharajah Duerai Pertanb Chunder, Bahadoor, formerly zemindar of Burd. wan, and pretending, in various places, during the last two years, to the great disturbance of the general peace and quiet of this country, that he is in verity the aforesent zemmdar of Bardwan, and that the zemindary of Bundwan belongs of right to him; and in obtaining money from various individuals, and more particularly from one Rathakissen Bysack, dewan of the Government Treasury in Calcutta, by means of these and such like false pretences. 2nd count. And charged further with having, in furtherance of the fraudulent pretences abovementioned, instigated and prevailed on divers subjects of the British Government, and others, to the number of 300, and more, unlawfully and tumulinously to assemble, at or near the Town of Culna, in the district of Burdwan, such proceeding being intended or enumently calculated to produce a most serious breach of the peace, and with having there remained, at the head of this unlawful assembly, from the 13th of April, 1838, corresponding with the 2d of Bysack 1245, up to the 2d of May 1838, corresponding with the 21st Bysack 1245; and with having, during that period, on various occasions, by the display of superior force, resisted, and set at defiance, the constituted authorities of the district, he the said Alak Shah, alfas Rajah Pertaub Chunder, alias Kisto Lai Pauree Braha macharee, having previously, on the 4th August 1836. been convicted of a Similar offence, before the Sessions Court of this Distrct of Hooghly.

Government, the prosecutor in this case, having closed the evidence against me, I shall respectfully submit a few remarks on the case attempted to be made out against me. I feel that I have been harshly treated, and I may add, unjustly, in a mauner unauthorized by either precident or regulation, and, most certainly, opposed to all the principles and rules of practice of English Courts of Justice. Since the year 1836, I have been hunted like a convict; I have been made a mark to sheet at, and I have been made a that period in which I have enjoyed safety of person, and protection for my property, has been, whilst im-soured to a Morusell jail, or residing within the Jurisdiction of the Supreme Court in Calcutta. The only charge that the matice of my enemies, and the ingenuity The Magistrate of Hooghof the Government officer, ly, have been able to bring against me, amounts to nothing more if made out, than a misdemeanour; while it is not attempted to be concealed, that this charge, brought and supported by the official influence, and extra official lavours of a Government functionary, the magistrate of Houghly, was merely intended to be subsidiary to that which has all along been admitted to subsultary to that which has an aroug occur admits to try, be the chief object of this prosecution, namely, to try, in this criminal proceeding, a mere civil right. to prove that I had no right to the Guddie of Buidwan. I mention this, not for the purpose of impeaching the motives, or exposing the conduct of a Government serwant, the agustrate of Hooghly; but to convince you, Su, as others have been convinced, that I have been most harshly treated, and to point out to you the diffi culties which have been thrown in the way of my defence. At all times and 10 all places where Government influence is exerted, it has its weight in the scale of justice; but in this country, where the people are proverbially timid and fearful of offending Government. the Government influence, when exerted, as it has been in this case, has a most grievous and prejudicial effect on the case of the party against whom it has been exerted. The mere fact that I was charged by Government, and prosecuted by Government as a criminal, would, of uselt, deter many from coming forward to declare their knowledge of me, being fearful, that by so doing, they might identify themselves with me, and render themselves obnoxious to Government, and involve themselves in difficulties. I have already experienced this. Was it fair, then, to mix up the trial of my civil claims, -my right to the zemindary of Burdwan, in a case in which I was charged to be a criminal? But this is not the only hardship I have to complain of. Not satisfied with the silent effect which the knowledge of the part which the Government took in the prosecution and the publication of the evidence of the herd of witnesses driven down to Hooghly by the various native officials in the neighbouring zillabs, to prove that I was not the Rajah Pertaub Chund, but one Kisto Lal Burmocharee, the magistrate of Hooghly, Mr. Samualls, in his official capacity, issued, as I am credibly inobserve, sir, issued during the pendeng of these very proceedings, and before my case had been either opened or gone into, and knowing, as he himself had several times asserted publicly to his own Cutchery. that his were but experie and preliminary proceedings,) that he had proved, that I, the prisoner, was that Kisto Lal, and not the Rajah Pertaub Chund! I make no comment on this conduct of the magnetate. It is bufficient for me to state it respectfully to you, Sir, to show what I have sufferred, and to ask you, Sir, as a Christian judge, to give the statement, if correct, the weight it deserves, in considering the defence which I may be able, notwithstanding, to make, and to refer to may be able, notwittstanding, to have, and to relevel it as a sufficient reason for the absence of many of those naityes who might, under more tayorable circumstances, have come forward to speak on my behalf. My defence has also been very much impeded by my long imprisonment. I was arrested on the 2d day of May last, and I remained from that date until the middle day of

by the Police authorities, acting under the immediate of fivers of Government officers; and the only time during that period in which I liave enjoyed safety of person, and protection for my property, has been, whilst indiction of the Supreme Court in Calculta. The only charge that the matice of my elemies, and the ingenuity of the Government officer. The Magistrate of Hooghtly, have been able to bring against me, amounts to nothing more if made only than a mindemeanour; while it is not attempted to be concealed that this charge, brought and supported by the official influence, and extra official labours of a Government functionary, the ungestrate of Hooghly, was merely intended to be aubsidiary to that which has all along been admitted to be the chief object of this prosecution, namely, to try.

First, Sir, let me call your attention to the revious conviction, (the record of which has not been attempted to be put in evidence in this case,) and the manner in which that conviction was obtained. In that previous case, I was denied the assistance of professional adviser, to defend me against the unformed at and mahicious charges brought against me; although Mr. Porton, the Barrister, had generously offered to deferring. What chance of justice had I then when I was refused the aid of a legal adviser, prosecuted at the instance of the Government, and tried by an officer of Government, who had refused me that aid?

If The conviction was properly obtained, it appears to be a complete answer to the present allegation that I am Kisto Lal Paurree Burmacharree. If I was convacted as Aluck Shah, as in alleged, in the charge, but is not proved, and if I was Aluck Shah, as must have been sworn on oath to Court in that former case, and as it is now sworn that I am Kisto Lal, there must be perjury in one or other of the cases; and in one or other, if not in both, I am grievously wronged. I can scarcely be both Aluck Shair and Kisto Lal Burmachairee This is not pretended. But, can it be believed, that if I was Kisto Lal, who appears to have been a well-known peron, that between the period of my arrest at Banconian in 1835, and my former trial here, Mr. Elliot, Magistrate of Bancoorah, and Mr. Samuells, Mag strate of Hooghly, with all their power and influence, and with indefangable endeavours to procure evidence on which to convict me, would not have ascertained that I was. as now alleged, the son of a Burmacharee? I say, that Mr. Ellict did endeavour to ascertain who I was, and if evidence of that fact could have been received here in this trial, I could have given it. But I am debarred doing so by the prosecution not proving the conviction. But I pray you, look at the terms of that conviction. I do not deny that. I was convicted I was debarred that assistance of Mr. Turton. Does it not on the face of it shew that the Judge who tried me, considered me a person of some consequence, and of much higher rank in the world than Kisto Lel Pauree, the son of Shaum Lal Burmacharee? If he did not, why did he impose on me the terms of giving security for 40,000 rupees.? He must, by imposing such terms, have considered me either a man of tank and consequence, or he must have passed that sentence with the view of making me a With these remarks I dismiss the prisoner for lite. previous conviction, and I feel satisfied, that you will give it no weight in forming your judgement on the case before you.

sonnent. I was arrested on the 2d day of May last, and I remained from that date until the middle day of the month of June last, without having been tried or the examined, and without having been able to obtain any attement of the charge upon what I was arrested and detained in custody. On that latter, date I was examined and on custody. On that latter, date I was examined by the magistrate before a single, witness, was profitted against me, without having the charge with the country for she last two dates are general peace of the country for she last two dates are general peace of the country for she last two dates are general peace of the country for she last two dates are need to adduce a sixtle of evidence in supprofitted against me, without knowing, the charges of the country for she last two dates are the charges. The prosector know that he could not substantiate it. He must have known this likely that, if I were Risto Lal, I would have gone to before the charges were framed, and they have only and remained at the place where it was most likely I been so framed to create a prejudice against me. I am satisfied that with you it will have no such effect, and that, on the contrary, it will open your yees to the ridiculous nature of the charge. A short statement of my conduct for the last two years, will shew you how far it was an honest and a fair charge for a Government to put on the records of its Court.

In the end of 1835, I was arrested by Mr. Elliot, the ' Magistrate of Bancoorah. Applications were made to that gentleman for a copy of the charge and the warrant on which I was arrested. He stated in reply, that he could give no such charge; that no warrant existed; and that I had been arrested by his orders. To this day I do not know the charge on which I was tried and convicted : but as I was convicted, I must attribute this to my ignorance, I was detained in custody until August 1836, when I was tried in this district for a crime alleged to have been committed in the Bancoorah district. I pray you, Sir, with reference to the present trial, to bear this in mind. On that trial, I was sentenced to six months imprisonment, and required to give security to keep the peace for one year. On the expiration of my period of imprisonment, I gave the security, and I was released. I then proceeded to Calcutta, and remained there for upwards of a year, when I was visited by all classes of people. No attempt has been made to shew that I was during that period, guilty of any improper conduct.
Whilst residing there, I did not conceal myself. I openly represented myself to be the Rajah Pertaub Chund. courted the society or acquaintance of those who had an opportunity of knowing ina. I was acknowledged by many, and supported by others. I had the means afforded to me of commencing a suit in the Supreme Court of Calcutta, the whole object of which was to prove my identity as Rajah Pertanb Chund. I did commence that out, and it is now pending there. Was there in that proceeding, gross fixed and imposture? Being advised that it was proper that I should proceed to Burdwan the place of my birth, for the purpose of being identified, and of obtaining evidence in support of my claims, and fearing the power and influence of Prawn Chunder Baboo, who has been from my youth my implacable enemy, as I shall prove to you, and who with his fami ly and retainers, are now in possession of my property, I applied to Government to afford me protection.

Whether my application was proper, or whether the refusal of Government was just, is now a matter of no moment. The application was made, and that of itself shows, that in proceeding towards Burdwan, I had no illegal object in view. Government did refuse my application, however, and I proceeded howards Burdwan, as it has been sworn by one of the witnesses for the prosecution, and whose testimony must have full weight with you, with only the same servants who had attended on me in Calcutta. I was delayed in my progress by various circumstances, which it is here unnecessary to relate. I passed through the districts of the twenty fear Pergunnahs, Barraset, Hooghly and Kishenaghur on my way to Culna. The prosecutor has not ventured to call a single witness to prove that I created any disturbance in passing through these dustricts. If he had been able to obtain the slightest evidence of misconduct on my part during my progress, extending from the begining of March, to the middle of April, he would not have failed to have produced it against me. In not having done so, he has admitted that I did not misconduct myself up to the date of my arrival at Culna on the thirteenth of April last. It is rather out of place to allude to it here, but, as regards the allegation that I am Kisto Lal, I beg to draw your attention to the fact, that I was for several days at Santipore, a place only twelve miles distant from the birth place of Kisto Lal. There miles distant from the birth place of kieto kel. There prosecution, agree in one point, via that neither be was no necessity for me going there, for I could have myself nor by any of my followers was not necessity for me going there, for I could have myself nor by any of my followers was not interested anchored on the citizens and was it or dungs whatseever committed upon a ningle occasion.

would be identified as an impostor? Whilst at Santipore, did I conceal myself, or my claim to be the Rajah Pertaub Chund? No, on the contrary it was well known, and numbers of persons, including the local authorities, had an opportunity of seeing, and did see me. If it were true that I am Kisto LaI, was it not likely that some person at Santipore would have recognized me, and published my imposture? But, was that done? No. it was not, nor was it to my knowledge ever wheepered that I was Kisto Lal, until long after I was under the charge of the Magistrate, who has committed me for trial before you. If I were, as is alleged, Kisto Lal would I have selected the zillah where I was boin to play off; imposture? If you beloive this, I have no doubt you will beleive evidence of the Rajbarry people that I do not resemble Rajah Pertaub Chund in one leatures and you will feel satisfied that I am not only an impostor, but moreover a very stupid impostor in representing myself to be a man to whom I have not the slightest resemolance and from whom I in fact differ as much in appearance, as black does from white. I feel unwilling to detain you with remarks about my alleged identity with Kisto Lal, for I feel satisfied, that to that part of the charge and the evidence in support of it, you give no evidence. Indeed, I believe, the vakeel for Governmeat, whose libitality and courtesy duringing this trial I take this opportunity of acknowledging, thought so little of that part of the charge, that until the appearance of Prawnkissen Christian, he had no intention of going into it.

I now return to the period of my arrival at Culua. and I beg you to bear in mind the evidence in support of the charge made against me, of resisting the constituted authorities by a superior force. I shall not take up your time with detailing the evidence I mean to adduce. on that part of the charge, but I shall shortly draw your attention to the evidence for the prosecution. Belove doing so, however, let me ask why the Gavernment has not produced one respectable inhabitant of Culna, to prove my misconduct? Is it fair, just or honorable in a Government prosecution, to put forward as witnesses to support a Government prosecution in a Government Court, only Covernment servants? If during my residence on the river, opposite Culna, I had done any act to endanger the public peace, can it be believed that witnesses could have been wanting to give evidence against me ? Is Peary Lal Baboo a man of . character at Culna? He is the only man produced to give evidence against me, who is not a servant of Go. vernment. He says he is not an the employ of Government, but by his own account he was in constant attendauce on the Magnetrate winder at Cuena. Was he not the party who arrested Mi. Shaw ? If he were not in the employ of Government, he must have been seeking. for Government employ; and as Government has shewn so great a descre to convict me, he may think his strong swearing against me, may entitle him to claim? employment.

I have to apologize for troubling you with remarks on so insignificant a character as Peary Lal Baboo, In. on so insigning in a constructor as reary Let Danco, and the Magistrate's Court she was treated as a man worthy of belief. In this Court it appeared to me, that the extravagance of his evidence, only afforded amusement, and that you were surprized at the fertility of his. imagination. I now proceed to the evidence of the Police authorities against me, and out of the whole body which was produced against me, Leelect only two on whose evidence I shall remark, viz. the Darogate of Culns; and the Nazir of Burdwau; merely reminding you that they, and all the rest of the witnesses for the

to what the evidence, of the darogah, if true, amounts. Hesays that during the period of eighteen days that I requested me not to come on shore, but that I went. That I was accompanied by a large body of armed men. which dwindled down on cross examination to four for five. That I was desirous of doing certain acts, and going certain roads, hat at his request I neither did such acts, nor went such ways, That, in truth, with the exception of coming once on shore, I was a most obedient porson. Endmit I went on shore, but I deny that I took with me in armed force, or any person capable of creating, or, at the charge has it "eminently calculated" to create a disturbance. But is there any rule or regulation of the Company to pievent me, or any man from going on shore? Was it a great and beinous crime against the Honorable Company, that I went on shore oure during period of 18 days? I am certain that even the Magistrate of Burdwen, did not think so; for I went on shore on the 9th of Bysack or 20th April, and no stops were taken to punish me for any crime, as has been sworn by the Government witnesses, until the thirtieth of April, or nineteenth of Bysack, when the Mazir arrived at Culna. But has there been the slightest reason given why the Nazir was sent ! The daregah has spoken to no subsequent act of mine which could be construct or magnified into a crime, as having ucturnot appear that any orders were sont, or any reports made, for not a single purwanah or report has been proved. I shall not trouble you with further remarks on the evidence giving up to the time of the service of the nazir by this individual; who was proved much to read or write, and to be dependent on others for the reports be made to the magistrate, who could not ident. tify his reports, and who swore, that during the whole period of my residence ut Culna, there was ac dungab or actual disturbance.

I now come to the evidence of Assul Ally, from the date of his arrival at Culna, He says he arrived at Culta in the foremon, and it is proved he came to me, whilst I was engaged in bathing and diessing. It is also proved that he came on board my boat, and he says he reads purwanall to me, but he has not identified that purwanah; and, therefore, so far his eyeleace goes for nothing. But I admit that he stated he had come with an order from the magnetiate to me for to discharge my attendants. He was expressely civil in his tounner, and treated me with seapegt. A talormed him, as he and Mahaboolab have informed you, that my attorney, Mr. Shaw, had arrived, and I would like to congult him first. before giving an answer to the order of the magnificate. I was surprized at the order, for I had sent my mook-tears to Burdwan, to apply to the magnificate for protection. I was then ignorably of the haish "and illegal production of the Mark "and illegal production of the Mark "and illegal production of the Mark and illegal production of the Mark Market and Market a uon. I was non ignorant or the natch and illegal pro-ceptings of that magistrate to my mooktears. I did not then knoth that, alliest at that very time, the magistrate and assistant magistrate of Buidwai, and the Doctor of the station, were employed in assaulting my mooktear and plundering him of the papers, and consigning him and another mooktear to just The Wazer has sworn; that his order was resisted by an arried tody of many

And first as to Mahaboolal, daragad of Chillia. Can statement, give credence to one fact deposed its by this any thing be more confused, and unintelligible than the witness? This report is fake, and he has proved it to be whole evidence of this armsplay official? And agt, it so. But to confinue his evidence He. has sworn that I have considered from an answer after I had seen enthorities, it must be on his evidence or on that of the Mr. Shaw. Did he do so I No. He swore that I wrote crafty Assaud Ally, Nazir of Burdwan. But let us see to him that I was willing to discharge any servants it to him that I was willing to discharge any servants it. if he would point them out. Did he answerthis application either in writing or personally, or by a substitute ? resided at Culna, I only went on shore once. That he No. He put my letter into his box -he never saw me again, until the morning of my arrest. He has swork that during the time he was at Culpa, there was riet. I shall now shortly allude to the evidence of Mohabuolah, as to what occured between him and Mr. Shaw.

> This man's evidence is in all material parts contradicted by another witness for the prosecution, and will be more fully contradicted by my witnesses, should you require witnesses to disprove the statements of this part of the evidence for the prosecution. But even supposing the evidence of Mahoboolah, as to what occurred on the evening of the thirtieth of April, to be true, to what does it amount? It amounts to this-that he, insisted on coming on board my hoat, where there was no disturbance, with a large body of armed men. That orders were issued by Mr. Shaw not to permit him to enter with such a force; and that, after all, he was permitted to enter, accompanied by several aimed burkundauzes. That, with the exception of some jokes passed on his unwiedly size by Mr. Shaw, he was treaed with all the respect due to his exalted official charactre. That he was desired to call the nazir to receive a communication, which was of too great consequence to be intrusted to a manot his station. That the nazir did not come, and he shortly afterwards took his leave, without attempting to arrest me, or without having been assaulted. I am west aware that many reports were made by this man to the Magistrate of Burdwan, but the prosocutor's vakeel has done well for his case, in not endeavouring to prove them. He know they could not be supported, and he wisely retrained from attempting to do so. If there was any resistance to the constituted authorities on that evening, there is not a particle of evidence that I was the party resisting. The whole of this man's evidence goes to shew, that Mr. Shaw was the active party. Am' I to be charged with crime, if or me it be to protect one from being insuled, where the evidence s; that another party committed the alleged crime? If my servant had committed murder or robbery, and there was no evidence to shew that I was a party to the crime, would you, because he was my servant, convict me o felony ? 😘

I conclude my remarks on that part of the evidence, which goes to charge me with disturbing the general peace of the country for the two last years, and with resisting; by means of a superior force, the constituted authorities, by reminding you, that you have only heard, " That there is no case made out against me, one side. even by that evidence. That the witnesses for the prosecution have contradicted themselves. That all swore there was no riot. No one swore that an attempt; was made to arrest me. That not an individual except the nazir, said that I was even asked to go to Hooghly jail. He said I was, but he also said he offerred to accompany me to Burdwan, if I would discharge part of my remane. He was told I would consult ing attorney and give him an answer to his proposal in the evening. He did not object to this arrangement, but concurred igit, and from thence he west straight to the thannah, and another mookien to jest The Near has soron; in it, and from thence he went straight to he thannah, that his order was restend by an armed body of men; and made a false report to the magnitude. Can you can you believe I historich a force on my barking boart believe, the evidence, of such a man I am again, you had, you further with this witness than his record, What was the consequence of this gappy I to but, forwarded that they to the magnitudes than his report, forwarded that they to the magnitudes had been frightened the chapter of Burdwan an must be the force on a newer, and that they take he had re-frightened the chapter of Burdwan an must be the force of the magnitude of Burdwan an must be the force of the magnitude of Burdwan an must be included. In this avidence, and that all the burdwan and the magnitude of the magni his surgeon and his spiritual adviser, his nageer and darregali, and supported by a military force, to the banks of the river, It is now matter of history (I know not upon whose head the responsibility rests, but so it is) that this military body fired upon unarmed and sleeping men, tring in their boats on the river that many were killed, i several were wounded, and that I escaped partiulty a mucle, and partly by my expertness in awimming.

I have little to say about the evidence of the arms seized on board the different boats; there is evidence before you that one sword, a pair of pocket-pistols, a fowling piece, and two or three spears, were seized on my hoat, but there is no further proof before you. A large body of arms has been brought into Court with the view, no doubt, of producing an effect. You, Sir, will not be led away by any such attempt; you will alone be gained by the evidence produced before you. It is said there is a list in the nuthee. Has any evidence been trate, made by the pazir, is false, may not that list also he false? If I show you in that nuthee, a roobicary, dated Ambeekah 2nd May, signed by the magistrate of Burdwan, which recites the death of an individual. Tarrachund Chuckerbutty, who died at Buidwan on the 21st of May, will you believe any one document in that nuther to be a true proceeding. If I shew to you, that the magistrate of Burdwan ma e a solemn declaration under his hand to the Supreme Court of Calcutta. in a return to a wort of habeas corpus, directed to him for the release of Mr. Shaw, that a warrant for the arrest of Mr. Shaw was in existence on the 2nd of May, and if I have proved to you that that warrant was not then in existence, will you be able to put any trust in any one proceeding in this cause, which has not been fully and satisfactorily provided? I feel confident that sou will not.

It now becomes necessary that I should draw your attention to the circumstances connected with, and aubsequent to my arrest; and this I shall endeavour to do shortly. You have seen the amount of crime alleged to have been committed by me at Culpa. I do not allude to the charge offraud and imposture, and to obtaining money under false pretences. At the time of my airest there was no intention of charging me with these crimes; these were charges subsequently got up against me, as I am credibly informed at the suggestion of the Superintendent of Police, and the Magistrate of this district. .

I was arrested within the jurisdiction of the magistrate of Nuddeah, by the magistrate of Gurdwan, under false reports. I was shot at, plundered of my little property, sezed, ill-treated, marched through the streets of Culna under a large military guard, with scarcely sufficient clothing to cover my body at any hour, morning, noon or evening. I was taken through the streets, my pa-pers were read, my boxes were broken open and I was dependent on others for my food. I was confined in a hut, I was not examined, nor was I told my crune, neither were my accusers confronted with me. The only party were my accusers confronted with me. ensur at hand who could have assisted me, my legal advisor, was arrested, and committed to close custody. I was forwarded to this district, under a large military guard, and confined in jail. My servants, boatmen, visicrea, and others totally unconnected with me, were been adduced for the prosecution, there is not a scintilla produced, and they with mny attorney, were forwarded to been adduced for the prosecution, there is not a scintilla of sriminality made out against me. The case which is been attempted to be established, involves, in established with the process of the proc arrival, after communicating with the Reverend Mr. [and I will only say, that I was confined a close prisoner, Alexander, his nozir and darogali, he proceeded with without knowing my crains and without being examined, as I have before mentioned, from the 6th of May until the middle of June, when the examination before the magistrate began. The circumstances under which that examination took place, I will not now detail. I now drop that subject, and I wish I could effect from my memory all the injustice I have suffered since my first incarceration in Houghly jail. I shall not detain you with detailing the mode in which the examination of the witnesses produced in the Magistrate's Court, to provethat I had been guilty of riot and resistance to the constituted authorities, was conducted. I thank the Governe ment for sanctioning my committed for trial before your for here I expect fair and impartial justice.

Though I was arrested on something like a charge of riot, I, after being confined in a common jail for nearly four months, and after suffering every indignity which. could be heaped on me; after being deprived of mg liberty, and plundered of my little personal property; produced to shew, that that is a true and correct list?, after being refused a copy of the charge on which I was No, none. If the report of the 30th of April to the magnetic committed to custody, after being refused to be held to committed to custody, after being refused to be held to? bail; and after being told by the magistrate, that there was no intention of trying me on a charge of obtaining. money under false pretences, I was arraigned on the, following charge, viz, that I, having another name, deceitfully and wickedly caused myself to be called by she name of the former zemindar of Burdwan, Maha Rajah, Dhee Raj Pertaub Chunder Bahadoor.

> On the illegality, the informality, and the nonsense of such a charge, I will not now comment. That the charge embraces no crime, -that it is childish, and the production of one ignorant of what constitutes crime, must be apparent to all. Still, on this allegation, a charge, or by whatever name it may please the framer-of it to call it, I was, on the 1st of September, a reaigned by the magistrate. With such a vague charge, how could I meet the evidence produced against me? I shall only say on this subject, that so satisfied were my legals advisers of the small chance which I had of obtaining justice in the Magistrate's Court, that they advised me to reserve my defence for this Court. Here I mean to set it up. Here I mean to shew, by clear and undoubted testimony, that I am no impostor, but, in truth and verity, the zemindar of Burdwan. I shall adduce to you satisfactory testimony, that I am not Kisto Lal; and I shall have no difficulty in removing from your mind the impression, which I am afraid has taken hold of it, that I am an impostor. That such an impression should have been made on you, I do not wonder, nor am I surpresed that persons should be biased against me, after all that power and influence have laboured to do against me; and, considering the positive testimony which has been thereby procured, of my being Kisto Lat. But you, Sic, are Judge, and as such, ought to be, and as I am auxions to believe you, are, above receiving a bias from any quarter, however influential. It is your duty to weigh the evidence given; and which is to be given, as you have as yet only heard the evidence for the prosecution.

> And here permit me to observe, Sir, with all defer ence, that it is under protest that I am about to summon witnesses, and enter upon my defence to the present charge; and the ground of my protest is that I am as vised that upon the face of these proceedings, and even assuming the truth of the whole evidence which has been adduced for the prosecution, there is not a scintiffs : of sriminality made out against me. The case which has been attempted to be established, involves, in eghstance, two distinct and heterogeneous charges. First, that I have been guilty of disturbing the peace of the money by false presences and representations. Neither already shewn, that the witnesses for the prosecution, therefore, at once, urge my immediate acquittel, and therefore the decline to mitter point a defence where no tangible there was no disturbance or breach of the peace, and charge applicate. But I do not wish, in the last degree, to have thus negatived and disproved what they were spe-wially summoned to support. With respect to the in-Balting aint aufounded charge of swindling, and procuring money by false pretences, I utterly scorn and repudiate the imputation with all the indignation which it 'merits. Even if I were proved to be an impostor, in elaiming the Raj of Burdwan, there would not be a single point of resemblance in common between my case and that of a procurer of money by false pretences. In the first place, my claims are not clandestinely urged All-that I assume, I have assumed openly and publicly, Nay; I have commenced legal proceedings in her Ma-jesty's Supreme Court of Calcutta, in order to assert and prove my claims, and to recover my paternal property; which proceedings are at this time pending, and would ere this, have been brought to a legal issue, and brought to a close, by a judgment in my favor, if I had not been prevented carrying on the suit by the unjust and onpressive proceedings of the mofussil functionaries. I have waked no one to believe my bare statements; but to go wad enquire, and form their own opinions; and if they form an opinion favourable to me, is this to be wrested so my undoing? Again, Sir, in the second place, the money which I have received, has been offered to me columntrily and at no solicitation of mine. The only wither upon the point, is Baboa Radakissen Bysack, and to his deposition we must confine ourselves in discussing this part of the case. Radakusen distinctly declared, that he did not advance the money upon my representations, and that his firm belief in the truth of my story, was not founded upon statements of mine, but upon the representations of disinterested third parties, with whom I had no connection, and over whom I had no control. In the third place, Sir, all the money that I have received from Baboo Radakissen, is proved to have been advanced by way of loon, and to have been properly mecured by formal instruments of security. His right to recover back that money from mais not made contingent upon my succeeding in the claims which I put forth. conditional; he may put his bonds in suit tomorrow, if be pleases, and there is no evidence whatsoever before the Court, to show that I am unable to discharge the debt to the uttermost rupes. And whether it be alleg-ed or proved that I am Kisto Lall Burmacharee, Afluck Shaw, or Rojah Pertaub Chunder, Lindividually am responsible for, and may be, by legal suit, made to pay the amount so borrowed, whenever it may please the lender to enforce his securities. Is this any thing more than a common and fair pecumary transaction of every day's occurrence? Baboo Dwaikanauth Tagore admits, that he himself has been engaged in many similar fransactions. He has over and over again advanced money in support of civil claims, both in the mofusil and the Supreme Courts, and, nor-instanding the Babno's known sagacity, some of these speculative cienne have doubtles turned out unsuccessful. Lastly, Sir, I will merely remind you, that shere is no Com-plainant; that thereis not one person to come forward and say that Thave injured him. Can there be a greater anomaly, then to make a matter of public prosecution, an alleged private whong, of which the pretended sufferer hinter, dues not complete, and which in fact he has other testimony than that, of so individual who has acted, and would, if he were not alraid of making bintappear to Africk from meeting the question which has been raised, affecting my identity as the veritable Rajah Pertaub Chand, and although I feel the disadvantages imposed upon me in contesting a civil claim, in the position of an accased party in a criminal prosecution, brought and supported by the Government, and now standing at the bar of a criminal Court, I shall (under protest, as I have already said) enter into a formal des fence, and a lduce full evidence in support of my identity, and in contradiction of the evidence which you have heard.

I deny being K sto Lal, and I beg of you to bear in mind in what a duficult position this charge places me I do not pretent to prove where Kisto Lal is, nor where he died, nor where he sojourned, but I mean to prove that I am Rajah Pertaub Chund. I shall give you general evidence that I am not KistoLal. The evidence which I wilk producewill be respectable—it will not be liable to a charge , of being interested. Lain prosecuted by Government, and prosecuted by those of whom better things inight have been expected as Englishmen and Christians, My frien is. who apport, me are threatened with the loss of situation, and prosecution, if they continue to assist me. I have not the means nor the inclination to adopt the degrading and dishonest practice of purchasing evidence, or bringing forward lived witnesses. All my witnesses will be impartial men, swayed by no feelings of interest, and guided by no prospect of gain. Many will be deterred by the fear of the consequence of opposing the Magistrate and the Government. Still with all those obstacles in my way, and having justice on my side, I do not despair of obtains ing a judgment in my favor.

Before proceeding to remark on the evilence which has been produced, that I am Kisto Lal, I beg to draw your attention to the fact, that the Magistrate stated, that every witness called for the prosecution in his Court, would, as a matter of course, be produced before you tor examination. I ask, has that been done? I say, and you must now know, that it has not been done. The Magistrate has carefully excluder from the list, those witnesses who spoke favorably of my case, in his cutcherly. Does such conduct in a Government servant refiect credit on the Government which prosecutes me ? Let me instance specially the case of the Reverend Mr. , Deere. This Gentleman is the only European witness who was called to prove my identity as Kisto Lal, and I believe that his expected testimony against me, was very much relied on, In the Magistrate's court, Mr. Doeio instinctly swore, to his belief, that I was not Kisto Lat, and the consequence has been, that he has not been reexamined before you.

In regard to the evidence produced against me, this I am Kisto Lal, I confe-s I feel a difficulty in knowing which part of the evidence to select as most worthy of In a case where the Government servante have shown such a decided anxiety to convict me, it is natural that those who depend on Government for their means of livelihood, and who took forward for promotion in Government service, should feel inclined to support a Government prosecution, Premchand Bonnerjee. Name of the Magistrate's court at Nuddean, says he cannot swear positively that I am Kisto Lal. Brijomohun Moukers dublicity, in V.8 Court, declared be considered to be jee, the Preskar of the same court, says he could not a sirrong? Can'there be a greater hardship and absur-swear positively that I am Kisto Lal. Neelcount Bose, dity, than to keek to convict a man of a crime by no the Sheristadar of the same court, says that I am like Kinto Enl; but he has said before you that he does not distinetly recognize me. Buddinauth Burge, the moonstree self obnoxious to Government, still continue to act as of the same court, could not recognize into accline Est. the friend and supporter of the abcused 2 Upon, these Rammauth Mocketies said; he would not swear publically grounds it is, that I submit with confidence that the state Lat. Now all these with confidence that the same that I was Kinto Lat. against me has utterly failed, most that incular growled be respited of Buthinauth Burkey (dward aboy kites seator), involving eriminality, has been proved a kindle failed failed and in the seator of the seator o

But is that doing the immense wealth in his possession, and the insystemes of elective? Certainly not; and I ask what other fluence arising therefrom, against me. I do not possess testimony could they be experted to give? Would they have ventured to come forward to disprove that which the Magistrate of Houghly, had asserted as before meutioned officially, that I was not Kisto Lal.

' I think it unnecessary to enter into an examination of the evidence of the witnesses Pal Christian and Prawnkissen Christian ; for I am confident you place no reliance on their testimony. The latter comes into Court, and confesses, without a blush, that his whole life has been a he; that he is a thorough adept in the act of decent and traud; and that he dates the period of his amendment, only from the time when he composed an extorted statement, which he calls a contession, only to escape from the horiors of perpetual imprisonment. it shall become neves-any in the course of my detence. I shall, without much difficulty, tear from them the croak of saucitty with which they have covered themselves, and Expose them to you in their true light. I admit, that these apostates to their religion have sworn point blank eaungh trat I am Kisto Lil. I shall, in all probability, show what they are; but I put it to you, Sir, to state what respeciable withers has been produced to prove that I am actually Kasto Lul? Is it Gungapersand l'ewarree, who swore, that when I was a prison rin Bancoorah jail he was an omedwar to the Magistrate's Court there I knew, as he says, that I was Kisto Lel, but did not menfion at, Was if this man who says he was an inclwar from that time, until be give evidence in the Magistrate's Court here against me ? Was it Rambunder Biswas. who swore that I was Kisto Lal and that I got the mark which I have on my back from a tall from a small horse on a pice of kunkui on a jeel ! Look at my bick, examone my wound, and see it that could have been so obraine I. Was it Rambonou Bhadooree, who swore file could not say if I was Kisto Lat ! Was it my alledged un le, Is-erchander Un iterjee, who swore to his recofelection and belief that Kisto Lal had six toes on his feet, and I having only, thank God, the same number of toes as common men, manely five I Was it Gangagovin's Bonnetiee, who swore in his examination in chief, that he had not seen Kisto Littor about six years, and on his cross-examination, that it was about sixteen years since Kista Lal went away ? Wis it Mud ien Chuckerbutty, who contradicted the last witness? Was it Ramchunde, Roy, the Pusseeldar of the kis mahals, who swore he knew Kisto Lat well, but could not swear I was birh !

I shall not detain you farther with rein hing on all the inconsistencies of these witneses, who have been produced to prove that I am Kisto Lal, s.ill I submit; that all those witnesses who have sworn that they knew Kisto Let well, and cannot swear positively that I am him, must be considered as tavorable witnesses for me. And what do the majority of the witnesses for the prosecution awear, even if they are to be believed, which they cannot Why, nothing more than that there is a likeness between me and histo Lal.

. But what is the course which has been pursued against me ! On one occasion I am fried as Uluk Shah; on another as Kato Lal; and when this farce is over, the Government will perhaps provide me with another maine. What is the general description of evidence produced by the prosecutor that I am Kisto Lal? Why, men, who lot a sufficient consideration, or, if it were then interest, would suppor that I am any other person who migish be usmed to them. I feel so confident that you gian little or no weight to their testimony, that I shall say por with respect to a construction of the contract of the cont

the influence of Government to collect together, servante of Government, and, others to support my case. I am placed in this position, that until it came out in the Magistrate's Court, that I was charged with being Kiete Lal, I had not the slightest idea by what name I was to be called. I have some witnesses who will be able to give testimony whether I am Kisto Lal. They are, and you will I am sure admit them to be, impartial Wilnesses.

The evidence produced against me, to shew that I am not Rajah Pertaub Chand, is of two classes. Une class consists of the retainers of Prawnchunder Baboo, the other of gentlemen in the employ of Government:

Lahall first remark on the evidence of the gentlemen who have been produced against me; but before doing so, l'ask, why the general rule of practice has been broken through in my case, and why, in accordance with the assurance given by the Magistrate, all the witnesses who were examined in the Magistrate's court have not teen given in the calendar. Has there not been and lection made ? Have not, contrary to practice and to the express assurance of the Magistrate to the coulears. many new witnesses been added? Has not there been every appearance of making up a case against me ? Is it honorable in a Government prosecution to do so ? Does it not look more like a proceeding for ensuring a convigion at all events, than an impartial investigation for the decorery of the truth ? This ought to be the only object of a Gevernment-like that of the East India Company, What crime have Ecommitted against the Government that it liss adopted such harsh proceedings against meet In the Burdwan property the property of Government,? No ; but Gagerament has extended to the present possessore of it, that parental protection and essistance which it has done to Radakimen Bysack. Has not the present paragester sufficient means to protect himself 1. Has be not come forward and taken defence to my suit in the Supreme Court at Caloutta by this legal advisors ?... Dut the Government entertain a fear, that, even with the time mense wealth at his disposal, and the manuege which wealth generates, Frawnchunder Babon would be unable to resist my just clause, that it thought it necessary to intervene and commence, in its own name, a griminal prosecution against me, on charges as beneath the dignity of a Government to support, as they are beneath the dig. nuy of a court of justice to betertere ?. But how are these pharges supported? Did not the Magistrate himself, the immediate prosecutor under Government, voluntarily say in open Court, after examining Mesere. Trower, Prinsep, Pattle, Hutelingson, Overbeck, Harklotte, Becher, and that paragon of integrity, the Rajah Buddinauth Roy,all Government witnesses, -that all the evidence given by these gentlemen, was of a very inconclusive nature. Let in here remark, on the evidence of Rajah Buddingu h Rox. who spoke in favor of the prosecution. Was not that witness proved to have committed gross parjury? As much was stated by the Magistrate after his examination. I ask, did the Government officers indict or commit that witness for perjury, as they have committed one of the witnesses in this court? I do not advocate such proceeding, as it would have prevented, mod likely, the witnesses which were provinced coming to give evidence agains me; but no such consideration usughed in chargains with perjury one of the witnesses who stude faroughly towards me, and of commutung him at once to juil This. effect of the proceeding is not much calculated to induce respectable natives to some forward and give evidence in my favor Line Alagistrate thought proper to with influence of Rewischender Banco, who is the produce a pictor in an imagistrate injugate proper to meet interested party in this produce in an injure of the produce of the party in this produce in a national interested party in this produce is a national party in the produce of the party personal interest in opposing the rightful be should at once have said it was the picture of the

And Mr. Hutchinson, who does not recollect the picture. Days he had an acquiline one. Mr. Overbeck said the picture was like Pertanb Mr. Becher said that it did not recall the appearance of Pertaub to his memory: Now, I beg to remind you, that this picture was produced from the Rajbarry as being the picture of Rajah Pertaub Chund. What do these witnesses say as to the likeness between me and the picture? Mr. Trower says nothing. Mr. Prinsep. Mr. Pattle, and Mr. Hutchinson say, that they see no resemblance between meand the picture: Mr. Overbeck said there was an evident likeness between me and the picture. Mr. Herklotts said nothing on the subject. Mi. Becher said he saw a very strong likeness; and f we believe him, Rajah Buddinauth Roy said, he saw a likeness between me and the picture. Mr. Prinsep said If was taller than Pertaub. One of the native witnesses, Pearrymohun Baboo, swore that Rajah Pertaub was taller than I am, Mr. Pattle did not recollect whether I was tall or short. Mr. Hutchinson said I appeared conaiderably taller than Pertaub. The Picture being measured and compared with my height, Mr. Becher swore they corresponded exactly. Mr. Trower said there was nothing in my countenance which reminded him of Pertaub. Mr. P. in-ep said I did not answer to his recollection of Pertaub. Mr. Pattle said he knew nothing about Mr. Hutchinson said I appeared to be altogether a differ ut person from Pertaub Chund. Mr. Trower said his memory was treacherous. I know it to be so. He only swore that he did not think I was Pertaub; but he could not swear positively that I was not. He has seen me only once at an interview. Whether his account of that "interview is correct, you will hereafter be able to judge." He swore that frequent applications were made by me to (see him, but he refused, and why? Because he thought in such a case his character might suffer. On this reason I make no remark, and dismiss Mr. Trower's evidence as inconclusive. Mr Prinsep also saw me ence, and he sewears that because I did not recollect the particulars of can interview I had with him at Burdwan in 1819, I could not be Pertaub. The account given by Mr. Prinsep of the interview which I had with him to his other, is, in many respects, incorrect. You will hear my version of it, and you will be enabled to judge of the weight to be given to it. Mr. Prinsep said that he could not swear positively that I was or was not Pertaub, and therefore his evidence is inconclusive.

Mr. Pattle's evidence was that of an impartial witness. The length of time which had elapsed had weakened his memory, and he would not swear whether I was or was not Pertaub.

I admit that Mr. Hutchinson's evidence has more , in it against me than that of any of the witnesses who preceded him. He could not swear positively that I was not Pertaub, but he believed I was not; and, as he was well acquainted with Rajah Portanb. and did not swear that I was not Pertaub, his evidence is infloncineive. I had more to remark on this gentleman's evidence, but he is dead and I refrain from doing so, and I leave the prosecutor to all the bear't he expects from his testimony, med scarcely say that the evidence of Mr. Herkloits amounts to absolutely nothing; for, by his own statement, that gentleman never saw the I aim Pertaub Chand more than three times altogether, and the aggregate deration of these three interviews, (some twenty years ago, too). Was about a comple of hours, 4 La grandina is an they saw me they believed me to be an imposter; Mr. Trower refused my application because he thought his character would auffer. In the name of reason how could it suffer by granting me an interview? I admit that these gentlemen gave me one interview. Y u shall hear the circumstances under which that interview was granted, and what occurred at it, and you will judge how far it bears against me. A great stress has been laid on my not being able to recollect certain circumstances which occurred to the Rajah Pertanb Chund, and it has been concluded, that because I have not been able to recollect every circumstance which occurred between me and every individual with whom I had; in former days, any intimucy, that therefore I am an impostor. Was there ever a more groundless con-clusion? I ask you, ir do you recollect every citcumstance which occurred between you and every individual you have met with in this world? If you forget any one or many circumstances which did occur, would it be reasonable to conclude that you were not yourself-that you were guilty of gross fraud and imposture? But is not the mind of one man stronger than that of another? Is not memory more retentive in one individual than in another? Has not one man a capacity for recollecting matters of little moment or import whilst another can only retain in his mind great and important events? Is not memory improved by exertion and relaxed by inactivity? Isit not weakened by disulation, and strengthened by abstinence or moderate living ! I am accused of forgetfulness in not recollecting the names of European gentlemen. Are natives famous for retaining in their memory the names of Briglish I believe not; but by whom non I gentlemen ? accused of forgotfulness Is it by Mr. Trower; of is it by the witnesses from the Bajbarry ? If I show gon that Mr Trower dit not recognize up English gentleman who attended on his own tamily in the capacity of Dootor, and who has a peculiarity in his appearance arising from lameness, will you consider it very extraordinary that I do not recollect the names of various individuals when asked in an off hand manner ! If Mr. Trower did not recollect the individual who administered medecine to his children, and if he ded not recollect the serious illness of a child at Burdwan, which terminated in its death, am I to be convicted of being an impostor because my merrory is weak or defective? Because I am all-dged to have forgotten who was the Judge of Burdwan during a particular year, or who preceded this man in office, or succeeded to that man? Because I did not, after an interval of twenty years, retain a sufficiently vivid recollection of the features of Mr. Prinsep. or Mr. Pattle, or Mr. Hutchinson, in an interview such as I had with these gentlemen? Because did not recollect the particulars of an interview with Mr. Prinsep? Mr. Prinse appears to forget alebgether that circumstances and eyents, which have appeared important to one person, may have had little interest for another; and that the details of that interview, upon which he dwells so much, and. the minutest particulars of which seem to have been fixed indeliby upon his remembrance, might have been forgotten by Rajah Pertaub Chund within twelve months afterwards.

Mr. Pattle did not recollect Pertanb Chund's age pearance after seeing his acknowledged picture. His said his recoffection of Ferthib was incorrect. If the recollection of so neute a gentleman was in-But what opportunities have these gentleman had forrect, might not that of Pertanb also be incorrected of ascertaining whether I was not Raining When Mr. Pattle said he did not recollect Pertanb. Pertanb Chund S. Have I avoided them? That did not recognize at him once, Tam treated as one.

Though all these gentlemen declared they believed the Rajah to be dead, and burnt, they would not take upon themselves to swear that I was not the Rajah Pertaub Chund. I shall produce most unexceptionable and highly respectable witnesses, who will swear that I am Rajah Pertaub Chund. Their evidence will not be founded on mere recollection. It will be founded on something more satisfactory.

Lnow proceed to the evidence of Dwarkanauth Tagore. I will do him the credit of saying, that his evidence before you was given in a very different manner from his deposition before the magistrate; but I will show to you, that his evidence is not correct. He was not on an equality with me. He had very little opportunity of knowing me. He was omployed by the Magistrate to get up witnesses against me. He was prepared by the Magistrate as to the evidence which was required. He says he gave Mr. Tuiton several questions to put to me I did not answer them. and that did not venture to say what these questions were, and they might have related to matters impossible to be answered. But did Mr. Turton desert me? No; the refusal of Mr. Hairington, the Judge who tried and convicted me to allow me, to avail myself of his services, did not make him desert me. health deprved me of his assistance. I am aware that the position of Dwarkanauth Tagore, gives to his evidence considerable weight with many. I may be able to weaken the effect, if any, that it may have had on you.

The only other person bearing an appearance of respectability, who was produced against me, independent of the retainers and dependents of Prawin Biboo, was cossinath Bose. He said he did not recollect whether he had said to Mr. DeSonza and to others, within a few short months past, that I was Kajah Perlaub Chund He did say so, and Mr. DeSonza will prove this to be true.

I now come to the evidence of the Rajbarry witnesses, and regarding their testimony I have little to sav They have detailed the circumstances connected with my alleged death and burning with an almost particularity; but they were unable to mention any particulars connected with the death of my father, or any member of my family. My death is alledged so have taken place upwards of twenty years ago, whereas that of my father occurred within a few years. I am accused of not remembering the name of the English Gentlemen who were at the station of Burdwan. Did they remember them ! No ; they did not and yet they continued all going at Burdwan whilst I was absent from it. I pray you remember who these parties are Are they not all the relations and retainers of Prawnchunder B thoo, who has managed to get his son placed in possession of my property? Here they not all the greatest possible interest in keeping me out from my rig ts ? It I shall succeed in establishing my identity, what will become of them? Were there no other witnesses to produce against me except these relatives and creatures of Prawn Baboo? Where are my own and my fathers old servants, and why where they not produced? Where are those persons who were in the habit of visiting me, and were on terms of intimacy with me? What has become of the five thousand persons who were pr sent at my alledged death and burning and the respectable zemindars of the country, who knew me and the affairs of the Rajbarry? Was Bissonauth sircar, the the tax mohurer, the only person who could be produced to speak to the death and burning, out of the five thousand who are alledged to have been present He was immediately recognized by the Molowvie as having given evidence in the case against Jadub Chose, for perjury, and he did not venture to swear that I was burnt. .

I put it to you, Sir, le there any thing more easy for a witness to do, than to swear to the death and burning of an individual? Prome the mode in which these witnesses gave their evidence, it is manifest that they came into Court, resolved to swear at all hazards, to every fact which could inflitate against me; and thus is not very surprising or unaccountable, when the deep interest which they have at stake, is taken into consideration, and that they were all and each immediately connected by the ties of blood, marriage, or pecuniary interest with Prawnchunder Baboo, whom they have not ventured to call. No relative of the decessed Rajah lej Chunder or of myself has been produced.

A curious proof of their readiness to swear so strong ly against me, is furnished by the ea erness with which they replied to he question relating to thesimilarity, or dissimilarity between Rajah Pertanb and myself. They would not allow a single point of resemblance. Each particular feature was totally unlike eyes, nose, lips, hands, feet, expression, gait, every thing. One man swore my feet were two long, though he could not see them. Another that the Rajah Pertab Chund had very different teeth from these I have, although, during all his examination, my mouth was never open. A blind witness swore he knew I was not Rajah Pertaubchund from feeling my body, It is needless to adduce more instances of the strong swearing of these persons. Any impartial observer of the mode in which their testimony was given, must have been surely satisfied that these witnesses were quite overdoing their case, and that they were defeating their own object by a too obvious anxiety to obtain it.

Let us now consider whether the direct evidence given by these witnesses of my alleged death and burning, is more entitled to consideration and belief. It may appear at the first view; that when several persons depose to the details and particulars of the same event, their depositions compared, one with the other, are calculated to afford abundant room for searching crosseramination but the reverse will be found to have been the case here. The commonest Native ordinarily acquainted with the usages and customs of his countrymes, might have sworn safely and almost without any previous preparation, to all the minute circumstances connected with my alleged death and burning stated by the Rajbary witnesses, although at the date of that alleged event, he might have been a thousand miles distant from (ulna All that the Rajbary witnesses required. was a little schooling with respect to dates, and places and persons, and then the rest was a simple matter; for they had only to tax their memories to recollect the ordinary routine of rites and ceremonies which are performed upon the occasion of the death and cremation of every Hindoo who is of the same caste with that of the Rajah, Pertaub Chund, and which had been actually performed on numerous other occasions when these very persons were present. Let me remind you, Sir, that the majority of these witnesses were of the Khetree caste, the same caste as that of the Reigh Pertanb Chund, and that it was their constant duty and practice, to attend at the performance of such ceremonies. Some of them had probably been present at such ceremonies at teast fifty times; now, how was it possible to entrap them into discrepancies, even in the minutest particulars? Nay, I put it to you, Sie', whether minor variances and discrepancies in their exidence would not, infinitely, rather have strengthened, than weakened the probability of their story,? Foo great exactitude, with reference specially to trivial events, that have happened very many years ago, is far more fatal to the credibility of narrators, than even a considerable degree of contradiction and discrepancy but these witnesses agree as to the circumstances of important cocumstances of a much more recent date, and of an equally impressive character. When a varietweet witnesses, in detailing a succession of by-gone esents, differ here and there in the subordinate circum stances, preservin consistency of course in the main chethine, such ittle variances farnish rather a corrobora tion of the truth of their tale, and lead to the convic tion that each has come untutored to tell his own story honestly and fearlessly. But, when some twenty andividuals lay claim to such marvellous minuteness of recollection, as to detail trivial events which happened a score of years ago, without makin; a single shp, and when the testimoney of each one accords with that ofall the rest, with such suspicious, exactitude and parti colority, the most probable inference is, that they have concerted to et er to support a false and fabricated story. Before concluding these comments upon the evidence for the prosecution, I beg to remind you that ham placed before you, who are sitting as a Ind'e in a Government criminal Court; that you are a ser want of that Government, and that I am to have my creil rights tried, though not decided, under a criminal charge and preceedings framed, instituted and sap ported by Government influence. That if a shall mitsty you that I am Jaja Pertaub, you cannot put me, ander these proceedings, into possession of the pro porty to which I lay claim. That if in this trial, notwithstheding all the disadvantages to which I am subjected, by the unjust, illegal and harsh proceedings of a Government functionary, the Ma istrate of Hooghly, I shall obtain an acquittal, my rights will sot be thereby decided ; whereas if I am convicted on say one of the extraordinary charges preferred against me, a prejudice will thereby be created a sainst me in any civil tourt in which I may require to sue for my rights. That Government has not, at least it ought not, to have any interest in supporting the claim of the present pussessors of the Burdwan Roj That the Burdwan zemindary is private and not Government property, and that my claim to be the Raja Pert ib, does got at least ought not, to affect the Government That no person save Government officers have complained Against me. That in claiming to be the Raje Pertaus, 1-have committed no crime against the Government, and that the principal charge against me is, that I do chain to be R. ja Pertanti. That the Government has secused me of swindfin a person who says he has no complaint to make against me, and that he is not a party to this prosecution: That though I am charged with insticating and prevailing on many people. unlawfully and tunnituously to assemble at Culna, there is no evidence adduced; that I did instigate and prevail on any persuit to assemble at a ulma, and the only witnesses which have been produced ; being Government servents, have proved the mainy of the charge of my doing any throat "emigently calculated" to produce a breach of the peace. That there, is no evidence that instigated and prevailed on any parties tunnituously to asscupte at Opina ; and it is in evidence, that I went disable and cremation, to wlangliable offects and purificative contrary to practice, and to his own word. That themselve while they district the Alagistrate and his sheristadar, have, contrary to wage forgetfulness) in moswering question respecting practice, taken an important interest in the proceedings important creamstances of a much more recent date, in this Court. That a European gentleman of great talent, has been selected by Government to conduct the prosecution against me. That I have been presented having free continunication with my legal advisers and witnesses, and that several of my witnesses who have arrived, have been detained in charge of a Government officer. That my principal witnesses have not yet arrived; and, lastly, that after being arrested by a visc cistrate who has fal ified his proceedings a nazir who has made a false report, a darrogah who can peither read nor write. After being shot at by a military force and plundered by Government fuctionaries. After being detained in Ho hly jail (though arrested in the Bur, dwan district.) for months without knowing my crime, or being subjected to any prosecution. After being tried for riot. I have been committed on a charge which is unintelligible detained a close prisoner for nearly eight months and refused to be held to bail to any amount.

The first witness for the defence, Robert Scott, E-q , Surgeon, 37th Madras Native infantry, was called up and deposed I am acquainted, with the prisoner string, (meaning the alleged Pertab Chunder,) I was officiating Zirlih Surgeon at Burdwan from 1815 to the end of 1817. I knew him as the young Rajah or Buriwan. He was usually known as such by Europeans, but in his notes to me be subscribed himself Maharajih de Rajh Pertab Chund Bahadoor. He wrote English in those days, and spoke it, but not fluently.

Questioned by Mr. Lenh. During my stay at Burdwin, I had many opportunities of seeing and convering with Refah Pertaub ' hund, both in private and in on the. I was very intimite with him, and visited him personally, and when he was there, I was his regular inedical attentiant. I gene ally saw him two or three times during the weeks. Since my arrived here, I have ifad three interviews with him in the jail, and conversed with him, and our some question to him to satisfy myself as to his identity; and his replies convinced me that he was Rijah Pertah Chund. I examined his person in the jail, and the result of it confirmed my tomer opinion. I attended him to 1817, when he had an ulcer in the manle of his right cheek; the mark of that alone is still seen in the prisoner's cheek, and these touth apposite to it is gone. When I attended on him, I gave him a girgle, which he said had such an effect on him that he could not close his mouth for two days. The eleer was caused by a decayed tooth, auta had the appearance of a sinus The Raja had lost a rooth while I attended him. The prisoner has tissuese the mark of a bulboo on the right groin, corresponding to what Pertah Chunder had. The prisoners face of darker than Pertah Chund's was, but the body ta significant. Exposure of the face to the atmosphere will darken it. A person might surely make a sore an his cheik, flut I do not think that he could have made it so atenticallie on the spot as in the Rajah's mouth. It could make have been made by one who had known the young Raja had one there. I saw no one at Burdwan that consumption at Colon, and it is in evidence, that I went to Chunder, and if I had, seen any denice that I during my stay at Culma, on various or casious, by the chitiplay of superior force, setat denice that I during my stay at Culma, on various or casious, by the chitiplay of superior force, setat denice that i during my stay at Culma, on various or casious, by the chitiplay of superior force, setat denice that i during my stay at Culma, on various or character destricts and it is the word of the constituted authorities of the condition of the resembled Pertab Chunder, and if I had seen son to speak decisively to the ages of natives, in copses pistol. The next question, was whether be had left of quence of all feeruits for my regiment, having to pass his habit of drinking shadeits whom. His teply was: examination before me, before they are enlisted in it. From had had discontinued drinking wines, as he theelmy examination of the prisoner in jail, I should sup pose him to be between 45 or 46 years old. I asked the prisoner why he did not converse in English, as he formerly did. Herepfied that from having discontinued it be had forgotten it; he, however, made one or two attempts, but failed to speak intelligibly. When I returned from England to India in 1832, after an absence of two years I had greatly forgotten the Hindoostance, which I for merly spoke fluently Pertab Chund was a hard drinker and his memory might have been affected by it. The prisoner drew for me in the jail, a plan of the Rajbarry at Burdwan, and as far as he sketched it, the plan was perfectly correct. The prisoner appears somewhat taller than the Rajah was, but the rotunditty of the muscles being diminished by age, the leanness of the body makes the person appear taller than when he imout. The prisoner is thoner than the young Rajsh was. I, after my arrival here, saw Mr. Trower in his office. He did not recognize me, and from my conver eat on with him then, he did not appear to have a good memory. From all that I have seen of the prisoner since my arrival here, I have no doubt that he is Per tab Chund .- Hurkaru, Dec. 22.

DECEMBER 20, 1838.

Dr. Robert Scott's examination continued .- Quesfoned by Mr. Bignell. My eye-sight is not so good ait was, but still I can see clearly without glasses. I oggasionally use them in examining minute objects. I have a pair now of extra magnifying power, and this pracludes my using two pair of spectacles. When I saw the prisoner in jail, I had my usual spectacles on, and only one pair. I first arrived in Bengal in 1815. I came out a Doctor's mate in the Ship Lady Castlereugh. I became so intimate with the young Rajah during my stay at Burdwan, as he spoke the English, and I did not then know the native languages, and I associated more with him than the other natives. I visited him at all hours with the exception after midnight. The Rajah was very sociable.

During the examination, Mr. Bignell put questions as to whether he saw scenes of drunkenness and obseenety, and went even so far as to a-k whether the witness's character was notorious up to the present day for curing venerial complaints at Burdwan. Witness aupwereil no.

Mr. Leith objected to these questions. He said, that they were irrelevant to the case in question, and tended of his character.

Mr. Bignell replied, that he had his instructions from Government, and to them only he was responsible for his conduct in the case. .

"Mr. Leith then submitted the objection to the judge. and he coinciding in opinion with Mr. Leith. Mr. Bigwell therefore discontinued this line of procedure.

Examination of Dr. Scott continued .- I was at a the Judge, and his family and Captain Webber, the commandant of the Provincial Battalion, at the Rajbarry. I am not aware that amongst the papers seized commannant of the hard specific and the papers seized barry. I am not sware that amongst the papers seized by the Burdwan Magistrate at Culna when the prisoner was arrested, a skelch of the Rajbarry at Burdwan, was found. The questions which I put to the prisoner when I saw him in the fail, and his replies to them are these I asked him whether he recollected me and if he repollected says of my particular pursuits in those days, this answer was, that he perfectly recollected me, and that was year load of phoping partial dogs with a bragdy much better, I then saked him about his coachman, who drove his four-in-hand carriage. He replied, the man is dead. I asked him what hadbee come of the Rajbarry at Chiasarah. The reply: 40 which was not very satisfactory. I then asked him about the ore in his mouth, the particulars of which & have already deposed to. I then quest oned him ragarding the Judges and Migistrates in those days at Burdwan. He could not name any of them with the exception of Mr. Martin. I then inquired of him wifether he recollected any circumstances that took place in the civil jul at Burdwan. He replied, that Ruggo Bahoo. who had been committed to that Jail by Mr. Buller, had poisoned himself, and that I had opened and examined his body to ascertain the cause of his death, which reply was perfectly correct. These were all the material circumstances on which I questioned him. Is. am not a volunteer witness i come in con-equence. lof a subposna from this Court, and if I had displayed that subposing, I was afraid of being fined for a contempt of Court. Before I received the subposos I did write to the prisioner's agent, that I had been formerly a Surgeon at Burdwan, and that if I were to sue. the prisoner, I thought I would be able to identify when ther the pris mer was the Burdwan Rajah or not, as I was on very intimate terms with him whilst at Bu dwan; but il did not sign my name to the letter, but sent it under an anonymous signature. I most distinctly deny that I have any preposessions in the pusoner's favor, and I have no interest or bias for any party in this case. As people grow, al let they seem generally to grow shorter. Haintual intemperance, if carried to a great extent, would affect the constitution and after the delineations of the face s. but some strong constitutions stand it out longer than others. I'he memory required to retain the remembrance of language, learnt ungrammatically, by mere collegual conversation with the natives, is more liable to hade during two years of its discontinuance than the romembrance of any striking event that has made a strong impression on the mind at the time it had occured. I did attends Ales Frower's family. Esent three do-es of calomel to Mila Trower to give to her three children. She mixed them all up and gave them to the youngest, an infant, and returned the next day to Burdwan, and, I believe the child died. Whether Mr. Trower recollects my having attended his family or has forgotion it. Alr Trower came from Hooghly to Cannot say Burdwan for three or four days, and she it was who wrote to me to attend on the children, and, perhaps, Mr. Trower might not have been aware of this fact. to disparage the witness's character. He was in the and this may account for his denying that I attended Company's service, and that was a sufficient guarantee his family. Otherwise I cannot secount how Alf. Trower's memory has faded on this point, and he has denied the fact.

Re-examined by Mr. Leith. I use the speciacles of the larger magnifying power, when I read or perform any surgical operation. The spectacles which I work when I examined the prisoner in the jail, are perfectly sufficient for any ordinary purpose. When I know the Rajah at Burdwan, I was a bachelor and about 24 years of age.

Mr. Bignell objected to Mr. Leith's recommining the witness. He said, that the practice was ususual and contrary to the Mofussil practice, and he did not see the propriety of any Barrister coming forward to upset those rules , and ties, he may claim another re-namination after Mr. Leith has finished, and then there weuld be as end to this examination, 1. C. Levish RAL

Mr. Leith: seplied; that it would be very : unasuni, at his, Mr. Le th's questions bear only on the replies elicit by Mr. Big sell on the consecution at the witness and he containing did not suppose, that Mr. Bigenlig as the Tovernment pleader, would make this objection when the object of Government ought to be to elicit the truth and not to make itself a party to the case.

Mr. Bignell replied, that he is the best judge of his conduct, and what are his instructions from Government on the subject.

Air. Curtis remarked, that he could not well give a reply to the objection of Mr. Bignell. Vakeels are only admitted in the Mofussil Court in civil cases, at the admitting a mooktar on the prisoner's behalf is a departure from the general practice. He cannot comply with Air. Bignell's objections.

Re-examination of Dr. Scott continued. The make in the presence's check was of old standing. When I examined the presence in jail, it was in the cold weather. I have not received my expenses for coming here, and intend to petition Government on the matter.

John Ridley, writer in the Secret and Political Depariment, deposed. I was formerly a writer in the Collectorate of Burdwan, during the years 1815, 16 and 17 and had opportunities of becoming acquainted with Rajah Pertab Chund. The prisoner resembles him. I saw the prisoner at Calcutta and questioned him and his replies were satisfactory. I have been 28 years in Government employ. Fiaser Be Bordeux, Jack Clermont, and Latour were in Pertab Cound's service. Peter Emmer went to Burdwan after Iresigned my situation there, in consequence of obtain ing a situation in the Marine Board at Calcutta, and I saw him at his residence in Park-street. From these visits I had sufficient opportunities to recollect his countenance. In May 1837. Mr. Graham request ed me to visit the prisoner for the purpose of ideaheation. My questions during that interview were of a nature to enable me to satisfy myself as to the prisoner's identity and from his replies and appearance. I am quite positive that he is the real Rajah Perrab Chund. I sold the Rajah in 1819, a gold alaim watch. Lasked the prisoner when I saw him in May 1837, whether I had sold him any articles, and he said that I had, and he detailed to me the particulars of the sale.

Cross-examined. During the year, I went as an aseistant to Mr. Filman, Secretary to the Revenue Board to the Unper Provinces. I am now a section-writer and earn from 100 to 300 rupees a month. I was not on totimate terms with the Raja, but I went to visit his Christian assistants and used to see him occusionally then. The questions which I put to the prisoner were these. I asked whether he recollected the dispute between his sepoys and the Provincial Buttalion sepoys at Burdwan. He said he did. I asked him how it anded, he replied that an order was passed by the Revenue Board to allow his sepays to wear unforms of a green collar. This raply was correct. The next question was regarding the watch, and then I put to him several minor questions and his replies were correct. The sale of the watch was a ready money transaction and the Raja paid me 650 rupees for it.

Re-examined by Mr. Leith. I have besides my daily sarning, two houses in Calcutta.

A petition was put in by the prisoner's mookhtar, stating that if the case was postponed until Wednesday ment, the 26th instant, to enable Mr. Shaw to examine the witnesses that are subpossed on behalf of the defence, and see if he could not dispense with many of them, whose testimony would he of no avail to the prisoner, and whose detention here would only incur an expence and inconvenience to the Government; and he contended that if this requirest were complied with, that this short postponement would eventually tend to shorten the case considerably, by getting sid of the testimony of several unnecessary witnesses.

Mr. Bignell remarked, that if the granting of the proposition would eventually tend to shorten the proceedings, he had no objection to the request being complied with.

Mr. Curtis remarked, that the only objection he could have to the petition, was a fear that the Nizamut Adawlut might suppose that he had postponed the case for his own convenience. He, however, in consideration that he could have yesterday taken up the examination of the witnesses of Hurry Narrain Roy, the Hurdhun Rajah, five of whom are in attendence, and which examination will perhaps take up the greater part of to-morrow, and that as Tuesday is a holiday, there would, in granting the petition, be already one day's postponement of the trial strictly speaking. He, therefore, on the petition being presented, complied with its prayer.

Mr. Leith stated, that Mr. Samuell's has prohibited Mr. Shaw from taking any witness to the prisoner in the jail, previous to their deposition being giving in Court, unless some person connected with the jail was pre-ent. This, Mr. Lieth stated, was a hardship; for when the witnesses for the prosecution were brought to ee the prisoner in the jail, no notice was given to the defendant's attorney of their being taken there. Now it so happens, that in the case of the evidence of one of one of the witnesses for the prosecution, one of them had been handed over by the Government pleader to the Magistrate, on a charge of perjuty, because the public officers who had accompanied him when he was taken to the jail to recognize the prisoner, could depose in the case against that witness, as to his having perjured himself, whereas in cases where other witnesses had leviated from the truth, the defence could not prosecare them, because if they were to do so, they could have no evidence to produce but that of the amiahs who were Government servents; and of the prisoner, who could not legally be an evidence in his own case. Purther as to the supposition of Mr. Samuells, that if one of the Government amlahs were not present during the prisoner's interviews with the witnesses, they might be tampered with, which he hoped that the character for respectability which Mr. Shaw and Mr. Graham have borne, will keep them from abetting any transaction of that nature, which would ultimately be a stigma on their character, if they were to do so; and, besides, if that was all that Mr. Samuells apprehended, these witnesses could be equally well tampered with and tutored without seeing the prisoner and out of the jail as in the jail, and in a private interview with the prisoner; and that confining the witnesses on charges of perjuly and the surveillience which they undergo before being examined before the Court, tends to deter many from coming forward and testifying to the truth, and thereby rerards what he considers ought be the sole object of the prosecution, viz. the elucidation of the truth; he therefore moved the Court to set aside Mr. Samuella's order and permit Mr. Shaw to take the witnesses to his client in jail, and let them communicate with them without the check of a Government functionary; for otherwise he was apprehensive that they might dread meeting the same fate as the witnesses already confined on a charge of perjury has met.

The Judge replied, that he believed that the man alleded to by Mr. Leith, must be speedily liberated, as it did not appear to him that there was sufficient evidence to convict him. With regard to Mr. Shaw or Mr. Graham, he had not the least intention to throw a stury on their character, when he said that his setting aside Mr. Samuelle's order, as requested by Mr. Lenth, might possibly give ground to a report of tampering with and tatering the witnesses for the defence; he therefore defined aversing it; but in the empty verantals of his Court, the prisoner was welcome, during the Court Sittings, to see and speak with any of his withness in private for an hour or so, and whenever he would intrmate his wish on that subject to Mr. Cartis, be would your client in private, as much as you think proper; he grant him permission to do so .- Hurkaru, Dec. 24.

HOOGHLY MAGISTERIAL COURT .- DECEMBER 20, 1838.

(Before E. A. Samuells, Usq., Magistrate.)

CONTEMPT OF COURT.

Mr. W. D. Shaw attended the Magistrate's Court this evening, accompanied by his legal advisor J. F. Leith, E-q., to answer to a summons issued against him for a contempt of Court, alleged by the Magistrate to have been committed by Mr. Shaw in addressing him a letter, which contained certain highly improper expressions, that formed the basis of the charge against Mr.

With a view to elucidate this matter more fully and to avoid disputations regarding the accuracy of our report, we here give copies of the correspondence which caused this investigation.

To the Magistrate of Hooghly.

Sin .- I have arrived from Calcutta with the intention of visiting my chent, the Rajah Perraub Chund, tomorrow morning, before the Court sits, and I find, that notwithstanding the orders of the Sessions' Judge (and which were concurred in by Mr Bignell) I am only to be allowed admission into the jail between the hours of 10 A. M. and 4 P. M., the very hours in which my client is in Court. I also understand, that you have issued orders to prevent the Rejah's legal advisors and the witnesses for the defence, having any communication with the Raiah except in the presence of one of your people. object to these orders, and I have to request that you will issue an order for my admission into the jail between 6 A. M. and 4 P. M., or one hour after sunuse to sunset or an hour after the Court rises, and for my being permitted to visit my client with not more than two witnesses during those hours, and without any of your people attending within heating. To your people keeping a proper guard, I can of course make no objection. Your ausver by bearer will oblige,

Yours obediently,

W. D. SHAW. (Signed)

December 19, 1838.

P. S. I beg to give you notice, that it has been reported to me, that my client is unwell and has been suffering all the day from dysentry.

On receipt of this letter, Mr. Samuells, the Mugistrate, addressed the following reply.

To W. D. Shaw, Esq., Attorney at Law.

Sir, -I have received your letter of yesterday's date, and have to inform you in reply, that from 10. A. st. to 4 P. M. are the ordinary and the regular hours of admission into the jail; that you were frequently admitted at all hours, was an indulgence, the continuance of which you had no right to expect after the discovery of the manner in which that indulgence had been abused. As these hours, however, would in all probability be incovenient to the prisoner and his witnesses, and as I do not conceive that any placenduct of yours ought to be allowed to affect their interests. I will issue orders to be allowed to affect their interests. for the alteration of the hours of admission; you will hangefurth accordingly be admitted from 6 A. M. to 10 A. M. and from 4 P. W. to 6 P. M. M. Graham must also be coatent to restrict himself to these hours.

1.441 2ndly. The jail darogah has no orders to prevent you or Mr Graftani when alone from communicating with has orders, however, to prevent any witness from holding an interview with the prisoner in the absence of himself or one of his subordinates. When the witnesses for the prosecution vesited the prisoner, you had the advantage of hearing from your client any circumstance which occurred at these interviews; and I am quite. determined, that as far as I am concerned, both parties shall have equal advantages. You are, therefore, dies tiuctly to understand, that you are prohibited from introducing any witness to your client in private. I must desire also, that you will leave the names of the witness who may take with you, and their places of abode, with the jailor at the door, previous to entering the building. This is the only condition upon which I can die pense with the customary application to myself. Your visits to the fail are to be confined to the ward of the criminal Jail in which your client is confined. Having now distinctly explained to you all the orders affecting vourself, which have been issued to the jail darogah, I have only further to warn you, that any infraction of hese rules upon your part, will subject you to such pun; shment as the nature of your offence may appear to demand.

I am, Sir, &c., &c.

(Sd) E. A. SAMUELLS, Magistrate.

Zillah Hooghly, Dec. 20, 1828.

I'o this letter Mr. Shaw returned the undermentioned reply]

To the Magistrate of Hooghly.

Sir,-I have been honored with your communication of this date, in reply to my letter sent to you last night; and in answer to the first paragraph, I beg to ay, that I consider it no indulgence, being permitted to communicate with my client. I consider that I have a right to a free communication with him whilst in prison. Since, however, you have granted to me what I have required. I shall say no more on the subject. With regard to your assertion, that I have misconducted myself and abused my right of admission to the jail, I beg distinct. ly to deny the truth of that ascertion, and to say, that the instituation contained in your letter to the Judge, viz-that I had been tampering with the witnesses selected by you from my client's attendants, to give evidence for the Company, is without foundation. Mr. B gnell's voluntary admission in Court, that the evidence of one of the only two of these witnesses who were examined, viz. Hurrochunder Moonshy, was fair and impartial, is of itself a contradiction of your insignation. Having heard that improper means had been adapted to induce these witnesses to give evidence contrary to the truth, I dul visit the civil jail, and told the four attendants of the Rajah to tell the truth and not to allow themselves to he frightened into saying other than the truth. I said no more on the subject and only asked them how they were treated. I visited the hospital in consequence of having heard that many of the persons who were arrested at Culna, were suffering much from sickness, want of clothing and proper nourishment; and I found that the report I had heard was a correct one. I had on other occasions visited the rivil jail and the hospital. On nose of my visits was any objection made to my going into these places, and my visits, therefore, cannot be considered improper. Knowing as I now do, there is an objection, I shall not visit these places without permission. In reply to that part of the second paragraph of your letter. in which you say that I had the advantage of learning from my client what occurred at the interviews between him and your wilnesses, and that you are quite determind so far as you are concerned, that both par-ties shall have equal advantages, I do admit that shad the advantage, of hearing from my client what did occur, and I beg to say, that if I had the means of giving that it is a transport of the Judge (which I have not, as you must be well aware, my client being a defend did,) it would shew that gross perjury had been committed by many of the witnesses for the prosecution. I shall heave this matter, however, to be decided by the Judge-In reply to that part of the second priagraph of the letter under reply which requires the names and residences of the witnesses to be given to the jailor, I beg to say that as it appears icasonable it shall be compiled with.

4th. In reply to the last part of that paragraph in which you threaten me with such punishment as the native of the offence which I may commit may appear to demind, I have only to say that I have no doubt that when you succeed in proving that I have committed an offence, you will not fail to inflict a sufficient punishment.

I remain, &c.

(5d) W. D. SHAW.

This letter was delivered to the Magistrate's pean who took it to him, and he corrected to use used a summons for Mr. Show's appearance in his Court to answer to the charge of having been omity of a contemit of Court by sending him this letter; and Mr. Show, as aforesaid, appeared accompanied by his Coursel Mr. Leith.

Mr. Leath prime facie objected to the joursh men in this case, which objection being overruled, he then proceeded to argue that there was no contempt of Court, as stated in the Magistrate's summons. The matter to which the allege! contempt of Court relates, was not a matter relating to a Court of Justice; but it was merely in rooly to a written communication in ide by the Magistrate to Mr. Show; and the alleged contempt of Court is asserted to be con amed in that reply, which was in tiet only a letter, ad lossed to the Magistrate by Mr. Shaw, and simply a vindi ation of his conduct against certain charges made against him in the Magistrate's letter, and which charges were made in an extra otheral Cours, all Courts of Justice, which are vested with proceeding. a power of puntsing for a coalempt of Court, exercise that power only in extreme cases, for it is a power granted by law, whether in conformity with some regulation or custom, not to the individual, but solely for the protection of the Court, in which he is at the time sitting in exercise of patienal functions. And even in Her Majesti's Courts of Records, which are the highest Courts because the Majesty of the Crown is ever supposed to be present even there, this is the law. In this particular ofe Mr. Loub informed the Magistrate, that he was not sating either as a Judge or a Magistrate nor was Mr. Shan present in any Court when he committed the alleged contempt.

Mr. Leith then contended, that there was nothing in any of the passages which the Magistrate had read to him from Mr. Span's letter to the Magistrate of the 20th instant, which could possibly be construed into a contenual of Court.

Mr. Samuells saplied, the the word instinuation was the objection of word, and he likewise auded, that in the latter part of Mr. Shaw's letter, where he had stated that the Marstoate would, he doubted not sufficiently puresh him if he committed an offence, went to charge the Marstrate with personal maires against Mr. Shaw.

Mr. Leth argued, that the word instituation, as applied in the letter alluded to by the Magistrate, could not in his opinion be construct into an off-naive meaning Moreover, it was the very expression which had been adopted by the Magistrate's senior functionary, viz. the Sussions Judge, in describing the Magistrate's cumnumication, and if it had in that instance been mad, use by words are supposed to be well weighed before they are expressed, surely if he could apply it in open Court, without an offensive meaning being put to it, then Mr. Show's adopting the expression in his letter, could not possibly be construed into a contempt of Court, if that w s the term by which the Se sons Judge described his supportunite other's communication to Mr. Shaw. After he had read it, assuredly Mr. Shaw, who had never seen this commun, arise, could form his ideas of it only from what Mr. Curtis had mentioned to him of it; and in so doing, he could not be blamed if he described it in the very words in which Sessions Judge had described it; and if there is any thing wrong in that expression, then the blame, if any, ought to be attached to the person who first used it, and not to the individual who samply abouted it. Mr. Leith added, that if he had received the letter in question, he could not have supposed the word inservation, as contained in it, to be objectionable. There is nothing objectionable to the term riself, and he is at a loss to a discover in the context aught to make that objectionable; for it will be observed, that the word insignation has direct reference to the Magistrate's letter to the Judge, and whether the Manstrate had a right to make that instanction to the Judge, appeared to Mr. Leith to be the question which ought to be previously answered. Mr. Leith then drew the Magistrate's attention to the fact, that he was sitting as an arbitrator in his own case and deciding a matter between him and Mr. Shaw, and it could not be imagined that he could be divested of all personal feeling on the occusion. Now the tenor and the practice of the law reguiding contempts, were not to put a contemptuous meaning on any expression used by a party in any Court, if there could possibly be put any other meaning to those expressions. Could the Magistrate take upon lumself to say, that the expression in question, as us d in Mr. Show's letter to him, could not bear any other construction than the one he had put upon it! If it could, then the magistrate was in duty bound to suppress all individual feelogs to the case and out the midest construction he possibly could on the term in question,

The magistrate confessed, that when he received Mr. Shaw's letter to turn, his feelings had been roused, and at the tune that he issued the summons against Mr. Shaw, he had as in cation of pourslang him more severally than he would now probably do.

Mr. Lenhwent on to contend, that there could not possibly be any harm in Mr. Shaw's stating that he doubted not that the magistrate would punch himsufficiently if he committed an off occ. If purports no more than to say, that the magistrate would do his any strictly, and what more can be required of a conscientious magistrate, than to proish offenders, on conviction adequately to their crimes.

The magistrate such that Mr. Shaw, in his letter, had stated that the witnesses for the prosecution had been tampered with; now as these witnesses are under the magnetrate's charge the considered this expression of Mr. Shaw, is an insure item against himself.

Mr. Leath replied, that he was quite asteorshed to hear the magistrate talk so. It was supposing the dignity of the migisterial office to be degraded to that of an attorney's clerk, in tutoring and keeping winnesses. Surely Mr. Samuells's character for respectability, is too well known to encourage the idea of such an insinuation bring ever cast on it. It would be madoess in Mr. Shaw it he were to attempt to do so, and it was certainly not very wise, in Mr. Leith's opinion, for Mr. Samuell's to suppose the charge to be against himself.

The question, said the magistrate, is, what had Mr. Shaw instituted? It was clear to him that much was nightly of a disrespect-tal nature.

Mr Leith replied, that Mr Samuelis's letter to Mr. ;

Mr. Samuells said, that the expression u ed in his letter to Mr. shaw, was quite incidental, and it needed no reply.

Ma. Leith remarked, that he differed from the magistrate on that point.

The magisti ite then summed up. He said that he bad his doubts as to whether the Sessions. Judge had received his letter to him in the light stated by Mr. Letth, for he certainly did concur with the magistrate in our orders he had passed regarding Mr. thaw's visus to this full With regard to the offence of Mr Shaw, he in spite of the ve y ingenious argument of Mr. Loth, still considered his sending hun that letter to be a very senous contempt of Court, and were it not for the of servation of Mr. Lenh that the magistrate is now sitting as a Judge in his own case, he would have fined Mr. Shiw more severally than he now was disposed to ac. With regard to Mr. Lenn's assertion that the expression was not used in a Court of Justice, he begged to ratorm him, that his Court is not confined to time and place, but extends all ever the Hooghly district, and at an, true that be chooses to transact his other didutes at any place within his Zdlah, then and there ms Court is constituted; and that the letter was an official one is apparent from its direction, it bing addressed to the magistrate of Hooghiy. He, therefore, under all the circum stances of the case, in order to uphold the dignity of his office, which beconsidered had been contemptionary treated by Mr. Shaw m the present metance, could not how to n less than 50 rupces. He then ordered his Sucristadar o record this conviction and fine.

Mr. Leith begged the Migistrale to inform him by what law or regulation the conviction had been made in this case.

The Magistrate replied, by the common law of all civilized countries.

Mr Loub asked whether a had been made by the common law of language

The Ma_istrate replied, no.

Mr. Leith asked taen, by whit common law is the consistion made, if not by the ominor law of E. Aland; for there was no come on law of fain to the best of his knowledge and benef, and the law of any other country. could not be a ted up a in this country, it not being under their dominion!

Mr. Samuells replied, that the conviction had been made by the regulation land of India, and it is by the power vested in every Court of Justice to convict and punish for contempt of Court. It is an inherent power of the Court.

Mr. Leith wished to know, under what particular regulation the conviction was made; for, it M., Shaw paid the fine, which he must, in order to avoid incarceration, it will be under a protest against the proceedings, and he will appeal to a higher Court against this decision.

Mr. Samuells attempted for a short time to recollect and point out the regulation under which this conviction had been made; but failing to do so, he replied, it is not made under any particular regulation, but partly under regulation and partly by the inherent power and practice of this Court; and he added, that if Mr. Shaw wished he could to-morrow have an orbital copy of his proceedings in this case, together with the order he had passed on it, and that would specify under what regulation and authority he had made this conviction and nopozed the fine he had done. .

After this the Magistrate took Mr. Leith's security Shaw was very bad. M. Shaw was in it accused of for the payment of the fine next morning, and the misconduct, and he had but detended himself. parties icured.

It is Mr. Shaw's intention to appeal from this decision.

HOOGHLY SESSIONS' COURT. - DICEMBER 22.

(Before J. Curtis, Esq. Sessions Judge.)

DELINCE OF HURRY HUR NARRAIN ROY, RAJA OF HUR-DHON, ONE OF THE PARILES IN THE CASE OF GOVERNMENT versus the potodo rajah pektab chunder, &c.

Ram Chunder Chatterjea, Comastali resident of Moestala, Zolah Nuddea, deposet, I know Rajah Hurty Hut Narratan Roy, Rajah of Hutdhun. In Bysack last, about the 19th instant, I went to Culna, to search for a man who had run away with some of my money, and after searching vainly for him all day, I saw from the ghout at Calur, the Hudding R 1th, seated on the top of a howlesh. I went to him and paid my respects to him, and asked what had brought him to ulna. He replied, that he was proceeding to Kishnaof it, and had stopped for a day or two in the way to witness the miracle of a dead man having come to life agrin. Lasked him when he intended proceeding on his voyage. He replied to day or to-morrow. I then took my leave and proceeded on my journey, and know nothing of the subsequent transaction which occured there. The Rajah had about 20 or 25 attendants with lum, besides the boatmen. He generally travels with about a similar retinue. I am now out of employ.

Chunder Seekur Roy, resident of Annundapoor, Zilla Nucleah, deposed I know Rajah Hurry Har Naarrain Roy of Hurdian. I am his tenant. I saw him, on the 17th By ank last, leave his residence with a palkee and about 30 tollowers to proceed to Kishnaghur in a budgetow. On the 19th of that month I went to Culua, to ascertain the price of some mustard seed. I then learned that the Hurdhua Rajah was there. I went on the 20th to see him in his boat and asked him, what detained him, there, and he and that he had stopped to see the miracle of a deadman having come to life, and said, "I will re-turn to-morro v." I then took my leave and went home, and know nothing of the subsequent transactions that occurred there. The Huidhun Rajah always travels with a retinue of 30 or 40 persons.

Govind Ghose, Milkoian, resident of Mooronda, Zilla Nuddea, acrosed, in contribution of the evidence of the two former witnesses. There were two other witnesses in attendance to follow in the wake of the three witnesses, but neither the Sessions Judge nor the Mahomedan Law Officer non-ide ed it necessary to take further evideace on this point.

After this had been intimated to these witnesses, the Hurdian Rajah expressed a wish to cross-examine the last wine es, who then further deposed, that the Hurdhun Rajan had never assembled any morus mob, nor been guilty of a breach of the peace, nor did he inlist any followers to forward them to the pseudo Pertab Chunder. In fact he never took any interest in his affairs and was a complete stranger to him, and in passing Culna on his way to Kishnagar, hearing that the man who had caused such a sensation in the country for the last two years, by asserting himself to be Pertab Chunder, the late Krigh and Zemindar of Burdwan, was at Culna, he had merely gone from motives of curiosity to see him.

Rannec Footah Komarre, the sieter of the late Rajah Tel Chunder of Burdwan, Rannes Peary Comarree, the willow of Rajamilerrab Chumler and Beebee Badamee, his maternal aunt, have, in reply to their subpoenas on behalf of the defence, written that the death of Rajah fact, and clear as the sun at mid day, and that as they are soner's case, and added, that he would report it and women of the respectability and purdan nusbees, they Brougham. The letter did not offer me any remnuerawomen of the respectation and pureau access, they decline attending on their subpostas, as their testimony would be no benefit to the imposter (as they state the prizoner is); and that the subpostas are only vexations processes against them, and their being carried into execution, would only tend to degrade then respectability and that of the family of the Rajah of Burdwan, therefore they declined to attend on their subposnas and submitted objections to the Sessions Judge's consideration.

Mr. Curtis wrote a letter to Mr. Shaw, informing him that the witnesses for the defence had refused to go to Chinsural and be tested by him; but that they were within the Court compound, and if Mr. Shaw wished to see them previous to their being examined, he could come to the Court and do so.—Huranu Dec. 25.

DECEMBER 27.

William James Deere, Clergyman, resident of Kishenaghur, deposed. I have seen the prisoner on a former occasion here, in the Magistrate's Court. I went to Kishen ighur in 1832 from Burdwan. I knew Kisto Lal Brumacharee. My acquaintance with him commenced in 1832 at Kishenaghur. If not altered much within these six years. I think I could recognize hun. I saw him last in 1852. I cannot say decidedly whether the personer is that Kisto Lal or not. In my former deposition. I stated that my impression was that he was not, but I could not swear that he was not. The prisoner is of the same stature, and his nose of the same formation, only Kisto Lai's pointed upwards and the pri-oner's downwards. His eyes are of the same color. Kisto Lal had a fine, broad, open chest and shoulders. In 1832 and 1833 I was in Europe and returned to India in 1835. When the prisoner in 1836 was forwarded from Bancoorah to Hooghly, two men, who represented themselves to be Purran Baboo's servants, requested me to go to Hooghly and recognize the prisoner as kisto Lai. They promised to pay my expences. I declined to interfere personally, but offered to give them all the information in my power. These men never returned, but two men who pretended to be Purran Baboo's people came, but they appeared frequently. The mark which I saw on Pertab Chand's to be spies. Purran Baboo is the present Burdwan hand, I would be able to recognize. It was of the size Raja's tather. I heard in 1821 bazat reports that of an order annas piece. The other I know by the Portab Chund left his country to go to Runjeet singh accurate descriptions I have heard of them many years to form a conspiracy against the British Government, 130 from several persons Ramdhon Catechist lived with me when Kisto Lall visited me. I have a good opinion of Ramdhon. I know Mohes Pundit.

Mr. Leith asked witness's opinion of Mohes Pandit Mr. Bignell objected to the question, and Mr. Leith waived it.

Witness deposed. I once had Mohes Pundit in the Court of Burdwan for a defamation of character. I would believe him on his oath on a matter which I know to be true, otherwise I would take his deposition into consideration before I credited it. He would never be employed as a Catechist. Mohes Pundit is not now with me. He left me in 1833.

Framined by Mr. Bignell.—I received a letter from Mr. Shaw. I sought no damages from Mobes Pundir in my suit against him. I subsequently forgave him and re-employed him in the school. My impression as to the prisoner's identity is the same as it was, when I deposed before the Magistrate. I cannot speak positively on that point.

Re-examined by Mr. Leith. The letter from Mi Shaw I received within these eight weeks, and I have destroyed it because I dreated being entangled with attorney. The letter advised me to accertain the marks on Kisto Lal's body and the time of his disappearance, I us to his identity—be could not otherwise have described

Pertab Chunder at Culna in 1227 B. S. is a well known and it disapproved of certain proceedings in tion for my expences, nor dal it call on me to attend as a witness to the case. Here is the bill for my

> Daniel Antoneo Overbeck deposed. I have already deposed that I could not recognize the prisoner to be Raja Pertab Chund. I never met Pertab Chund in the plight and apparel as I did the prisoner two years ago in the Hooghly Jail. I never saw Pertab in Jail, and I always met him apparelled as a native prince. I was formerly Governor of Chinsurali, and in 1826 I was one of the commissioners appointed by the Netherlands Government to deliver Christiah over to the English. About 18 months previous to my being examined before the magistrate, I, at Ductor Wise's request, saw the prisoner in the Hooghly Jail. I at first considered him to be an impostor; but when I took him a little aside from the other gentiemen. I told him by way of threatening him, that he could not very easily deceive me, as I was acquainted with all the marks which Pertab Chund had on his body, and though heat first was very much abashed, he brightened up directly, and answered, all these marks are mine. There was a slight mark behind Pertab Chund's right gar, occasioned by the little glased stong of a kite. He had a mark on his back between the shouller occasioned by the bite of a vicious horse. His evachman Peter Emmer. Neemoo and Sydoo, will be better able to po ticularize it. He also had a mark on his knee, or which Dr. Hallelay could give the bi-tory, a mark on the upper part of his left hand, occasioned by a scald received in some foolish love affair, and some other triffing marks. which in the course of any examination I may recollect. I have not seen these marks on the prisoner, as I had no occasion to examine him in the Jail I requested, enmission to examine him in the Magistrate's court, but both Mr. Samuells and Mr. Leith disag ee! with me on this point and objected to it. Mr. Lords said that when I would be examined before the bessions Judge on this point, then I could inspect his body. I have not as yet examined the pusculer's body. I had many opportunities of seeing Pertab Chand. He visited me

> Here the witness and Mr. Leith, requested to examine the prisoner, and the permission to examine, was granted to bim in an adjusting room, accompanied by Mr. Bignell, Mr. Leith, and Mr. Graham. They refried for about half an how, and then returned and the witness deposed.

I have traced the contour of the prisoner's face in the picture which was shown me as the picture of Rajah Pertab Chund. I have traced all the marks, which Pertab Chund had on his body, and by examining the prisoner closely in the presence of the Counsels, for the prosecution and the defence, he has answered every question which I put to him of days past satisfactorily, without any hesitation; consequently, to the best of my belief, the prisoner is Rajah Periab Chund. He gave a description of the interior of the Rajbarry at Chingural, and he answered as well as could be experted after 20 years. He likewise answered, with its correctness respecting the interior of my house and the manner of his reception there, and described the persons of Mr. Van Bradun, and my son. The house in which I lived when Pertab Chund visited me, and respecting which I questioned him, was broken down in 1827, and the barracks were subsequently erected on , the spot. The questions were calculated to satisfy me it. The floor, the furniture and one of the pictures, described by him, were sold in 1825. The floor was boarded and painted all over with wreaths, and flowers at his hore, near the Foundary Balakhana, during last It was a very large room. I heard of Rajah Pertab ever, accompanied by Mr. A DeSouza, of the firm of Chund's sickness, and death. Shortly atterwards I heard DeSouza and Ca., and Dr. Charles Peace. The Government, through one of then S cretaries, intimated this communication to Rajah leg Chunder, an i Rajah Tej replied, that he had never seen the corpse of his son, but that Purian Babon and Bussunt Baboo had reported the death of his son to bim The truth of this statement can be ascertained by a reference to the Government archieves of those days. I have been 52 years in India, and I have not seen or heard of the bony of a Kheetree being burnt in a chest If it were done it must be done for the purpose of deceit I would never mistake a chest for a corpse.

The elder sons were named Kisto Lal and Goor Lal, but the name of the youngest I have lorgotten, Kisto, the eldest, was to attend in my court, in hopes of getting an appointment, Kisto Lal was comewhat taller and much tanger than the Pseudo Pertab Chand is. I was taken with three other residents of Kishenagur, by the Nezerroi Hough ly, to the pal, to see the prisoner. None of us were examined in the magistrate's court. When I saw the prisoner in the jail, the Nareer asked me do you recognize the prisoner to be Kisto Lal ? I replied that whether I do or not I will state when examined in court and not to you.

Mr. Bignell declined questioning this witness.

I used to repair his toys and furniture. I recognize the prisoner to be Rajah Pertab Chunder. On Thursday the 20th, I was taken to the jul to identify the prisoner, and I was taken to be the Rajah. When my sister was married I quitted the Rajah's service and left my hother Thomas Fraser as my substitute. He was in the Rajah's service till the period of his alledged death; and I heard from him, that under pretence of indisposition, Rajah Pertab Chunder was taken to the river side at Culna, and brought in a palkee into a tent from , whence he ran away and escaped. My brother is dead. This occurred about three years after. I had resigned my situation, and it is about 17 years since my brother Phomas told me of it. It is 27 years since I last saw Pertab Chunder, with the exception of my visit to him in the Hooghly jail. He is a little darker and thinner to in he was formerly. I came in compliance with Mr. Shaw's letter, directing my attendance in this case (this letter, at Mr. Shaw's request, was filed. During the 12 years I was in Rajah Pertab Chund's service, I saw hun daily. I am quite certain the prisoner is Petrab Chund. Aga Abbas was in the Rajah's employ for nine years. I saw Abbas nine days ago, at Hoogaly, after a type of 18 years, and I immediately accognized hun. If the prisoner is not Rajah Pertab Chund, I will willingly be hanged. It is the gentlemen who make this mischief and keep him out of his right.

I do not know if it any letter was published in the Sumuhar Ducquin regarding my knowledge of the Rojah's case. I was part by contract for the jobs I did for the Rajsh. I was his amanuensis, I was about 10 or 12 months in his service. From his present appearance and his resemblance to be portrait, I am convinced that, he is Rajah Pertab Chund. I was in 1818, 18 years old. The pisoner appears rather darker and more aged than Pertab Chund was. He used to dress his hair similar to what ne pit-onci's is drossed. I observed no peculiarity in is teeth. I generally waited on him from 10 o'clock a. u. till 2 o'clock z. m. 1 was turned off, and have been in Government employ ever since 1817.

Questioned by Mr. Bignell. I was formerly employed in the Revenue Board. I do not know whether less goed that situation or was dismissed from it. This was the beginning of my acquaint meeship with him, and for five years, whenever Pertab Chund came to Chinsara, he always sent for me, and I visited him and played chess with him. Afterwards I went to Benares. The prisoner is darker and thinner than he then was.

Questioned by Mr Bignell. I am distinctly related by marriage to Aga Suffer Ullee; but as he is a bad character. I shun his acquaintance. I do not know whether Mr. D. C. PRTITION FOR REVIEW OF JUDGMENT ON REHEABING.

Wm. Storm Appellant, George Jessop, Jeremiah Homfray and others Respondents.

This case originated in an encroachment made by the respondent, Mr. Jessop, on some ground which Mr. Storm had purchased from the Toutine society, by whom it was possessed by a foreclosure of a mortgage, which Mr. Homfray made with them previous to his insolven-cy. For the recovery of the enfronched land Mr. Storm cy. For the recovery of the end of the Sudder Mr. Honfray if he had brought the power of attorney, Ameen of the 24 Pergunnahs. The case was at first which was immediately produced. The judge remarked thrown out for the wont of parties, and after its revival it was a general power and was proceeding to file it, was dismissed, against, which dismissed Mr. Storm appealed to the Judge some time in last year, when it was not a sufficient power in the present case, as all the admitted, and on the 7th of September last Mr. Storm premises contained in it did not empower Messrs. White obtained a decree, on which he moved for an I obtained and Parker to defend this suit, or any other; and as the execution about a fortnight ago. On the 4th instant, a case had pended in this Court for a period anterior to petition attested by a native monktear empowered by Messie. Island, While and Packer, was taken up by the additional polge, when Mr. Diss raised an objection in the first instance to the monktear coming into Court previous to proving that Me six. White and Parker had the power to constitute an agent for Jessop, and unless the power of those gentlemen was proved, Mr. Dies submitted, that the subject of the petition could not be entered upon. Mr. Homfray informed the judge, that he would produce the power, and would immediately apply to Messrs. White and Parker for it. The hearing was then put off to this day, when Messrs. Storm and Homray appeared, the former with Mr. Dias, his monohtear, and the latter with Mr. Jessop's mooktear and two native pleaders.

The judge, previous to hearing the petition, asked

Mr. Jessop's departure, that if he intended the power to operate in this case, he would have empowered his attornies accordingly. The power was then read, but not filed, and Mr. Dies not pressing his objection, the hear ing was proceeded upon.

The first ground of the permon set forth, that the notices for the total of the appeal were not served upon Mr. Jessop's attornes; the second, that under a circular order of 1814 of the Sudder Davanny Anawlut, Europeans re-ident within four miles of the submibs of Calcenta, were not amountle to Mofussil Courts; and the third, after cotering into the merits of the investigation upon which the judge had recorded a decree in tavor of the appell of, praved for a reheating under Clause II. Section IV. Regulation XXVI of 1814.

Mr. Dias replied as follows, to the first ground; that it appeared on the Sheriff's return, that his officer went to serve the notice upon the respondent, Mr. Jessop, but was informed by the appellant that Mr. Jossop had gone to Europe; and not knowing that he had left attorneles, the Sheriff served the notice upon another respondent, Hombay, who was and continues a tenant of Mr. Jessop's on the land in dispute, which Mr. Dias submitted was good service on the proprietor of the land. To the second ground Mr. Diss cited Section II Act X1. of 1835, order which all British subjects were made amenable to the jurisdiction of the Mefusall Courts; and in reedy to the third ground, Mi Disurged that the recapitulation of the grounds of the judgment were at present superfluous to the application; but as regarded the Regulation under which application was made, Mr. Dias contended, that it went much against the admission of the prayer, as after a careful perusal of Mr. Jessop's petition, i.e. did not find that it contained any new point of evidence, or even adverted to any new documentary proof, and therefore under the clause cited, it was necessary some new ground should be shown for a rehearing.

Mr. Homfray replied, that he, as a tenant, was not bound to give notice to his laudford, and that as the court had in the first instance, he alluded to the institution of the suit, served notice at Mr. Jessop's house of business, if the same had been done in the present case, Mr. Jessop's attornes would have come in with a dethe sudder ameen would not have been able to underent new ground for the admission of the reheating.

The Judge said, he felt inclined to make a reference to the Sudder, on the ground of non service on Mr. Jes-op, the outen-file respondent, and as Mr. Homfrey said he could produce a dead which had not before which had encroached on Mr. Storm's land.

Mr. Dias replied, that if the Court was of opicion, that the grounds for the reheating were made out, he would say no more; but if on consideration of all the circumstances before adverted to by Mr. Dias, and the fact that his hugation had been going on for a period of about 10 years, the Court thought Mr. Storm would be put to no inconvenience, Mr Dias would feel surprised, as in the first place a reference to the Sudder would throw the case back for at least a year, and Mr. Storm would have to come in with fresh fees for the rehearing. If Mr. Homhay would agree to pay up all costs, and the Court would allow the execution to be put in force, Mr. Dias would wrive all objection to the rehearing; but withall, Mr. Dias submitted, that Mr. Homfray had not made out good grounds for his case, as the Court should consider that at the admission of Mr. Storm's appeal before Mr. Cracroft, Mr. Homfity attended, and strenuously opposed it : if he had no interest in the case, why did he himself appear; and his saving it was not his business to give notice to his landlord, was inadmissable, for he had just given proof of the interest he had in the case; and under the provisions of regulation VII. of 1799, it was an ordinary practice to recover Government dues by attachment of the property of the tenant, and it became compulsory on the tenant for his own safety, to give notice to his landlord. Mr. Dias concluded by observing, that the Court could not pass judgment on what was not befere it on record, as Mr. Homhay's ipse diait, that he had a deed to produce, was no ground; as it he had one, it would have been filed when he opposed, the admission of Mr. Storm's appeal, Mr. Dias thought that under the provisions of clause II, section IV, regulation XXVI, of 1811, which are very ultimated, that the whole of the respondents could from time to time shew grounds for rehearings, which would, without doubt, subject his client to another ten years higation at least. Mr. Diss, theirfore, begged the Judge to consider the objections previous to admitting Mr. Jessop's petition.

The Judge said he had attentively and patiently heard all that was urged on both sides; and though he at first tell inclined to admit the petition, he was now of opinion that he could not pass in igment on any matter notine inded in the petuon; besides which concerned, it was evident fence. In teply to Mr. Dias's third objection, Mr that Mr. Howfray was cognizant of the appeal and of Homfray sail, he could produce the original deed of its trial, and though Mr. Jessop was a principal responsale, which had not been produced before in court, as dent, Mr. Homfray was just as much concerned, as he was in occupation of the land, and was seriously interested in stand it; which Mr. Hombay said would be a suffice the dispute. Parthermore, that Mr. Hombay opposed the admission of the appeal, and if he did not do so for houself, he must have done it for Mr. Jesson. The Judge considered the service of notice on Mr. Homfray, a tenant in occupancy of the land in dispute, and a joint detendant, as good service on Mr. Jessop, and he could been filed, the Jungethought it would not put Mr. Diagon not help taking into consideration the inconvenience as client to greater inconvenience than it would Mr. Hom- to costs, which would be beary upon Mr. Storm. He fray, were the rehearing not admitted; as under the could not, therefore, admit the petition. Petition rejected, decise, Mr. Homfray would have to pull down a wall. This order ends a higation which has been carried on could not, therefore, admit the petition. Petition rejected. for the last ten years .- Hurkaru, December 10.

CALCUTTA.

THE sol-disant PERTAUB CHUNDER,-The case for the prosecution against the soi disant Rajah Pertah Chund, has now closed, and the defence was entered upon on the 21-t instant. The number of witnesses to be examined on behalf of the accused, even after striking out the Magistrate of Hoogly, for a contempt of Court. whose testimony is dispensed with is stated at two hundred and seventy. Dr. Robert Scott, of the 37th M. N. I. one of the witnesses for the defence, speaks very confidentally of the identity of the prisoner with the real Rajah Pertaub Chund; and has pointed out several scars on the body of the man, which correspond exactly with those he knew to be on the person of the Rajab.

THE INSTALLATION OF THE BISHOP OF COCHIN CHINA .-The above coremony took place early on the morning of the 2d inst., at the Principal Catholic Church, in the presence of a small congregation, although it had been anticipated otherwise. The Bishop, attended by the Rev. Mr. Moore, made his appearance at half past seveno'clock, and walked up, through the naive, to the middle altar, where the usual coremones of installation were postormed by the Rev. Fie Antonio de Santa Ma-ria, the chair saging "Gloria, &c." MR. MADDOCK .- Mr. Maddock has gone to join the Governor-General in the Upper Provinces, totake upon himself the duties hitherto performed by Mr. Macnaghten, and Mr. J. P. Grant will officiate for Mr. Maddock at the Presidency.

DORT MARIOMED. - Private letters from the Commander-in-Chief speak confidently of Dost Mahomed having proposed to the Governor-General to vacate his throne and to accept a jughere; but having already expressed our doubts of the correctness of a report so much at vamance with the known chivalrous character of the Chief of Cabul, we shall content ourselves with a bare allusion to the fact of the report being still in circulation.

For the last 45 years there has not been so large a number of persons committed for trial at the Supreme Court, on such very infling charges as those now imprisoned, Petry their is the crime for which most of them have been confined, and, in some cases, the value of the property stolen, is as small as six aunas. To engage the Supreme Court, Judges and Juries, in the investigation of such fivolous tirals as these, is an unnecessary and vexatious taxanon of their time, against which, we expact, our fellow citizens will energifically appeal. The remedy is the revival of the Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace, with short juries and local judges.

ORPHAN MANAGEMENT PROCEEDINGS-PROTEST .-- WO. the undersigned managers of the Orphan Fund, representing the undermentioned divisions and station of the Bengal Army, hereby protest against any proceedings of the General Management, in reference to the case of Mr. Griergon, which may be voted by the members present reasons :--

First .- The meeting having been convoned by the corresponding Indian share. Deputy-Governor for the special purpose of taking into consideration diagos of letters to be sent to Major Turner and Mr. Gristson, the votes of the army restoring the latter gentleman to his office of Home Agent, was openly questioned, and after dividing on the proposed drafts in which there were five votes for and five against, it was avowed that no letter should be sent to Major Furner, and that the resolutions of the management of the 20th ulmuo, should not be carried into effect. On this, we the undersighed, declared that we should quit the meeting unles the votes of the Army were carried into effect, and the resolutions of the last meeting enforced.

Secondly -- Perceiving that there was a determination to annul the votes and resolutions referred to, we protestet individually against the acts of the members then prosent, and quated the room.

Thirdly .- The meeting that a wembled, was no attended by the Deputy, Governor, though convened by him, and his recorded spinute was read, that had he been present at the last meeting, he would have voted for carrying into effect the majority of the roles of the army without dalay. Fourthly .- The Deputy Governor's vote together with Major Penny's (absent on duty) confirmatory of thereby precluded us from taking any part in their proceedings.

THE BLACK ACT MEETING-MR. MACAULAY .- The Black Act Meeting, has drawn forth the defenders and impugners of the Supreme and Molussil Courts, and the daily papers have been teening with their communications. His Lordship expressed his confidence in being able to procure, by private donations and subcriptions, the very considerable sum of 50,000 rapees, and with the co-operation of the community at large, and the Government, it is intended to lengthen the present siste of the Cathedrel and to construct at the Eastern extremity, a cross aisle which will be occupied by statues, inonuments, tabular inscriptions, &c. MASOVIC PROCESSION, &c .- Thursday being St. John's Day, was celebrated by the brethren of the mystic tie in Calcutta, with unusual spirit. In the morning there wis a procession to the Church in the Foit; in the evening a Meeting of Lodge Industry and Perse. versuce was held at the Town Hall. The W. M. and brethren of that Lodge, with their usual hospitality, had invited many brethren to join them, and the number assembled was greater than has mot together in Lodge, we believe, for many years. After the Lodge was closed, the whole of the brethien assembled sat down to an elegant banquet, which was worthy of the hospitality of Lodge Industry and Perseverance, and creditable to Mr. Spence, who supplied and arranged the moterial. The viands and wines were all admirable. Among the honoured guests of the evening were the R. AV. brother Biacquiere (Deputy P. G. M. of Bengal) and the worshiptul brother Ryan (Sir Edward) who is a distinguished Member of a Cape Lodge. There were present also, among the viviting brethern, the Masters, Past Masters, and wardens at all the Lodges in Calcutta. The number assembled on this " happy occasion," was about fifty, and the evening passed off with great conviviality; but not without a due regard to the important ohjust sof the Maronic Institution, which were duly stated in some very good speeches made in the course of the evening, and specially in one which commemorated that distinguished member of the fratermty, the Late M. W. G. M. of India, the Marquess of Hastings. The evening was hailed by many of the brethren as the tovival of Masonry in Calcutta, whereof late, owing to various untoward causes, it has been rather in abeyance; and we undervand, that it is chiefly, if not entirely, owing to the moral influence and to the great exertions of the worthy W. M. Birch, of Lodge Industry and Perseverance, that the enthusia-m now displayed among the brethren to restore the palmy days of Maronry, is to be ascribed.

THE RACER ABILITER .- The fine horse Absences, dropped down dead while exercising on the Race course on the morning of the 17th instant. His death has spoiled much of the sport experted at the ensuing races.

A SUTTER.-It is stated, that the rumous of a suttee having lately been performed within the Hoogly district, has been communicated to Mr. Samuell, who has deputed an Aumeen to proceed to the apot where this borrid rite is stated to have occured, and after holding aminote enquiry into the particulars of it, forward burn the result of his investigations.

Prizes consisting of medals and the gate of entrance, was found missing, it having been carried away during the preceeding (bright moon-light) night, by some persons with the intention of melting it down and making a penny by it. Due enquey was made for the pell, when the robbery was discovered, but for some hours without any success. Certain of the native Christians were then desired to touse up the neighbourhood with the cry of " all hands for a search, and the reward of fifty rupees to the discoverer of the culprits who took the bell away." An old woman, soon after this, made her appearance stating that, in a ditch of dirty water within a neighbouring cluster of huts, she had seen a number of lads baling the water out, and subsequently finding a rope at the bottom, they had all put their hands to it and were tugging at something heavy affixed to the end of it, which they could not succeed in hailing up. The old lady thought that could be nothing else but "the bell," and accordiagly had namediately posted off to give the happy information. The "proper authorities" accompanied her to the spot. Their approach was in some measure opposed by the dolant of the place, but they made their way good and discovered the object of their search lying prostrate in the mud. How the bell, which was of sufficient weight for ten men to take up, was removed from its place of suspension, has never been satisfactorily made out-that the durwan was an aider and abettor in the deed, there cannot be the least doubt-

THE MOORSHEDABAD NABOR.—Rushen ood Dowlah, the brother of the late Nazon of Moorshedabad, and who came down to the presidency to prosecute his claims to the guidder in person, has been unsuccessful in his attempt, -the late Nizam's son, Synd Munsoor All Khan, having been acknowledged by the Government as the rightful hen, under the style and title of Mountizum not Moulk Moshed ood Dowlah, Furree doon Jah Synd Munsoor Al: Khan Bhadoor Nusrut Jung.

A SUSPECTED SPY .- In addition to the spys and suspicious characters recently discovered at Patna and Benates, about the beginning of last month, an individual, apparently a Nepaulese, having about twenty followers, stance reported to Government by Mr. Money.

PARENTAL ACADEMIC INSTITUTION .-- The Examination of the pupils attached to the Parental respectable assembly of tadies and gentremen, considing of apwards of 500 individuals. The Revd. Messis, Fisher, Piccance, Cambell, Rosz the Revd. Dr. Ollille, Dr. F. Corbyn, and several others, took a great interest in examining the pupils, and at the close of the examination expressed themselves satisfied with the progress and the acquirements of the boys.

It was stated on the occasion by one of the Committee of management, that in consequence of new situations opening in the Mofussil for the employment of East Indians, it was in the cautemplation of the Committee to introduce among the regular glass students, Bengaliee and Hindustance, as well as the principles of the Laws of Logiand and the Revenue and Judicial Regulations of Sheer Sing, Duham Sing, Attur Sing and others of the books were then awarded with suitable remaks by Mr. W. Byrn, the Secretary of the institution, and Mr. Montague, the head Master.

THE PEROZPORE MEETING .- The following extract from a letter dated Loodiana, the 23d ultimo, gives an amusing account of the straits to which the sight-seeking folks in the Upper Provinces are reduced from the 'high pre-sure" on the road :---" The whole of this station is of course on the wing towards Ferozepore-and scarcely a thing to be had in the Bazaar. Here we are, five strangers, setting our wifs to work and producing the fagends of our dak supplies to furnish breakfust, dinner, &c. Bearers are any thing but plentiful as blackberries, and with difficulty one set is screwed out, to enable us to proceed in single blessedness one at a time. I start, I believe, to-morrow evening, and shall arrive at Ferozepore before the Camps. It is said, that the meeting is not to take place before the 28th or 29th, and that Runjeet treats the thing very coolly, is making no haste down, and is likely to keep Lord Auckland waiting. We have a very pleasant man here, who has just returned from a tour in Cashmeer, Peshawer, &c. He is intelligent and well informed. He says, we are all wrong in our present policy, and that the Sikha, as a nation, hate us, and the Affghans like us."

Private letters from Ferozepore announce the arrival of the Governor-General on the 27th ultimo, on which day Runjeet-Singh also made his appearance, and joined his troops encamped on the opposite bank of the niver A complementary deputation was sent to the Maharajih, who received it most gracoustu, and desired his son, Kuriuck Singh, to iciture the visit and convey his " salam" to Lord Auckland. Romeet Singh waited upon the Governor-General on the 29th of Noveriber, and Lord Auckland intended to return the visit on the following day. The following is an account of the meeting, by a correspondent of the Bengal Hurkaru:-

"The first interview took prace this morning. The bour was fixed to: 8, but the stahar of did not present was brought before the Magistrate of Micapore, charged hunself before 9, when Lord Anckided, with a library with being to the lieges unknown. After due salutation, His Lordship assisour plams. Be it as it may, the Magistrate was unsue- sed the Maheraj note his own headth, where the usual our plants. Be it as it may, the Magistrate was unsue seed the Mantraj into his own howers, where the dual cessful in getting any information out of this "charge embrace and shaking of hands was gone through; then demissions secreties," who pleaded that he had come this the whole assemblage, in somewhat confused order, and there as a pilgrim. However, when his papers were aimidst clouds of smoke and dust, moved towards his searched, nothing of importance was found, with the Londsing's Duibar tent, and at first the push into the exception of an exceedingly correct drawing of the Altent was trementors, and the little "Loop," though labahad fort. The man was released and the circum-between Lord Auckland and Sir H. Fane, had some chance of being tradden under fact. By the exertions of Messrs. Macna hien and l'oneus, some order was remored, and after lies Highness had rested for some Examination of the pupils attached to the same and additions, I heard said, to the scene, we Academic Institution, took place last Friday, before a unusual additions. After conversation, the presents were produced, ther Majesty's picture, painted, I understand, by Miss Eden, and in a magnificent frame of solid gold, studded with jewels, was flist brought in by Sir W. Cotton, supported by Messis. Torcens and Captain Osborne, and presented to His Highness, who said every thing that was proper on the occasion, examined it thoroughly, and said, he would suspend it in his own tent, under all honors of salute, &c. Trays of jewels, shawls, cloths, &c. were then presented, and after these were removed, others were presented to Khooruck Sing chief sirdars. His Highness was then conducted to the it is not easy to convey in writing any idea of the magroom were the two howitzers were, as it is said, stumbled over some shrapnells which were and ranged alongside. to the imminent danger of his remaining eye. This room was crowded, and there was considerable confusion the whole time. Guns and pistols were here given, and afterwards an elephant magnificently caparisoned, and four really splendid. Hissar colts in gaudy trappings, &c. His Highness of course expressed great satisfac-tion, &c., and was "bhot kush" the whole time. Lord Auckland did the honors a merceille, and was most hundsomely dressed, as also were the political Staff, Messrs. Machaghten, Colvin and Torreus, After a few minutes conversation with Viss F. Eden. His Highness took leave, and was led to his Elephant by Lord Auckland and the Commander-in-Chiet, and the whole tamasha soon after ended. I heard that " the Buffs," as they stood in line, were particularly noticed by the Maharaj, and it is said they are by far the most ethcient and best ordered regiment here, Lord Auckland will return Runjeet Sing's visit to-morrow morning.

Rumour says. General Tackwell is to come up here to take the command of the whole cavalry, Regiments of Local Horse and some Bombay troops are added to the force of the Indus; but it is not enposed there will be much work for it. We hear that the Commander-in-Chief has decided on going down the Indus, but it is not certain how he will go, whether in a private or public capacity. Captain Mitchell is said. to be going as Aid-de-Camp to Brigadier Ainold, also that Colonel Which will have the Command of Artiflery vice General Laithful," 3011 NOVEMBER .- Lord'A . returned the Maharaiah . visit this morning, and the spectacle was grand in the extreme. His Lordship had H. M. 16th Lancers, and 2nd Native Cavalry, in addition to his body guards as an e-cort, and arrived at the bridge of hoats about eacht His escort formed a street until it joine t Runject Singh's troops, who were advanced about half a nife from the Maharajah's camp. His Highness came down about halt way and the same ceremony of meeting and embracing occured as yesterday, upon which there was a grand salute of some 100 guns incunted on camels. The line of elephants alranced to His Highness's encampment. which was an enclosure of red khanants of about 800 feet square, in the centre the state tent, with semianah, &c and the household troops all dressed in silk drawn up, so as to form a double cross throughout the square through which the Maharajah conducted His Lordship. As there was abundance of space and the number permitted by his Lord-hip to go over very limited indeed some officers were turned back from the bridge, and the Sikh chiefs showing no disposition to crowd into the durbar, and the proceedings taking place under the Semianath, the whole was seen without any difficulty, and the greatest order prevailed throughout. The Maharajah was dressed as yesterday, most plainly, a suit of red tushini nah without the slightest ornament; but his chiefs and sudars in their gaudiest and most jewelled apparel, and with the bandsome tent of red cloth, gilded cornices, semianals of Cashmere shawls, carpetted with the richest Turkey carpets, the coup d'ail was magnificent After the usual "bat cheet," the Heads of Departments were introduced to his flighness and the Sikh chiefs to H's Lordship; then came nautching and singing, which were not of the hest; then the return of presents took place, among which a gitled "charpoy," enamelled and jew elled at the four corners, a shawl tent, elephant with silver howdah, six horses better than uaual, &c. The Commander-in-Chief, Mesers, Macnagthen, Osborn and Torrens, the General of Division, and some others re-ceived each their pearl necklace, and other jewels; and after exchange of compliments, &c., Lord A. took hi aificence of the scene. The arrangements throughout, were admirable and there was not the slightest could-ion. I may tell you that the usual portrait of Runject Singh, that in Mr. H. T. Prinsep's book for instance, was not at all like His Highness, who, to speak plainly, is the ughest little, old, decrepid, shrivelled-faced man I ever saw; and from wearing his head-shawl down to his eyebrows, you cannot judge whether his forehead would give any uga of his undoubted ability. He has a fancy of wearing only one sock, the reason why I cannot say. Some of the Sikh chiefs are certainly very handsome mon. and then infantry really showed well in line. I cau't say much for the cavalry exhibited this morning.

DECEMBER 2 .- " Yesterday evening we had a nautch, illuminations, and fireworks at Runject's tents -rather so so; but the spectacle was worth seeing from the splendid dresses of the Sikh Chiefs, (Runjeet himself excepted, who wisely exchews the gingerbread) and the beautiful effect the lights had on the manificent semianah and carpetings of the tents. He displayed his jewels, not of course forgeting the famous "Koh-i-noor," to obtain which he practised such enormities on our protege. Shah Soojah. We praced also his ruby with 13 King's names inscribed on it-an emerald of enormous size, and another large diamond, which he stole, or which Shah Sonjah poweed to him, some time ago. Lord Aurkland gives a return party on Monday evening, and on Phuisday, he marches for Lahore.

The Commander-in-Chief, it is settled, goes on in command to Shikarpoor; but the army, in consequence of the supplies not being ready, cannot move yet. The cavalry will start on Monday week, and the sappers and miners to day. The roads are execrable, provisions, water and fuel are not expected to be very abundant, and although the Commissariat are making great exertions to " puckerlas" all on both sides the river within the reach of their supees, the returns are not opiessive. In the mean time the Dugald Dalgetties are stowing away " like bricks."

DECEMBER 3 .- The grand review came off this morning, and was certainly a most splendid affair. Altoge-ther about 10,500 men reviewed, 15 regiments of infantry, 8,500; 6 of cavalry, Skinner's horse, artiflery, &c. See 2,000 It was rather hard work, for we were under arms from 5 A. at to noon. The Maharaj, with Lord Auckland, came on the ground about 8, and after march. ing down the whole line, attended by an innumerable herks, mixed in the most admired disorder, and kicking up the devil's own dust in our faces, the manceuvres commenced. We then marched past the Lord in renewed order, and I heard from some of the spectators on the elephants, that the effect was very grand; that the Buffs, the European regiment, the, 16th and 5th N. I, were considered to march best; that the Buffs really 1, were considered in march cer, the manages a special notice; yet by "the lottery," this fine regiment is cut out of the "active service" to be,—not that much cutting work is expected. The best authorities, it is said, proclaim there will be nothing but a harassing and aiduous march, little fun and no glory.

DECEMBER 5 .- This morning there was a review of the Maharajah's troops, which went off remarkably well. It was far better than any of us expected: the cavalry no great shakes, but the infantry manuscreed in excellent argle, the movements of their light companies something quite new. The ground was well kept, and the morning being clenger than on our field lay, we were enabled to see every thing, except when leave. The whole thing was very complete, and I should the cavalty charging past raised clouds of dust. The think in no wise infector to the meeting at Roopur; but infantry marched past the flag, quite as well as many of our native corps, and sivery fine body of menthey are. It was calculated there were about 9,500 mentout, 1,600 cavalry, and 8,600 infantry. The Maharay presented at our review 11,000 rupees to be distributed, whether Lord Auckland returned the compliment this morning I can't say. His Lordship yesterday evening gave a ruturn "evening party," to the Misharay, illominations and fireworks, and a very good "tunasha" it was. The Misses Edon made return presents, a nong them one exceedingly handsome, a Prince of Walesfeather, about six inches high, composed solely of dimonds. His Highnes's presents, they say, hive not half equalled ours in value. This morning concluded all the gay doing, and to-morrow Lord Aucklaud will commence his march, via Umritish, where he is to remain lour or five days, to Labore, where he is to stay about a work. Our troops commence their march on Monday; the Cavalry Brigade first.

Among the anocdotes current, of the Ferozpore Meeting, is one which, however strange, we implicitly believe, and according to which Shah Soojah refused to allow the Governor-General a chair in his presence.

We have also learned that Runjeet Singh took a characteristic advantage of his Lordship's contempt of; or indifference to form, and that every slight, short of open mustly, was liberally heaped upon its. His Lordship and the whole of the troops were kept waiting by the intentional disappointment of Runjeet for four hours; from eight o'cloth a, m., the hour fixed for the interview, must past noon. The rest of the Sikh Chief's conduct was in perfect keeping with this proceeding.

r. When Lord Auckland's cavaleade went forth to return the visit of the Mainarajah. Runjeet Singh, the éleahant which hore Mr. Colvin, the Governor-Glacial's Private Secretary, taking fright at some object, with whose opport time the strateous brute was evidently unacquainted, sheed, and plunged against the elephant which carried the proud butthen of the Commander-in-Chief. Sir Henry Fanc, with a promptitude which we must say does as much honor to his energy as to his judgment, drew forth "ms long sword," and inflicted divers wounds upon the head and coark of the off-aiding animal.

14rs profession..." The road between Forozopore and Law much is nearly impossable; not only thieves, but murderers, intest the highways even at mid-day Bodies are constantly found by the way side.

We hear the 1st Division has been forced to half for want of grain, Shaw Shooja and his force having consumed the little stat was collected. The Chief was perfectly emaged at the fudure of the arrangements regarding supplies. So decidedly imbecile have been the pains taken on this bead, that the last two days it is whospered that it will be necessary to delay the advance till next year. The Bhowalpoor Rajah has fled and the plenty which was to be epioned, appears to have flown with him. Murmurs, however low, are heard; and the general opinion is, that they will end in some unpleasant outbriak. Describins have commenced and fears entertained of an hesitalion on the part of the Bramin sepoys to some the Irdus. Much of all this—I have attributable to the silly manner in which our Government go to work.

Not a word has been published to the Army as to where they are going—how long their services will detain them from India, and no prims taken to shew them their comforts shall be attended; in short, expect Mr. Macnaghten, there is not a capable mon near the Governor-General. His Lordship's visit to Lahore will lower the character of our Government more than you can possibly magine.

Gentlemen of the first rank were grossly insulted by the Seiks in our own Camp, and this will be much more he case after crossing the Sutlege. Then again, the idea of ladies accompanying the Camp, is but a finish to the degradation of our Governor-General visiting Lahore. Every thing is attributed to petticoat influence.

To-day we hear that the 5th Brigade are to march to Loodiana, but nothing appears certain.

The order imposing the duty of shooting to death on the sepoy, was a most atrocious attack on the prejudices of the natives—they should be hung.

A letter from Camp mentions that Skinner's Brigade

MOTUSSIL.

AGRA.—Recent letters from the Camp of the Indus Army, state, that intelligence has been received by Government from Cabool, to the effect, that Dost Mohumud and his brothers had finally come to the resolution of co-operating with Government in effecting the resolution of Shah Shooja, on condition of preheurs or pensions being guaranteed to them. This is one of the most probable of the reports lately circulated, as the arrangement is one the Affghan chiefs are most likely to come into.

MODESHED AND — The substitution of the vermocular language will take effect from the first January next, for the transaction of business in all the departments of the judicial courts at Maorshedubad, and the total subversion of the Persian Language, which was hitherto allowed to be used in them.

AJMERE.—The following is an extract of a letter from Afinere, dated November 15th : -- There has been abundance of rain at Mhow, Neemuch, and all the surcounding countries, but we have had but a peor portion of it here. The Beechta will, I tancy, he died up by the end of the present month; and the Anna Sugar will not, I imagine, last out notil the next runs, so that the gardens, cultivations, &c. are obliged to be supplied from wells. There are some slight cases of fever but set of a serifice nature, among the native inhabitants and European residents now here. Colonel Alves -tarted a few days ago for Jeypere, where serious disturbances have lately broken out. One regiment of Infantry and one troup of Cavalry have been despatched to the same place. These refractory people will not be the same place. content, I imagine, till the whole country be taken from This is a very cold morning, regular English weather, easterly winds with soundance of clouds occasionally. Grain of all kinds is tolerably cheap-sixteen and seven een seers of wheat can be obtained for a ropee; and other articles in proportion; so that we cannot as yet complain, considering the state of some other parts of the country around. Of give not more than two seers can be had."

MATIVE STATES.

JEYPORR.—The following is an extract of a letter from Jeypore, dated 30th November, 1838.

Matters here have been all settled entisfactorily. The mutineers (from 4 to 5,000 in number, with 18 pieces of cannon) after standing their ground till arrangements had been made for attacking them in position, laid down their arms, gave up their guns and other materiel, and have been disbanded, selections from them having been received into a new levy to be incorporated with Forster's Brigade this latter point of the arrangement being with a view to obviate the possible injury to public tranquility, which might have resulted from throwing so many disposate men locse on the face of society of the same moment. The force, under the command of Lieut, Colonel Bell, was expected to return to Nusseerahad on the 5th instant.

JHANSI.-The following is a short statement of the movements of the Thansi Force. The camp was near Oorcha on the 4th instant, a place, distant south from Jhansee eight miles.

On the morning of the 29th ultimo, the Infantry Regiment and Artiflery Company of Scindia's reformed contingent, joined the department under command of Lieutenant Colones Hewith at "Oorcha;" the 33 d N. I are expected on the morning of the 6th instant; the 6th Cavalry matched from Sangor on the 2d instant, the Train with Lieut. Bu kle, commissary of Oidnance, and the 72d Native Infantry, were to have Sugar on the 4th inst., the 63 d Native Infantry on the 7th, and the 60th Native Infinity with Bug idier General Su Thomas Anbury and Staff, on the 10th November.

Two Companies of the Infantry Regiment Scindiali's reformed Contingent with a detachment of Artillery and two guns, proceeded vesterday towards Mhote, a small Churree about 32 miles from Oorcha.

troops still remained before the place. The cause of the outbreak, it appears, was different to what we represented it to be.

When in 1818, our Government succeeded to the rights of the Peshwa over this small territory, the succossion in the usual order, was guaranteed to the family in possession, and the parties now at issue on this point, are the reliet of the grand-on of the Rajah whom we found in possession, and the third brother of the latter The widow, who has no issue by her husband, asserts the rights of an adopted child, but by our agreement with the old Rajah, and the usage of succession, the who is the surviving only brother of the old Rajah: and when he has been put possession of his rights, the army will, it is supposed, he withdrawa. His entire rights will not, however, it is said, he restored.

ersultweit.—Hurkarahs from towards Peshawur state, that the Puthan pluniterers having descended from the Hills of Shikarpore, and taken their quarters in the valley of Peshawur, say, that they will drink the blood of Runjeet's army and that of the English forces, before they reach Cabul.

CABUL .- No 1 aws from this place, as Dost Mahomed Khan has issued strict orders to his subjects not to write any intelligence to Lahore. A short time ago a great merchaut, Synd Azeem, had taken some fine horses with him for sale on his way from thence to Labore, when Dost Mahomed sent his express sowars after him, who apprehended the merchant on the Durreh Kliybur and took him back to Cabul.

CANDAHAR -Intelligence has been received from Shikarpore, stating, that the communication between the former place and Candahar, was cut off. All consiers and travelle a found in that route, were put to The chiefs, it is further said, are fortifying then strongholds, and Dost Mahomed is represented as de termined to fight.

MADRAS.

DESPARCE OF REGIMENTS TO MARLINAIN, - A despatch has been received by Governmen express from Calcutta, containing important matter relative to Burmah. It is believed that three regiments are in consequence to be sent teross at the earliest possible moment, and the tihe somewhat sudden order for the departure of H. M. S. Victor, arose from the same cause.

Mn. Furrentos .- Mr. Fullerton has been appointed Shoulf of Welras, for the year 1839.

CARCIEV OF BAIN-FAMINE.-In the northern districts of the Wideas Presidency, the annual supply of rain has this season been so scanty, that the reports of the reveand authorities are of the most gloomy nature. In the Vizagapatain and Masuho tam districts, nothing can prevent a funine. In Kattywar, and the Nothern distries of the Bombay Government, a famine has already commenced, and the streets of the Presidency eem to be awarming with natives, whose appearances sufficiently denote their sufferings.

In Madras and to the southward, the case is very difterent; Inseed in almost all the districts south of the Presidency, the reason is spoken of as one of the best ever known.

VIOLENCE OF THE SURE .- On the 6th instant, the surf was tremendous. The rapidity and fury with which the ong lines of waves dashed after each other, their monstrons size, and the violent pucking and rolling of the shipping in the roads, in lie ited that there must have been a server gale in the north-eastern part of the Bay of Bengal. The surf commenced at a great distance The affair at Thansi has since been settled, but our from the shore. Some idea of its violence may be formed, from the fact of its having washed on shore the remains of the Thalia, which had remained firmly imbedbed in the first position for more than twelve months.

BOMBAY.

ADEN,-Captain Maines, at the date of the last intellizence from Aden, had not succeeded in obtaining posseemon of it. This, we understand, is to be attributed partly to the unwillingness of the Acabs to part with their patrimony without the semblance of force being employed to justify their surrender, and partly to the intrigues of Mohomed Ah, whose influence, both political and commercial, would be growthy diminished in the Red Sea by the establishment of the British power at such a place as Aden.

In addition to the particulars relative to the force about to be dispatched to Aden, published above, it is now stated, that the command of the military par' o the expedition will devolve on Major Baily of the 24th Regiment in consequence of Colonel Bagnold. te officer to whom it was originally officed, having reclined on the plea of ill health. These officers and a detachment of Sappers and Miners have also been added to the force, which swelled out by the crtificers and camp-tullowers of all descriptions, will present a formldable show to the pugnations resisters of our Government. H. M. Ships Value and Cruiser, will also be despatched to augment the naval force now before Aden, carrying with them a portion of the troops to be employed there.

It was determined, in Council on the 7th instant, to send the remainder of the European Regiment, about 230 serviceable men, the 24th Native Imfautry about 350 titto, 30 European Artiliery man, and a troop of Goluntaz, 60, to take possession of Aden ; but they will not Poona, which will then be marched down here; this will not be until the end of the mouth. The force thus sent, with the Artillery men, Marines, and a detachment of the Coote's seamen, will not make up more than seven hundred and fifty men. Col. Bognold is to com mand the expedition.

DEATH OF THE RAJAH OF KOLAPOOR.—The death of His Highness the Rajah of Kolapoor, occurred on his pilgrimage to Tooljapoor, a place about 35 males distant from Punderpoor. After leaving the latter place he had fever for several days, and expired on the morning of the 29th of November, in a village about five miles distant from Punderpoor. He was about 37 years of age, and much liked by his subjects. He was burned in sandal wood, and his funeral was very numerously attended.

IRON STEAMER. - An iron steamer was launched on the LIBEL.—That trial of Mr. McCallum, the Editor of the Bambay Guzette, for a libel on Sir Charles Malcolm, which commenced on the 15th instant, before Mr. Justice Awdry, and a Special Jury, has terminated by a verdict of guilty. Judgement deferred. It is understood, that a motion is to be made in arriest of judgement.

THE SCINDE FORCE.—It is is said, there is an intention of adding to the lorce accompanying Sir John Keau to Science, and that this increase will consist of 4,000 men. The 10th, 16th, and two other regiments, have been named to us about to form part of his lorce.

The following is an account of the state the Scind force, Camp Vickur :- " We landed a most defeaceless Army, and it is well we had not an active enemy to oppose us. We had Dragoon without swords or saddles; we had Infantry without a round of ammunition, besides what they had in their pouches, and artillery without horse; neither is the position of the Camp such as a Napoleon or a Wellington would have selected; we have a river in our rear, without boat or craft of any kind to receive our troops in case of repulse. One would think that the river should have been chosen as a protection to one of our flanks. Several Baloochees have appeared in our Camp within the last few days; they seem to constitute the principal part, if not the only, troops in the place. They are a fine race of men. With a determined, soldier like aspect. The arms of those who are mounted are the aword and spear, and many the sword only. They are mounted on small but active horses. No carriage is to be had for love or money, and it is said to be the intention to move onward as soon as cattle can be procured for the transport of the men's baggage, leaving the officers the ourable privilege of getting on how best they may. It is rumoured, that one of the most influential of the Scind chiefs expressed a wish to have an interview with H. E. Sir John Keane, which was refused.

APPOINTMENT OF SHERING.—Mr. J. L. Johnson has obtained the appointment of Sheriff for the en-ung year. Tuis gentlemen was also Sheriff for the year 1837.

DEMANN.—It is stated, that the troops at Demann compelled the Governor to leave the place, and have appointed a Governor of their own.

THE LINEL CASE.—On the 9th of December, 1838, Sir John Awdry set in the Supreme Court to pass sentence upon the Editor of the Bombay Greette, found guilty, of a libel on Sir Charles, Mulcolm, late Superintendent of the Indian Navy. The sentence of the Court was, that he should be imprisoned in the Common Gool of Bombay for the space of three months, to be fined I,000 rupees, and to be further imprisoned till such fine be paid; and space to enter into recognizances, himself for 20,000 rupees, and two sureties, each for 10,000 rupees, that he keep the peace towards the Queen and all her subjects for two years.

BURMAN.

Letters have been received from Rangoon to the 10th of December. One dated the 30th of November says : About ten days ago three of a party of seventy conspirators, who were taken a few leagues below Prome, were coucified at Rangoon, having their mouths cut from ear to ear, and a stick thurst down their throats. One lived about six hours, the other two about twelve hours. Their bodies remained on the cross three days. A cousin to Tharrawaddie is said to be the leader of this party on the mountains N. W. of Amerapoora. The above men died like noble martyrs to their cause. From the bold and confident manner with which they spoke of the ultimate success of their cause, added to the seeming disinctination to execute the remainder, affords grounds for supposing that this proof of Tharrawaddie's unpopularity, is an one spected discovery. Tharrawadthe having successfully played off one party against (ol. Burney, and induced them to build a brick building at his capital, by which he was encouraged to insult our Government, another party has ri-en to claim for Tharrawaddle the right to exercise the functions of the prramount power. But our military and naval attitude at last evince, that we are not to be bullied out of those rights and privileges, which our arms have acquired.

The numerous traders, the slaves or dupes of Tharra-waddie, raise and promulgate all kinds of absurd reports to full our Government into a fake recurity. We had a report a few days ago that a splendid road way was made from the residency to the Palace; then a respectable Armenian wrote to Rangoon from the Capital, that an interview was to take place on the 6th rostant, and now we hear that the Woonghees have paid our Resident a visit.

professes 8.—The dak boat arrived this morning from Amerapora, with accounts that our Resident had not the Woonghees at the Lootaw or Vale of Justice. The Rangoon Government had this news yesterday, for to day five of the rebels are crucified opposite Rangoon. Tharrawaddie's civility may be placed to the account of this spreading rebellion.

On the arrival here of the steamer, the Local Government took fright at the wallke appearance of our Government, and dispatched a fast boat to the capital, imploring " III: M spetty to give our Resident an interview

DECEMBER 10—Not until our military demonstrations are pushed to the point of attack, will Therrawaddie break down. Our Maulmain column should take post at the northern extreme of our Provinces—it is his weak point. The Shaus are ripe for revolt. It is very remarkable that just in proportion as our Government exhibit a firmness of character to sustain the influence due to the paramount power, in the same proportion the triends and dupes of Tharrawaddie seem disposed to admit that our countrymen or our Government will not be insulted with inspunity.

Burmese Military barracks are erected near the Pagoda, and the houses in front of Rangoon, west of the wharf, are removed.

A private letter from Rangoon, of the 19th December, states, that by the last reports from Ava, the Rendent had re-embarked in his boats; but that the dåk boats of the aboveday, brought news, that in consequence of the fair promises and assurances of the Court, Colonel Beason had been induced to re-land. Our correspondent nationas us, that a few days previous to the date of his letter, there had been a great demand for muskets for the capital, but that it is anticipated the news of the Persian retreat from Herat will induce Tharrawaddie to adopt a course of dissimulation. It is clear, however, that the Englishman's correspondent M., with his "eight elephants," is either a would-be hoazer, or one of the "Six innocent."

ERRATUM.

After the concluding paragraph of the report of the Metcalfe Dinner, in page 94 of the Journal, read the following:

Sir Edward Ryan was sorry that the President had placed him in a doubtful position, for he was not sure whether his learned friend had returned thanks or left him and the other stewards that duty to perform. He would, however, choose the alternative of performing the duty. He then returned thanks to Sir Charles and those who had joined in the toast, and expressed his regret that it was the last time on which he would meet the worthy guest on such an occasion in this country.

Sir W. Cotton also returned thanks from the further end of the table.

Mr. Shakespeare proposed the health of Sir J. P. Grant, and complimented him on the able and eloquent manner in which he had conducted the business of the evening.

Sir J. P. Grant returned thanks, and, adverting to the great pleasure he had derived that evening, proposed—according to the old custom—a good night.

Sir Charles was attended to the door by the stewards and the remainder of the company, where he took leave, and was followed to his conveyance with loud cheers and waving of hats and handkerchiefs from the company, every one striving to shew his regard for their distinguished and popular guest.

REMARKS BY HIS EXCELLINCY THE COMMANDER IN CHIFF.

The sentence of the court martial being, that the prisoner Counct Edmond Roche should be severely reprimanded, he is to consider houself reprimanded by me accordingly.

At the same time however, that I issue this reprimand, I must remark, that the interference of Mr Sawell, the 3d mate of the ship Thomes Gredt elle, with Cornet Roche, and the gross and valiar Language used by him, both with reference to the Irish ge nerally, and to the Cornet personally (which language formed the probable ground for the subsequent proceedings), go far in extens nt on of the Cornet's misconduct.

He is to be released from arrest, and return to his duty.

Hand quarters, Simla, 4th April, 1838 .-- An apportunate occurrence of Derenk, which took place in January lost, in which the conduct of the medical officers at Mussoorie and Deyrah were implicated, has led to a voluminous correspondence being laid beore the Commander in Chief.

In that correspondence is an official letter from Lieutenant Colsnel Young, conveying the sentiment following, as from the medical officer at Deyroli:

"He has no ebjection to attend A, or any other patient of B's. (the medical officer at Biussonie) under the gustomary rules of etiquette; but it is usual on such uccasions for the medical adviser in attendance on the patient to call in furtible said binsest, should the case domand it; as no request, coming from friends, can be attended to, without the probability of giving offence."

The doctrine, based on medical etiquette, that the friends of an invalid calling on a medical officer for the aid of his skill, cannot be attended to by an officer of the Hon. Company's service, unless called on through the medicatofineer (with whose practice, or success, those friends are perhaps disastisfied) appeared to the Commander in Chier to be opposed to reason and sense.

He therefore caused reference to be made to the medical board, for their sentiments on the case,

The following paragraph, in the roply of the modical board, accords evactly with H₂s Excellenty's opinions; and be published it, for the rutine guid mice of medical onlicers, and for the especial attention of those who were parties in the transaction under consideration. "If the word citiquette imply only complimentary ceremony or forms of intercourse, it has on this occasion be a very represents of the recovery control of the recovery control of the recovery control of the recovery control of the recovery control of the recovery control of the recovery control of the recovery control of the recovery considerations of the recovery considerations.

His Excellercy directs, that the latter part of this quoted para-graph may be carefully attended to; and that " rules of etiquette," may not again be advanced in extenuation of any medical neg lect.

(No. 20)
Submit for courts favorable const deration, five memorials from efficient of the Bengal army, praying that for the reasons stated, the court will re-call their orders of 6th June 1798, requiring from an officer, about to re-tire on pension, a declaration on eath, that he had not received, and eath, that he had not received, and would not receive any occumary or other gratification or compensation for so retiring. Covernment consider, that the practice which has for some time obtained, although now for the first time/brought to notice, of indum st innesprought to notice, of indu-cing time-expired officers, under the rink of Lieutenant Colonel, to refire from the sergice, must conduct to the contentment of the officers, and to the efficiency of the army consultry of specific may measure which would infringe upon. possibility of sauctioning any measure which would infringe upon, the integrity of estimental rie; and, in really to the remainder of his memorial, that we seem no necessity for interfering with the arrangements which the junior officer, of a regiment may mkarin individual cases, for adding to the comforts of a senior officer, on his retirement from the service upon the pension to which he may be entitle!.

3. The Regulation of 1798, requiring officers upon retirement to make oath, that they have received no pecuniary consideration for quitting the service, has not been enforced by us in any single case of retirement in England, during the period nearly forty years which has some clapsed. It was catablished chiefly upon years which has since clapsed. It was established chiefly upon financial grounds, to prevent (as observed by Lord Counwalls, when recommending other rules for the same object. " an uneasonable load of pensions." This presumed necessity for the rule has however not yet been fel; on the contrary additional facilities have been required and have been given for enabling officers to rettie upon full pay; " we shall thorefore continue to auspend the operation of the rule, and officers retiring from time to time will not be called upon to make the declaration, suless the financial necessity to which we have referred (and of which due notice shall be given) shall at a future period be fully realized."

REVIEW OF THE CALCUTTA MARKET.

(From the Bengal Hurkaru Price Current, June 30.)

INDIGG.—From the accounts received during the week from Kishnaghur, Dacca, Jessore, and some other districts, the prospects of the growing crop are not so favourable, by a good deal as they were a week ago, a continuance of the rains for 10 day. as they were a week ago, a continuance of the rains for 10 day, more, would cause a great reduction in the expected out-turn of the sonson. The rivers are everywhere ruing repidly, and in some districts have compelled the planters to commence operation sooner than it was intended. In our opinion, appearances now indicate a crop certainly under the average of the last several years, and nothing but weather like that, experienced from this time, till the close of last season, can give more than an average.

As to the market here, there is really nothing doing, and very little remains on the spot. The exports up to last evening, amount as below:

opium.—The accounds per the Ann, from China of a rise in price are purely accidental, it was in consequence of the departure of a judge for Pekin, which afforded an opportunity to sinurgle, and also in consequence of a Malwa speculator having sold on expectation of supplies, which not coming, forced him into a bare market, these intelligences have been the cause of a considerable rise on the price of the drug here.

A public sale was held yeaterday by the Honourable Company at the Exchange-Rooms, of 2,240 chests Patna, and 1,458 cheats

The Right Hon, the Governor General directs the following augmentation to be made to the native army on the Bengul establishment :

To each infantry regiment of the line, ten privates per comnany.

To the 2d, 3d, and 4th corps of local house, one duffadar and nineteen sowers per ressalah, and to the 5th corps of local horse, one additional ressalah.

2. His Excellency the Commander-in Chief will be pleased to issue such orders as may be necessary, for giving early effect to this measure.

The Right Hon, the Governor General directs the publication of the following paragraphs of a letter from the Hon the Court of Directors, in the imilitary department, to the address of the Governor General of India in Council, No 3 of 1838, dated 11th April last

- The Government of Madras have forwarded to us "Para I. The Government of Madras have forwarded to us several memorials from officers of the European regiment at that presidency, bringing to our notice the consequences entailed upon them, as to tank and certain pecuniary advantages, by the arrangement of the year 1829, under which the two regiments of European infantry, of 5 companies each, were incorporated into one regiment of 8 companies, but the officers still remnined for purposes of promotion as they stood before the incorporation; viz. in two separate corps or wings.
- 2. A memorial, on the same subject, was preferred to us by officers of the Bombay European regiment, in the year 1832, to which we replied on the 24th October, 1832, through the government of Bengal, in the following terms: "We concur in opinion with the Governor General, (4s expressed in his minute of the 7th November 1831) that no supercession, properly socialed, has been the result of the new form gaven to our European regiments, by the orders of your government of the 2d November, 1820; and that no argument can be founded upon a fortuitous arregularity of promotion among the officers attached to the two wings of those regiments, for setting aside an arrangement which has reduced the expense and improved the efficience of these
- We still adhere to these sentiments; but we are of opinion that, for the satisfaction and contentment of the officers, measures should be taken which will have the effect of obviating prospectively, the supercession in regimental duties of one officer by another in the same regiment.
- With this view, we now direct, that officers of the European 4 With this view, we now direct, that onders of the European regiment hereafter promoted in any one wing, shall not be entitled to regimental rank, in virtue of that promotion, unless they were previously the senior of their rank in the regiment; but that, so long as they serve with the regiment, their ranks so obtained shall be brevet only, and not regiment. They will not withstanding be entitled to the pay and allowances of their act. vanced rank, and to its full advantages for line promotion
- 5. With a view to the adoption of an eventual arrangement, by which all such questions shall be o' viated, we further direct, that no vacuncies amongst the Ensigns in one of the wings, (either the right or left, as you may think most expedient) be bereafter filled up, but that as vacancies for Ensigns occur in it, appointment of one and number be made to the remaining wing. When With a view to the adoption of an eventual arrangement, ments of an equal number be made to the remaining wing. When all the Ensigns now attached to the wing to be reduced shall have been promoted, future vacancies of Lieutenants in it will not be been promoted, future vacanores or Leutenants in it will not be filled in that wing, but by p omotions in the wing which is retained and so on in the other ranks. The establishment of officers in the European regiment will thus eventually be, 2 Lieutenant Colonnels, 2 Majors, 10 Captams, 16 Lieutenants, and 8 Ensigns, with 1 Colonnel. The number of Colonels in the infantry branch of the service, (calculated as including 2 for the European regiment) to remain as at present, the junior of them being positively. nattached.
- The number of companies may in future be fixed at 10, inatend of 8, with 65 privates each."
- 7. The arrangement detailed in the foregoing paragraphs, will be adopted, simultaneously, at the three presidencies, on the 1st of September next, from which date effect will be given to the orders of the Hon. Court, in regard to the commissioned officers of the Company's European intantry reguments; those of the lent wing of regiments, respectively, being grantially absorbed, in the snamer prescribed by the Court, as casulties shall bereafter occur in that wine. in that wing.

REMARKS BY HIS EXCELOUNCY THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF.

His Excellency the Commander in Ch ef having fe't it has His Excellency the Commander in Chef having feet it has duty to disapprove the revised sentence of this count mer tail, considers it essentially necessary to call the intention of the officers of the army to the easy, because bedeems that unless what is due to discipling is, better considered by fature courts, great migury to the army must be the treath. be the result.

The case is as follows :

With a view to prevent the loss of either public or private treasure, so often necessarily entrusted to military guards, a standing order for the army, directing a certain practice to be followed in all gland rooms, was issued by the then Commander. in Chief, in the year 1828.

be existing orders beying proved insufficient, a further stand-order, having the stine object, was issued by the Comman-der-in-Chief, on the 15th of April 1886.

In the wing of the 55th regiment, which was detached, under the Command of Major Urquiart, to Allyghur, both the standing orders referred to were entirely neglected, and in consequence of that neglect, a sum of 1,355 rupces the property of officers and soldiers, was stolen from the guard-room of the wing of the regiment mentioned.

Major Ulquhart, commanding the wing, having been arraigned for the breach of the two olders quoted, (which breach had led to such serious results) offered three pleas in his defence:

let. That he did not "know" that any treasure was in charge | for the guard,

That he had " no recollection" of the order of the 15th of 2d.

3d. That disobedience to the order of 1828 was " an over-sight"

The court found the prisoner "zuilty" of the charge; and their septence was, that Major Urguhart should be "admonished," which sentence they have adhered to on the proceedings having been returned for revision.

The Commander in Chief nood hardly point out to the army, that Major Urquhart ought to have known what was in charge of his guard; because, had he exercised any of the vigilance due from the commanding officer of a body of traops, both personal inspection, and the guard reports, should have given him the requisite information.

The sentence of this court martial records, 'bat it is the opi-The sentence of this court martial records, ast it is the option of the members who composed it, that the standing orders of the army may be swerved from, or neglected, upon such pleas sa having "no recollection" of one order, and "overlooking" another, without incurring more of culpabality that is deserving of a simple "admonition" His Excellency feels bound to condernm such an opinion; and he informs those members, that conterns uses an opinion; and sections town memors, that it is the duty of every officer above the rank of a young Ensign in the army, to know, and to recollect, and not to overlook the standing orders; and that it is the duty of those whose rank places them in situations of trust, such as Major Urquhart hold, to see that those orders are in all cases obeyed.

It is also the duty of a court martial, when they bave found a verdict of "guilty" of neglect of duty, and disobedience of general orders," to award an adequate punishment.

It is His Excellency's opinion, that the members composing this court martial have taken a very erroncous view of their duty, in adhering to the madequate sentence they had first awarded.

Major Urquhart is to be released from arrest, and directed to return to his duty.

By order of His Excellency the Commander in Chief.

9th foot - Lieutenant W. B. Farrant, to be Captain 31st August 1823.

By Order of the Commander in Chief.

Head quarters, Simia, 28th June 1838 -No 139.—The inefficient state of some of ther Majesty's regiments in Bengal as compared with their numbers on paper, owing to the recention in the ranks of meffective men, caused by the samples of invaliding medical committees, has occupied the attention of the Commander in Chief.

His Excellency has communicated with the General Commanding in Chief Her Majesty's Army, on the subject and ho is now pleased to direct, that the forlowing instructions shall supersede, in the East Indies, all those of anterior date which may be at variance with them.

- The regimental authorities (commanding officer and senior medical officer) are authorised to present to the consideration of availability committees the cases of all soldiers deemed by them no longer equal to their duties in India, with the view of ascertaining their actual state as to office-dialy.
- 2. Those men who appear permanently unequal to the general duties of soldiers and no unequal to more than barrack, or other manne duties, are not to be retained in light; nor are soldiers who, though not having any pair the medical defect, still may be deemed totally unequal to, and n. t likely to be able to resume their duties.
- 3 As it not unfrequent'y happens that soldiers are brought forward for discharge for reasons not strictly medical, on which the invaliding memoral officers do not agree with the regimental authorities, or consider that they have not sufficient grounds on which to decide the case in the manner the regimental authorities recommend, the following practice is to be followed in all such
- A Board is to be assembled (consisting of three field offi-4. A goard is to be assembled (consisting of three hold officers) by order of the general other Cognimanding the division in which the regiment is stationed, and all the cases, in which the invaliding commutee may not have agreed with the regimental authorities, are to be submitted to their consideration. for a final decision.
- 5. In each case a roll of the soldier, containing a certificate (see annexed Form) signed by the Commanding Others and inside cal officer of the soldier's regiment, is to be laid before the board; in which certificate the insture of the disability under which the soldier may labour most be fully set forth; and it must be stated in what manner the disability may have attach.
- The board must use the greatest cartion and circumstruction, Licutenant Joseph Rogers Magrath to be Adjulant, vice Heriot, firmed on a fair consideration of all the circumstances of the case; and bear the closest subsequent scrutiny.

- 7. The regimental outhorities must be most 'careful to guard against malingerers', and never bring forward a man whose case bears the simulatest suspicion of having that tendency; and they, and the committees to be constituted under this order, must carefully keep in mind that men sent home, who are not discharged after arrival in England, become a burthen on their depots, and their remain to the exclusion of precruits. recrnits.
- 9 The certificates, ordered in the 5th paragraph, are to be forwarded by each regiment, to the head quarters of their respective presidencies with the other invalid rolls for the final orders of the Gemmander in Chief in each.

The following is the feport of that functionary, and it is now published for general information :

No. 692.

From C Monley, Esq. Account and General, to Lieutenant Co-lonel J. Stuaut, Offy Sec. to the Goot. of India, Mil. Dipt.

Mily Dept Sia, -I have the honour to acknowledge the re-ceipt of your letter, No 121,9th instant, transmitting two communications from the adjutant general of the army, relatwo communications from the adjutant general of the army, telative to the inconvenience experienced by officers, under existing regulations, when on leave of absence, in drawing their pay, otherwise than through the paymaster of the circle in which their regiments may be placed, and requesting a report on the expediency, or otherwise, of modifying the rules under which officers, on leave of absence from their corps, between stations, receive their allowances. their allowances.

- 2. I big to state, in reply, that although existing regulations prohibit entry of abstracts of officers on other than their own paymaster's disbursements, yet payment of such abstracts is not so restricted, being obtainable from any paymaster, on application, and on producing the last pay-certificate of his own paymaster and as the paymaster making the advance, is restricted from charging the abstract, he obtains reimbursement by draft or credit from the proper paymaster.
- Quarter master sergeant George Clowsley, of the 23d native infantry, is appointed sergeant major to the discrete dept.; and quartermaster Sergeant Robert Campbell, of the 4th native functions, is supported sergeant major to the depot at Karnani.

 Bergeant Thomas Bara and Corposal John Bannatine, of the Bannatine, of the European regiment, are transferred to the town major's list;

we-oframed yet as they do not produce any inconvenience to officers proceeding beyond their circle, (nayment as already shown being obtainable from any paymaster.) I am not aware of any ne-cessity of modyfying the existing regulations, nor of making any special rules for payments to officers enroute to other stations

4 In the instance of Ligutenant Maclean, brought to the notice of Government by the adjutant general, it does not appear that, that officer had either made application for payment of his abstract to any paymaster, or that he had left instructions with his own paymaster to reinit to him by draft, the amount of his forthcoming pay, at a specified station. Had he conformed to either of those methods, the inconvenience which he represents to have experienced, in not being able to proceed on his journex from want of funds, would not have occurred.

Truse incels the leave grafited in General Orders of the 9th of September last,

Head quarters Simia. October 22 -1. With the approbation of the Right Honorable Coverant Ocuseal, the army assembling for duty in the field will be designated if the army of the ladus."

- 2. Previous to the advance of the troops from the Jumin. His Excellency the Commander in Chief, having in view the various amount sixtes which making of the officers with in celled on to discharge for the officers for their consideration, a low topics the result of his exp. rance.
- 3. All known that discipline is exteemed the first quality in an army, to ensure success in any military operation; but all are not awate of how small a pert of the discipline of an army in the field is comprised in what is considered "discipline" in the ordinary acceptation of the term.
- 4. One of its most essential points on service, is the watchfulness which every individual should bestow on the mannes in which the grades below him discharge their duties; and in every officer's not only performing his own day with correctness, but in serving the it has duties of the class mondiately below him are also correctly ducharged.

- 5. Thus, the officers commanding divisions must be watchful over the commanders of brigades; and they over the collects commanding regiments; who, in their turn, must take care that their Captains perform their duties strictly; and so through all grades lown to the non commissioned officers of signides.
- 6. Officers on scruice in the field must steem their own personal convenience but the secondary consideration: the case of the solders under their charge the first. No commanding officer of a regiment of a company, on the termination of a march, must attend to his own business, until the soldiers under his command are properly disposed of in their camp, and the necessary arrangements are in progress for the supplies for the men, or forage for the horses. The casual sick also require inmediate attention.
- 7. A troop or company on service should never be dismissed after a march, nutil a scratiny has been made by the officers belonging to it, into any accident which may have happened to the arms or accourtements of their men, or horses, during the previous movement, and orders are given for the requisite repairs. At the evening parades every thing should be again in order. The ammunition in pouch should be carefully looked to, and the act of making away with any, be invariably paradhed.
- 8 Others commanding regiments must be very attentive to the regularity of their column of march; since the more or less of fatigue to their men, greatly depends on this point.

The talling out of the ranks by individuals, should always be thecked as much as possible; and when a man does full out, his firelock invariably to be carried forward by he next file, under orders from the commander of the section. A halt, and a piling or aird, for five munites in every hour, prevents the necessity for minimizations frequently quitting the ranks.

- of Good conduct towards the inhabitants of a country passed through, both on the part of officers and soldiers is another very essential part of good discipline. All plus leting or ill-treatment of them must be most carefully repressed; and in foreging, or other a recordable accordance to their property, every unnecessary many should be abstanced from.
- 10. All core tragement, by good trea ment, should be given to the country p-ople bringing articles for sale to the bazars, as many of the comforts of the army may depend much on this point.
- 11. Whenever camps are near to towns or villages safe guards much be placed in them to prevent all pilinge or marauding, or monounduct of any kind, by stranglers from the army, or its followers; and when such places are passed on the line of march, small guards should be detached from the head of the common to prevent stranglers entering them; which quards should j in and come forward with the rear guard of the column.
- 11. In some of our marches, the supply of water may prove stanty; and, where it must be drawn from we is for a large body of troops our full arrangement is always necessity; and the commanding officers of regiments should establish strict regulations to presence or ter at these places.
- 14 The sohers must be taught always to recollect, that many of their brother soldiers are marching behind them; sud that need tess injury can never be done, or waste committed, on a line of march, which does not bring trouble and inconvenience on those bollowing them.
- 14 A strict performance of all duties by guards and piqueta must be carefully eafo.ccd from the commencement or the match so that proper liabits may be early established; the details for these should nevel be larger than circumstances render impensive as the more soldiers, on service, and spared from unaccessary fague the better.
- An officer in command of a brigade must never rest satis fied until he has personally seen, that the piquets of his brigadeare properly posted.
- 16. The greatest happiness which could be al. His Excellency the Communder on Chief, and the reflection which would be the most graf fyling to him, during the rein in er of his hire, would be, if he could be enabled to carry through the dutter entriested to him without the indiction of any punishment weaterer. It is only from good description that such a result can be possule; and he calls on every officer my non-commissioned officer with the army to adding in maintaining that which is so very desirable.
- 17. At the came time, that he proclaims what he so much wishes, he make a known to the soldiers, that the necessary for good behaviour on their part is so important, for their own afternings well as for general success, that he will repress disorders and breaches of discipline, and neglects the duty p with a strong hand.
- hand.

 18. He has the utmost confidence in the courage of the troops placed under his command, and if, with that good quality, structuring be combined. His goodlency doubts not that the detachment of the Bengal stray will return to Hindoutan, having, sequired high kenur for themselves and advantage for their country.

Since our last, we have had the complete files of the Overland for September and part of October, these arrivals had the effect of onlivening the Money Market. The amount of reinitiances receive as Tuenty Lace through for Indgo operations and in French hands, and who have operated largely in that staple.

Shipments for the English market have not been stack; and vances through the ware House immont to a bee and that; thousand rupees besiders those gode and going through private fudividuals; the exchange on the former continue at 2 at, but an 2 of the fatter (American under credits) has not been better than Ergy per Congrey 3 tupes; even this rate within the last two or three days (indicanced by the near departure of the Mail) cannot be procated, holders not being willingto allow higher than 2 25 and at this exchange there it much speculation going forward From the large it ansactions, but have been done we would say that the Mail will leave with a heavy supply of remittances.

Bill Marker.—The expense of the trainstanctions of the United States Bank as published in the Enrich and copied in our journals, caused some six with regard to its Udis in the market The endeavour to throw disciently on the melituden and shake the public confidence, were, we are happy to find, not responded to, some were at first fly, but it was soon got over, and large sums changed hands at 221 2.21 but are now not procurable above 2.21 2.22 per Company's rupes.

Exchange generally had fluctanted during the interval between the last and present Overland, quotations stand thus.
